WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY THE LATE W. H. BUSHNELL.

As cunning a chap was Ching Sing Lee
As ever came over from land floweree
For fame and fortune to look.
But finding law, though he couldn't see the point,
Sternly against keeping an opium joint,
Accepted a place as cook.

The ranch was run by some 'Frisco boys,
Who believed good eating the best of life's joys,
And always upon it planned.
So the dinners got up by their chef, Ching,
Would have made an anchorite dance and sing,
They were so toothsome and grand.

But while they feasted and grew very fat,
They fancied he must be mourning for rat—
A famous dish on his native shore.
And they sent them in marked "A Present for Ching,"
In lots of a dozen, "and a Gift for Sing,"
Till he'd half a hundred or more.

The next day, when they'd eaten quantum suf,
That is as much as each could possibly stuff,
Every one for the cook did call,
And asked 'bout the rats. Then poor Ching Lee
Answered, with smile that was sad to see,
And in words that made them death sick to sabe:
"Melican men dey eat 'em all!"

JOB WHITTAKER,
THE BOY CLOWN.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY ALFRED L. KING.

Squat, round and bow-legged Job was, from his infancy, a boy to provoke a smile, but his never ceasing good nature, and a quick though rather uncertain wit prevented him from ever becoming the village butt.

One day he disappeared, much to the grief of his parents, who found him useful in doing chores about the house, especially in minding the younger children. He was sixteen at the time, and his sudden going was due to a proposition made him by the proprietor of the "European Circus" then exhibiting to the bumpkins, for whom the village of Hopeful was the centre of trade. The proprietor had seen him amusing a crowd of urchins during the interval between the afternoon and evening performance. The children were laughing with loud guffaws, and one of them exclaimed: "That's funnier than the clown in the circus."

That remark set the proprietor to thinking, and led him to observe Job's antics closely. Presently the urchins scattered in search of supper, and the proprietor took advantage of Job's being alone to say:

"If you come with me, I'll teach you to be a clown in the circus, and pay you a salary."

Job opened his eyes very wide, and the smile that was perpetual on his face momentarily vanished.

"Daddy wouldn't let me go. I've got to mind the baby," he said, seriously, heaving a sigh so heavy that it startled him—not being used to them—and brought the smile back to his face.

"You needn't say anything about it to him. Just slip into a wagon, and I'll haul you away. Your daddy will never find you."

With that the proprietor walked off, not stopping once to look around to see how his suggestion was received. At the next stopping place, however, he made search among the wagons, and was not surprised when he saw Job's shaggy head sticking out of a pile of lightweight properties which had been jostled upon him. He was soon enrolled as a member of the company, and before long was billed as the "only boy clown."

He was a taking card with the children from his first appearance, though it was singular that the "business" he learned from the older clown, when done by him, fell flat—nobody laughed at it. And this always distressed Job, for he thought the senior clown was a wonderfully funny man—one whom he laughed at until his sides ached. The proprietor, seeing Job could raise a laugh without resorting to any of the gags and well known tricks of the senior clown, instructed him to do whatever he chose when in the ring, but not to act or speak except when the ringmaster bade him. Part of the ringmaster's duties was to keep an eye on Job, and give him a cue, when, as his face betokened, Job was ready to commit an absurdity that would cause an explosion of laughter.

When it came to riding the trick mules, Job's powers of fun making had full play, his grotesque pretence of affection for the stubborn animals, his speeches in their ears, his warnings to the venturesome boys who came forward to ride the mules, causing shrieks of laughter. He was original; his remarks were never the same at any two performances. This was due to his defective memory. Always, when he entered the ring with the mules, he was cudgeling his brains to thrash out of his memory the last speech he had made to them, and, being unable to find it in the chaff, he ventured another remark. If it made a laugh, he concluded that he had uttered it before and had remembered it. Then he was pleased, and almost dared to try to sing the funny song the clown had taught him from the book of comic songs. If he attempted it, though, the ringmaster's whip brought him to an abrupt pause and forced real tears to his eyes, and an expression of honest astonishment and grief to spread over his face. Whereat, the spectators were sure to yell with delight, and, in the diversion, they caused Job to forget that his feelings had been hurt. He had the worst memory that any person ever possessed; yet he had the power of projecting in rational sentences ideas that, from their pertinence and the quaintness of their expression, rarely failed to raise a laugh.

But in one thing was his memory persistent and clear. He loved the daring Nettie Fay, who rode at the head of the grand entree at the beginning of the performance, and later in the programme stood on the padded saddle, and leaped through the paper covered hoops, or stepped gracefully over the banners, while the gray horse leaped contentedly around the ring. In her make up she was a thing of real beauty to Job, and he would have given his life to take the senior clown's place during that act, and ask with winning politeness:

"What will the little lady have next?"

Ah, could he have had that privilege, he would have been happy indeed! Nettie often smiled on him, frequently patted his head as she would that of a dog, and with the affection of dog he loved her. And if he knew that she was well up in years, was sallow and wrinkled when the rouge was off, and was of a selfish, tyrannical disposition, it did not make any difference. When she was in the ring she was to him the most beautiful woman in the world, and he never forgot that he loved her.

One evening it happened that the senior clown, hurt by a kicking horse, was unable to appear at all in the ring, and Job was called on to make all the fun. He succeeded admirably, principally by being in the way of every artist, and sometimes by forgetting to do anything for so long a time that he had to be reminded of his business by the ringmaster's whip, when his start of genuine surprise was sure to make a laugh.

Presently the daring Nettie Fay appeared in short skirts and tights, and straightway Job forgot everything but the fact that he loved her, expressing his admiration by gaping at her as he followed her horse around the ring. When playfully she held out her slippered foot, he ran and respectfully kissed it, which caused an uproarious laugh. This, instead of pleasing Job, as usual, angered him, and he shook his fist threateningly at the spectators.

He forget entirely the regular business of the clown, did not inquire what the little lady would have next, did not remember to remark that "that was unusually magnificent riding," but he managed to make great fun for the assembly.

At last he threw the entire crowd on the seats into paroxysms. He was holding one end of a banner over which the "daring Nettie" was to skip, and he was holding it firmly, not meaning that he should do anything for her that was not well done. By a strange oversight, no one had told him that he must hold the stick lightly, and no one, not even Nettie, noticed his strong grasp on it.

Nettie had skipped two of the banners, and came smilingly toward the one Job held. She threw him a kiss as he turned up his face toward her. He was much embarrassed, and he blushed, hanging his head sheepishly and looking on the ground.

Something tugged hard at the banner, but he held it fast, not looking up till a sharp cut from the whip-lash made him start. At the same time he heard a cry "let go." He did drop the banner then, but too late. Nettie had tripped in it, got her foot entangled somehow, and, though the man at the other end had let go promptly, Job's grasp had thrown her off her balance, and she rolled on the soft clay at the edge of the ring.

Job sprang off the stool to assist her to rise, but she was on her feet before he got to her side, and

He was found crouching in a wagon, and when pulled out whined like a dog. Threats, even blows, could not induce him to return to the main tent. Then the senior clown suggested that Nettie Fay should go and speak pleasantly to him, patting him on the head as she had often done. This she was persuaded to do, though not in an amiable mood, and immediately Job saw that he was reinstated in her good graces, he rose to his feet, smiling and forgetful that he had been out of them for a moment.

When he entered the ring with the trick mules he was greeted with a round of applause that made the senior clown wince, but do his utmost he could not produce a laugh like that which had greeted the unintentional tripping of Nettie and his grotesque flight from the ring.

Job continued with the circus during the season, and when it went into Winter quarters the proprietor arranged to pay his boarding and lodged him comfortably, as the surest way of retaining him for the next season.

The troupe was disbanded in an Eastern city, and for a while Job found great amusement in wandering about the streets, in looking at the shop windows, in riding on the surface cars. He never got lost, and in the evening always turned up at his lodging house, with not much memory of the day, except that it had not been unpleasant. Among the children he had many friends, and they had great fun with him almost daily on their return from school.

But one day they missed him; another day went by and he was not seen on the street; on the third day an ambulance backed up to the curb in front of his lodging house, and the children, curiously waiting, soon beheld Job, lying on a stretcher that was borne down the front steps by two men. They saw him laid on the ambulance, and, for a few moments, were sad, while they wondered what had happened to their jolly friend.

Lying ill with a low fever in the hospital, Job had one persistent memory—of Nettie Fay. He remembered his affection for her, recalled her riding, had a visionary ideal of her face, and longed to see her. The persistence of his longing made him melancholy, and, when the nurse asked him what he wanted, he said:

"I want to see Nettie Fay ride."

But he could not give any information—could not tell who Nettie Fay was or where she lived. Sometimes he was delirous and talked freely of her, and the nurse concluded she was a horsewoman in a circus. She at last called in the superintendent of the hospital, who, after hearing Job's disjointed references to Nettie, decided to make inquiry for her.

He was successful in finding her, and she consented to come to the hospital to see Job.

His face brightened when he saw her, and when she patted him on the head he smiled and laughed. Yet there seemed to be something he wanted, and when Nettie asked him what it was, he said:

"I want to see you ride."

She thought a moment, and then, remembering Rosina Vokes' act in "The Circus Rider," she asked the nurse whether she could provide a lounge without a back. On being informed such a lounge could be had, Nettie patted Job's head and promised to come next day and ride for him.

Great was Job's delight, and great the amusement of the other patients in the ward when Nettie, dressed in short skirts and tights, and with whip in hand, leaped on the lounge and acted with such force and movement that she seemed mounted on a live horse. Job clapped his hands and shouted applause, and the other patients, much to his delight, joined.

She came every day after that, and, though she did not ride again, her presence cheered him. His melancholy completely vanished, and he was soon pronounced well. Then she took him to her home, and he repaid her kindness by a sturdy devotion that manifested itself in many ways, each one of them more emphatic than any assertion of love that any man in complete possession of his mental faculties could make.

"WHY," said Mr. Litekash to his wife, as he read a newspaper description of one of her dresses worn at a reception the evening previous, "am I like Description?" "You know very well that I detest conundrums," she said. "Yes, but this is a good one." "Well, what's the answer?" "Here it is," and he showed her the sentence: "Mrs. Litekash's costume beggared description."

DOGS in Australia are trained in the army to carry messages and ammunition, to guard places and depots, and to perform outpost duty. It has been found that the best dogs for warlike occupations are pointers, sheep dogs and poodles.

MARK SULLIVAN.

A likeness of this popular and clever comedian appears on our front page this week. Mr. Sullivan was born at Erie, Pa., April 16, 1858, and when quite young moved with his parents to Boston. He attended the public schools at East Cambridge, Mass., laying there a sound foundation for an excellent education. In 1873 he was at Norwich, Ct. Having paid his admission to a vaudeville burlesque show, and there being a banner carrier wanted in the company, he made his debut on the stage in that humble capacity, playing for one consecutive performance. His next appearance was at Boston, in an amateur performance of Edward Harrigan's "St. Patrick's Day Parade," the youthful Sullivan receiving fine commendation for his impersonation. His next appearance was as a clog dancer. His mind was now made up to join the professional ranks, and, with William (now known as Roger) Dolan, he made his first regular appearance, scoring a success in Irish specialties and sketches. For a time this team prospered, and then Mr. Sullivan joined Tony Williams, and, with him, added to his successes, notable among them being "The Lackawanna Spooners." Sullivan and Williams shortly afterwards joined Corinne's Co., and, as Rocco in "The Mascot," Marcotte in "The Magic Slipper" and in good roles in other operas, Mr. Sullivan made a hit, his baritone voice aiding him materially in his successes. Separating from Mr. Williams, he next went with E. E. Rice's "Fun on the Bristol" Co., playing Widow O'Brien most commendably. He then returned to New York, and opened at Poole's Eighth Street Theatre, having been engaged for specialties and afterpieces. For a time he was a partner of James Kearney, who, also, was once a partner of James T. Powers. Separating from Mr. Kearney, Mr. Sullivan again tried his fortunes in the vaudevilles single handed. From the variety houses he joined "A Rag Baby" Co., and for four seasons toured with that troupe, successfully playing Old Sport, Tony Jay, the Dude, the Tramp and the Policeman. This engagement continued until 1888, when he joined the "Natural Gas" Co., undertaking and playing, with distinguished success, the role of Noisy E. Howell. He is at present with "Natural Gas" at the Grand Opera House, this city. When quite young he was one of the sixteen song and dance people with Hooley's Megatherian Minstrels, of which Eddie Girard (now of the firm of Donnelly and Girard) was a member. In a spectacular production of "Robin Hood," Mr. Sullivan made a hit as one of the Bad Men, and he is very proud of his many successes at the Boston Howard Athenæum. His imitations of leading actors and comedians are unexcelled, and he is very sure of a hearty recall. In private life Mr. Sullivan is most sociable, and his sterling qualities as a man have won for him many warm friends and admirers. He has no ambition to star at present, and, naturally and sensibly, prefers the handsome salary he receives. Success has marked his efforts from the start, and his high talent and conscientious endeavors are proverbial.

STATUS OF THE ACTOR IN CHINA.

There are many curious things in the Ta-tsing Leu Le (Chinese criminal code). Section 102, for instance, which provides that "whoever falsely representing any of his wives as his sister gives her away in marriage shall receive one hundred blows," and that "those who knowingly receive in marriage such wives * * * shall participate equally in the punishment," shows that the species of deceit which Pharoah and Abimelech reprehended in Abraham and Isaac must have been of at least occasional occurrence over a remarkably wide area. We are concerned, however, at present with Section 375, which provides that

"All strolling players who are guilty of purchasing the sons or daughters of free persons in order to educate them as actors or actresses, or who are guilty of marrying or adopting as children such free persons, shall, in each case, be punished with one hundred blows.

"All persons who knowingly sell free persons to such strolling players, and all females born of free parents who voluntarily intermarry with them, shall be similarly punishable.

"The person who negotiates the transaction shall in each case suffer the punishment next in degree; the money paid shall be forfeited to the government, and the females sent back to their parents or families."

This clause is inspired by the well known custom which excludes play actors, barbers and executioners from the privilege of entry at the public examinations through which every Chinese must pass if he would enter official life or obtain the cachet of an educated gentleman, and which are open to all but members of these tabooed classes.—Fortnightly Review.

BOSTON GIRL—Did you say, Mr. Servenmalet hat you sometimes gibe the schooner? Jack—Aye, mum. We gybes her often. Boston Girl (astonished)—And is there any satisfaction in thus trying to irritate an inanimate conglomeration of wood and other fibrous material? Jack (mystified)—Sure enough, mum. True for it. "And what effect does your gibing have?" "Makes her go off and get rap full, mum."

The play, in its action, is subdued, but intensely interesting, and is designed to prove a grand success. . . . . Mary Shaw, in "A Drop of Poison," at the Hollis, scored a splendid success, and verified the favorable verdict of the Western press. Alex. Salvini drew the largest audience the Grand Opera has had in some time. . . At the Tremont "Aunt Jack" had another fine house, and Agnes Booth has recovered from her somewhat severe cold. . . PHILADELPHIA'S NEW THEATRE.

Novelties Galore in the Quaker City—Big Business the Rule.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—A more brilliant audience, in every respect, than that which crowded every portion of the Grand Opera House last night has never been seen in this city. The tremendous crush that blocked the spacious lobby necessitated the opening of the doors a full hour before the beginning of the performance. When the lights were turned on, and the beauties of the renowned house dawned upon the audience, burst after ourst of applause rolled through the magnificent auditorium. The house was handsomely decorated with flowers, and the occasion will long be remembered as one of the most brilliant and successful local theatrical events in some time. The rising of the curtain on the Emma Juch Opera Co. was the signal for another prolonged round of applause from the enthusiastic audience, and the performance resulted in a pronounced success. At the other theatres, there was noted satisfactory attendance. "The Stepping Stone" received its local premier, to a good audience, at the Chestnut Street Opera House. The Duff Opera Co. opened at the Chestnut to a large house. . . . . Kate Castleton filled the Walnut. . . The Knights of Tyburn" crowded the National. . . H. W. Williams Co. had no vacant seats at the Central. . . "The Broom Maker of Carlsbad" did well at the Lyceum. . . The Bijou attracted large crowds. . . "Keep It Dark" fared well at Forepaugh's. . . "Across the Atlantic" had a good house at the Continental. . . "The Shatchen" crowded the Park. . . At the Kensington, "The Indian Mail Carrier" prospered. . . "The Long Strike" drew a good audience to the Standard. . . The Ninth and Arch Museum received its usual large open lug attention.

FROM OTHER POINTS.

Wirings from Here, There and Everywhere Regarding Business, Etc.

[Special Dispatches to The New York Clipper.]

CHICAGO, May 6.—With brand new plays and first class companies at three of the downtown theatres, Nellie McHenry in a new play at the Haymarket, "Master and Man" at the Clark Street Theatre, and a new opera and a new ballet at the Auditorium, it required only fair weather to open one of the most promising weeks of the season. . . . . Aug. Daly's Co., at Hooley's, had a magnificent reception in "The Great Unknown." . . . . . "Faust Up to Date" drew an overflowing audience at McVicker's, and Miss St. John made a big hit. WORCESTER, Mass., May 6.—The opening of Worcester's new theatre last night was an event in the history of the city, for not only is the community given a large and elegant place of amusement, but one which there is every reason to believe will be permanent and will be devoted to a uniformly high class of dramatic representations. The building is owned by a company of public spirited citizens, which has spared no expense to make it first class in every respect. It takes the place and the site of the old theatre which was burned a year ago, and is in every way superior. The opening performance was given by a good company, presenting "Shenandoah" to an audience which completely filled the house, and which included the best people of the city. The resident manager is J. F. Rock.

NOTE.—Manager Frank Chapman has received a patent for his new race course track, to be used in "The Flying Scud" next season.

Southern New Jersey Circuit.—Helene Adell closed two weeks of fair business at Morris' Opera House, BRIDGETON, May 3. "Fun in a Bakery," a musical comedy in three acts, said to be "the great European and New York success," was given a production at Wilson's Opera House, MILLVILLE, April 24. The story is taken from Parisian life during the time of Louis XIV, and the action introduces clodoche and revotte dances, which are featured. Of the performance, a noticeable lack of rehearsal is sufficient excuse for the postponement of criticism. The appropriateness of the title, by the way, does not strike me very forcibly. Of the cast, given in last week's letter, J. L. Mitchell, Harry Stevens, Alice Coleman, Joseph Allen, Aldrich Knight and Fanny Cohen should be mentioned as doing creditable work, especially the last three. The poor rendering of the music was a drag to the performance. P. Austin Crozier is manager, C. P. Fleming business manager and Louis Maurice musical director. Helene Adell plays a return week at this house May 5. . . . "Fun in a Bakery," at the Opera House, SALEM, April 25, had a light house. . . . Prof. Morris' Equine Paradox, which begins an Eastern tour at Green's Opera House, WOODBURY, May 8, 9, 10, arrived 2 from Louisville, Ky., it being Mr. Morris' intention to give them a short rest. . . . Forepaugh's Show at CAMDEN May 1 had fair attendance in the afternoon, and was unable to show in the evening, on account of damage done to the tents by the wind.

Paterson.—At Jacobs' Opera House: "The Two Johns" May 5-7. "A Rag Baby" 8-10. "Guilty Without Crime" 12-14. The Bennett Moulton Opera Co. closed a very satisfactory week 5. . . . The People's has changed hands again. The present lessee is Charles Martell, of the Martell Family. He enters into the management under very favorable conditions. He is well supplied with money, and as he will thoroughly renovate the house and change its outward appearance, his chances of success are much better than those of any of his predecessors. The season will be brought to a close by the presentation of "Fun in a Boarding School" 6 and week. Donnelly and Girard present "Natural Gas" 15-17, in aid of the charity fund of the local Elks.

Jersey City.—"A Texas Steer" opened the week at the Academy May 5 to a crowded house. A great many professionals were present, and the play received an immense send off. "The Knights of Tyburn" week of 12. Rose Coghlan closed her week to excellent business 5. . . Lilly Rufials, Mlle Bertha Brousil, Prof. Minor C. Baldwin and Carlos Florentine are at the Tabernacle 8.

TEXAS.

Houston.—At the Palace Theatre, business continued excellent. Retained: St. Leon and McCusick, Cal Cohen, Flo Williams, Wm. Hill, Lizzie Innes and Lee McCullough. Opened April 28: Sadie Linwood, Annie Petrie, Annie Howard, Stella Swan, Sadie Pierce and Jeannie Preston. James McCusick now occupies the place of Hank Adams as business and stage manager, Mr. Adams having resigned.

YELLOWSTONE KIT'S CONCERT AND MEDICINE CO. pulled up stakes 26, after eight weeks of big business.

Dallas.—At the Dallas Opera House, Jennie Calif gave a benefit to George Anzy April 30 and filled the house. . . . . Gibson and Boyle open at Hanlin's May 7. Alf Hues N. Morgan and Blanche Morgan. . . . At the Capitol, Billy Wolf, Sally Perry and Colman and Morton open 7. . . . The Oak Cliff Summer Theatre has been thoroughly overhauled and improved. In the auditorium the seats have been raised, and a system of storm shutters put up in place of the curtains formerly used in bad weather. The seating capacity has been increased to eighteen hundred, and everything put in first class style. The house, under the management of George Robinson, will open for the Summer season May 5, the first attraction being Jennie Calef. She will remain for two weeks, and a first class opera company has been engaged for the balance of the season. This theatre is very popular, and a prosperous season is looked for. . . . . Deacon Young, of Prof. Woodward's trained seals, is in town, and his attraction is booked for the opening of the City Park Pavilion Theatre 5.

Waco.—The season at the Garland Opera House closed April 19. J. G. Stuttz's Co. had the house for the five nights prior to that, and played to only fair business. The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, was held here at the same time, and the many receptions and entertainments provided for them interfered with the attendance at the theatre. On 9 the amateurs gave a performance for the benefit of the Entertainment Fund of the Knights of Pythias, and drew a good house. "My Uncle's Will," "Turn Him Out" and "Miles' Boy" formed the programme. . . . . The Park Theatre, a new and pleasant Summer resort, owned by L. Newburg and Geo. Levy, and managed by the former, with A. Lyons as treasurer, was opened April 21 with Jennie Calef as the attraction. The company played a week to good business, despite the fact that the weather was unfavorable most of the time. The theatre is fully supplied with water and has a seating capacity of seven hundred and is equipped with plenty of good scenery from the studio of Noxon & Toomey, of St. Louis. The stage measures 25x40ft., proscenium opening 22ft., gridiron height 25ft., two rigging lofts and five dressing rooms, each 9x12ft. After a short tour, the Jennie Calef Co. will return for the Summer, playing on an average of three nights a week. When other attractions come this company will be played in neighboring towns, under the management of Newburg & Levy. . . . The Park Theatre is located in Padgitt's Park, a beautiful spot ornamented with fountains, flowers, fine walks and elegant shade trees, and is a most comfortable Summer resort. Newburg & Levy deserve credit for their push and energy in supplying Waco with Summer amusements, and from present appearances the success of their venture is assured. . . . Owing to a misunderstanding regarding the date, the meeting of the Texas managers April 7 was slimly attended, and nothing was done. . . . On May 6 the amateurs will present "Richelieu" for the benefit of the Charity Hospital Fund. The past season at the Garland Opera House has been the most successful in its history, and already most of the time for next season is booked.

THE DAKOTAS.

Sioux Falls.—The Boston Stars canceled May 3, which date was filled by John Dillon in "Wanted the Earth." The Swedish Ladies' Octet come 10. The California Sporting World, of California, is covering this section with advertising matter in which it pays the "Old Reliable" a deserving compliment. It claims for itself the honor of being "THE CLIPPER of the great West."

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Victoria.—The Victoria Opera House, after a long spell of darkness, reopened April 28, 29, with amateurs in "Ermine." Mrs. Scott Siddons 30, Cleveland's Magnificent Minstrels May 1, 2. . . . At the Club Theatre: Minnie Flynn, Mollie Sommers, the Victorellis, W. Brantford, Minnie Branscombe and the stock. Business is good. Cleveland's "Magnificents" did some tall hustling here. They arrived here 28 at 6 P. M., left immediately for Nanaimo, seventy miles distant, played there 28, returned here and left at 4 A. M. 29, played Vancouver that date, left for Westminster 30, played there that night and returned here for their engagement May 1, 2.

DELAWARE.

Wilmington.—At Proctor & Soulier's Grand Opera House, the season will close May 31. Few attractions are thus far booked to fill the time until then. "Held in Slavery" played 1-3 to miserable business, skipping 2 that Kellar might appear, which he did to a fair house. Booked: "A Tin Soldier" 10. . . . Warren Martin, of this city, has accepted the position of private secretary to James E. Cooper, of the Forepaugh Show. . . . There is now no doubt about the Academy of Music being completed by May 15.

OREGON.

Portland.—At the Marquam Grand week of May 5, N. C. Goodwin Jr. The engagement of Mr. Goodwin will also be marked by the initial performance of "The Nominee," a new play by William Yardley. E. H. Sothern week of May 12. W. H. Crane week of 19. The Casino Opera Co. played to immense business week of April 21. "Paul Kauvar" made a decided hit 25. Camilla Urso gives a concert May 8.

CORDRAY'S.—"The Black Diamonds," with Essie and Minnie Tittell, was the attraction week of April 28.

Cincinnati.—The season is on the wane, and another week will see its virtual close, although Harris' Theatre will continue until the dog days. There is some talk of a supplementary season at Heuck's, where cheap prices will prevail, but this may or may not be carried out. Manager Harry Rainforth, of the Grand Opera House, declared to THE CLIPPER correspondent: "There is no good reason why May should not be as profitable a month for us as April. The season closes early because the newspapers virtually drive the combinations off the road. With the first breath of warm air come the paragraphs 'the season is dying,' and the companies are scared home. We could play three or four more weeks, but can get no attractions. Everybody is working East, and nothing good is coming West."

Wheeling.—Prof. Herrmann packed the Opera House to overflowing April 28, 29 (his first visit here in seven years). The benefit performances 30, by T. W. In the afternoon he played Cartier to Mr. Keene's Louis, and in the evening he took the part of Richmond to Mr. Keene's Richard. Mr. Hening has signed with Mr. Keene for next season. This young and promising actor has made himself what he is. Not many years ago he was a telegraph messenger boy in this city. Having a natural elocutionary gift and a love for the stage, he saved his earnings and devoted himself to study. Finally an opportunity presented itself; in the meantime, however, he had risen from a messenger's place to that of an expert telegrapher, filling the position of Associated Press operator. His start on the stage was in small parts, but by working at the telegraph desk during the Summer he managed to get along till by careful study and attention to business he reached a position where it was not necessary to eke out a living by toying with lightning. His ambition is not yet reached, and Mr. Henning bids fair to become quite prominent in time. Booth and Modjeska were at the Opera House 7, in "The Merchant of Venice." The demand for seats was something ahead of what was ever known here before, and a packed house was the result. The prices were $3 and $2.50, and Manager Reist's only regret is that he did not have the combination for two or more nights. Col. Reist was offered as high as $30 premium for seats before the sheet was put on sale, but refused them all. In this letter Miss Knox tells of the secret marriage of Sydney Durham and Bessie Clark, both members of "The Pearl of Pekin" Co. The young people had been married two months before they announced the fact to the other members of the company. They left the company at St. Louis and proceeded to New York. Mr. Durham was a former resident of this city, and both the young people have many friends here. The funeral was postponed until May 2, in order to allow Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Knox, father and mother of Miss Knox, and Mrs. Harry Hayes, a sister, to reach here from Alpine, Col. THE NEW YORK STAGE.

The reopening under the new management was Feb. 19, 1855, with "Rigoletto." The company consisted of Beagle Bolcioni and Ettore Barili (their first appearance in America), Cesare Badiali, Domenico Lorini, Luigo Rocco, Bertucca Maretzek, Patti, Strakosch, Coletti, Avogadro, Muller, Puinto, Leonardi and Baratini. Max Maretzek was musical director. The prices were: Parquet, circle and dress circle, $1; second circle, 50 cents; gallery, 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. "Il Trovatore" was brought out, for the first time in this country, April 30, 1855, with Vestvali as Leonore. Steffanone, Brignoli and Amodio were in the cast. The public went wild over it. The critics called it a revelation—a dramatic work which would never die, and was not likely to be equaled in the future.

A testimonial benefit to James W. Wallack Sr. occurred here afternoon and evening of May 29, 1855, and was one of the most successful demonstrations of the kind ever gotten up (at that time) in this city. Probably so large an audience never before convened within the walls of this building, the seats being all taken and every available inch of standing room closely contested. Among the committee of arrangements were the following: Edwin Forrest, E. L. Davenport, Henry Placide, Barney Williams, F. B. Conway, Chas. Walcot, John R. Scott, W. J. Florence, Geo. H. Barrett, William Davidge Sr., Wm. Rufus Blake, John Brougham, John Lester, James Stoddart, Fanny Vining (Mrs. E. L. Davenport), Louisa Pyne, Mrs. Melinda Jones, Kate Horn Buckland, Mrs. Barney Williams, Kate Reignolds, Mrs. Vernon, Mrs. Abbott, Rosa Bennett, Marion Macarthy, Mrs. John Hoey and many other prominent artists. Mr. Wallack, on being called before the curtain, made a graceful speech, and closed by saying "this affair was a free will offering to him by his company and others of his profession, and he accepted it, not, as some journals had hinted, as a mendicant (it having been so represented in several of the newspapers of the day), but as a gentleman." In "The Poor Gentleman" Rosa Bennett was billed for Emily Worthington, but did not appear, owing to illness, and Mrs. John Hoey was substituted for the role. The prices of admission were: For the afternoon, $1; no seats reserved. Evening, the prices were as usual at this house, viz.: Gallery, 25 cents; every other portion of the house $1, with 50 cents extra for reserved seats. The private boxes were sold at auction, at 11 Broad Street. Max Maretzek was the manager season of 1855–6. On Oct. 30, "Semiramide" was presented for the first time.

A benefit was given to George H. ("Gentleman George") Barrett, at this house Nov. 20, 1855, being the final retirement from the stage of this veteran actor. The programme was as follows: Final scene from "The Merchant of Venice," J. W. Wallack Sr. as Shylock (his first appearance in twelve months). Harry Placide as Launcelot Gobbo, Frazer as Lorenzo (in which character he introduced the serenade of "When Rosy Daylight Flies," and, with Georgiana Hodson, the duet, "I Love Thee"); Lanergan was the Bassanio, A. 	Julia Dean Hayne	Rowley	Henry
Mrs. Candour		Joseph's Servant
	Mrs. Brougham		L. J. Vincent
Maria	Mrs. Warren

William Rufus Blake and J. Lester were the stage managers, T. B. De Walden prompter and Max Maretzek leader of the orchestra. Previous to the comedy Mr. Barrett appeared before the curtain, having his children by the hand, and took leave of the public in a short and feeling address. He died in this this city Sept. 5, 1860. Who shall tell the privations he silently endured? Who picture the anguish of his sensitive feelings as he gasped away his life, sometimes in actual want, and rarely in the possession of the commonest domestic comforts? When the Dramatic Fund was compelled by its bad management to curtail its annuities, Barrett was thrown, with his interesting family, almost entirely upon the kindness of his friends. They were not forgetful; but even the best friends must fail to realize the manifold needs of the sick, the aged, the disheartened, the peculiar sufferings which none can feel except those who, accustomed to a florid existence, are tied down in the frost time of life to food both course and scant, while the Demon of Despair is tugging at their hearts, and sickness is racking with pain every bone and sinew. How few actors do have the prudence to "lay up" in the sunshine a store for a rainy day! How very few can get rid of the self conceit which whispers, when they are making money abundantly, that they shall ever do it—that the golden tide will never turn—that no darkness of night shall ever follow the noonday of their prosperity. George Horton Barrett was familiarly known as "Gentleman George." He was born at Exeter, Devon, Eng., Jan. 9, 1794, and made his first appearance on the American stage, 1796, as a child, in "Pizarro," at the Federal Street Theatre, Boston, Mass. In June, 1806, he appeared at the Park Theatre, New York, as Young Norval. In 1829 he was co-manager with Gilfert, of the Bowery Theatre. In 1847, he returned to England for the purpose of engaging talent for the opening of the Broadway Theatre, and in September became acting and stage manager of the theatre. He took his farewell of the stage at the Academy. The receipts reached nearly $3,000. On Feb. 15, 1858, he opened a school at 213 Bleecker Street, New York, to teach young aspirants for the stage. He had scarcely an equal as a light comedian in America.

La Grange and Mlle. Aldini, in the chief roles. Adelaide Phillips was announced to appear, but was prevented by illness. "Il Trovatore" was repeated 17, when Adelaide Phillips made her debut as Azucena.

Church was prompter; S. Wallis, properties; R. Williams, costumer, and F. C. Wemyss, stage manager. This was the first appearance, since his European tour, of Robert Johnston. James H. Jarrett rented the house for one night (Thanksgiving matinee), Nov. 20, for the purpose of presenting "The Drunkard, or the Fallen Saved." [TO BE CONTINUED.]

— At Hartford, Ct., April 30, the ceremony of unveiling the monument erected to the memory of Mary Hewins Fiske took place in Cedar Hill Cemetery. Many relatives and personal friends assembled for the occasion, and a party went up from New York to be present, among whom were Mme. Ponisl, Mrs. De Silva, George Waters and "Aunt Louisa" Eldridge. The polished shaft is of gray granite. It stands fourteen feet from the base, which is a massive block of rough stone five feet square. Upon one side appears in long letters in high relief the name, "Mary Hewins Fiske." The other side bears this inscription:

MARY H. FISKE.
1837 1889

Oh! Mother Earth, one boon from thee I ask,
Send up from out my breast some lovely flowers,
Whose far pervading perfume shall allure
And in the bondage of these dreadful hours
The blessed touch of human hands secure. M. H. F.

These lines are from some stanzas published several years ago over one of several noms de plume used by Mrs. Fiske. As if in answer to the wish expressed in this verse, a wreath of growing flowers was planted thickly about the foot of the monument, and covered the mound upon which it stands with color and fragrance. Garlands of smilax were wound about the shaft, and twined with red and white roses, and heaps of blossoms were scattered over the grave. The idea of this monument to Mrs. Fiske originated with "Aunt Louisa" Eldridge, who collected the necessary funds from friends of the dead woman. She then suggested the design for the monument, which has been admirably carried out by Stephen Masten.

AMONG THE PLAYERS EVERYWHERE.

— "Hans the Boatman" closes its season of thirty-five weeks May 10, at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia. During that time the company have visited most of the principal cities of the West, through California, Oregon, Washington, up the Puget Sound to British Columbia, returning through Southern California. They have experienced, probably, more obstacles than any company on the road this season, having lost seventeen nights by being blockaded in the snow for ten days on the Shasta Mountains, the washouts in Oregon, as well as the floods in Southern California, and again snowbound on the Central Pacific Railroad. The leading lady, Miss Gordon, lost her voice in Oregon, and had to be sent back to New York, and the property man got frightened at the prospect of an ocean voyage from Portland to San Francisco. The trip by steamer proved a dangerous one, as the vessel was overcrowded with passengers, there being over 300 on board, while she had accommodation for a trifle over 100. She sprung a leak the second day. The boats were lowered and preparations made for a speedy departure, but the leak was stopped, and the steamer proceeded on her way, arriving at San Francisco Wednesday morning, when she was due Tuesday night. The company are due in this city May 11.

— Clara Verner returned to this city April 29, having concluded a three months' season in Frank G. Campbell's stock company at Winnipeg, Man. She had made many friends in that frigid section, and brings back a number of very complimentary words from the Winnipeg critics. She will rest in town a few weeks before closing for the Fall season, and, if nothing turns up for the Summer, she may visit her home at Bridgeton, N. J. W. P. Sheldon, comedian of Mr. Campbell's stock, returns soon. He is to benefit before his departure. The season was quite successful, Miss Verner reports.

— The shelves of the library in the Players' Club now contain the books left by the late John Gilbert. They were presented to the club by Mrs. Gilbert, and number between two hundred and fifty and three hundred volumes. All the books relate to the drama, and they form a very fair history of the stage up to date. Many of them are valuable for reference. In the collection are a number of old and valuable playbills, many of them dating back to the early part of the century. The books are on the east side of the library, and face those given to the club by Lawrence Barrett.

— Lilla Vane has retired from the stage, to become Mrs. Samuel King early in June.

— Marion Vinton recently retired from the "Pearl of Pekin" Co., and is at present in this city.

— Mabel Love is said to have signed for Prof. Herrmann's Travesty Co., which opens at his Gaiety Theatre, this city, in the Fall.

— Grace Langley, who was with D'Oyly Carte's "Gondoliers" Co., did not go back to England with that troupe. She remains in America.

— Prof. Herrmann has purchased from A. P. Dunlop a sketch entitled "The Soul Master."

— P. T. Wright's Nashville Students closed their season at Mount Sterling, Ill., on account of sickness in the company. Billy Johnson is very ill at Barry, Ill., and Stella Martin is caring for her sick mother at Lawrence, Kas.

— The following is the roster of Hal. Reid's "A Homespun Heart" Co.: Hal. Reid, manager; Walter Mathews, Louis Wiethoff, Ed. Risley, Bertha Westbrook, Future Clark, Virgie Westbrook; John Benton, business manager; Robert Mattison, treasurer; O. C. Patton, advance, and James Mulvihill, master of properties.

— Tyrone Power will sail for England at the close of Janauschek's tour.

— T. A. Sweeney is still in this city, and has already received several highly advantageous offers for the coming season. He has been in J. M. Hill's employ for several years, and during that time has been most faithful in every particular, and a valuable man at all times. Mr. Sweeney is thoroughly capable as a manager, and his friends in and out of the profession are legion. He will easily arrange for next season in some responsible and big salaried position.

— A. M. Palmer's "Jim the Penman" Co. produced, May 5, at Norfolk, Va., Edward Alfriend's adaptation of W. D. Howells' novel, "A Foregone Conclusion." It is Mr. Palmer's intention to produce the play in this city in the Fall, with a company including Mrs. Sol Smith, Kate Gilbert, Sidney Bowkett, Edwin Travers and Hardy Vernon.

— At Toronto, Can., April 29, bailiffs were busy endeavoring to serve Mme. Albani with a subpœna, in an action taken against her for alleged breach of contract. The action was brought by J. F. Thompson, to recover $5,000, on the ground that the Canadian songstress failed to appear at Toronto in concert, when she had agreed with Mr. Thompson to go there. Mme. Albani and her husband, Mr. Gye, Mr. Thompson says, evaded service all day, and could not be seen by officers at their hotel, but in the evening, when there were six bailiffs waiting for them to appear outside the Grand Opera House, after the play, consented to be served with subpœnas in the manager's office. Mr. Gye said: "This action amounts to nothing. Some years ago, while in England, I wrote to Mr. Thompson, asking if there was any chance of holding concerts here. It was simply to make inquiries. I wrote him that we were not coming. Nothing was done, and no contract was made." The summons did not deter Mme. Albani from proceeding to Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec, at which cities she will appear this week. Her departure for England has been fixed for May 17. In case of non-compliance with the order to appear at the trial on 12, for judgment of the court, contempt will be incurred. If she disobeyed the summons, she would probably render herself liable to arrest at any time she set foot in Canada in the future.

— At Philadelphia, April 30, W. J. Gilmore, of the Central Theatre, obtained a verdict for $589 against Gustav Amberg, for breach of contract. Mr. Amberg contracted with Mr. Gilmore for a two weeks' production in 1885 with "The Devil's Auction" at Boston of the "Human Butterfly," a dazzling young woman with wings and wire who floated in the air over the audience. Mr. Gilmore had gone to great expense, had advertised the "Human Butterfly," and, when notified that she could not appear, had been to the expense of removing the Human Butterfly from the posters posted on the pavement, and had also been subject to a great humiliation by the Boston critics for failing to keep his word with the public. Last year Mr. Gilmore got a verdict for $567. Mr. Amberg got a new trial because he was not present at the first trial.

— The new drama by Franklin File is likely to be called "Overlook." It was written to the order of H. S. Taylor, who had discovered what he regarded as very strong stage matter in two novelettes by Mr. File, and the author thereupon wrote the play, putting into it the suitable characters and situations suggested by the stories. W. W. Tillotson will exploit it energetically, not only for the purpose of starring Anna Boyd in the principal role (which has been specially fitted to her by Clay M. Greene), but also because he believes the play to be a remarkable all 'round combination of comedy and melodrama. A careful selection of players for the markedly diversified personages is promised, and a week or two of tour will be made this Spring. Klaw & Erlanger will route it for next season, and elaborate scenery will then be provided. "Several of the climaxes," says Mr. Taylor, "are entirely novel and good. Mr. File has written a play that, in my best judgment, can't fail of great success. It has a distinctly romantic atmosphere, as all the action occurs in a rugged camp of Western railway builders, and the characters are unconventional—indeed, very curious and unique in several instances. The plot is absolutely new and original, and there isn't a hackneyed word or action; but at the same time no reckless experiments are embodied in the work, and the comedy assigned to Miss Boyd is such as she can't well fail to make a hit with—safe and sure. Clay M. Greene has enlarged the role for her, and Ben Teal has been advisory in the matter of several of the novel dramatic and scenic effects to be introduced. This is the first purely original American play that I have bought and sold, and I have great confidence in it."

— Georgie Hamlin is busy rehearsing her new four act comedy, "Little Vic," in which she has great confidence. Miss Hamlin will be under the management of P. G. Hamlin, who is having some new scenery painted, and will carry his own band and orchestra.

Miss Urquhart has had offers for dramatic engagements, and will leave comic opera for the drama. She will probably go to Europe in June, unless a Summer engagement in drama offers itself. SOME NEW PRODUCTIONS.

Bostonians See the First Production in America of "The Silver Falls."

Our Boston dispatch tells of the reception tendered the first performance in America of Geo. R. Sims' and Henry Pettitt's four act play, "The Silver Falls," which was done May 5, at the Boston Theatre. The piece was originally acted at the Adelphi Theatre, London, Eng., Dec. 22, 1888. The plot: Eric Normanhurst has been but a fortnight wedded to Lola, a Spanish American, whom he had wooed and won in Paris. Naturally, the bridegroom's exuberant feelings are dampened by the appearance of a detective, and the subsequent appearance of Dick Redmayne, who reveals the fact that Lola's antecedents are not of the best—in fact, they are said to be rather suspicious. She was prominently known in Paris as "La Belle Americaine," and was the recipient of too marked attentions not to be much talked about. Dick Redmayne's object is blackmail, and Marcos Valles, an old lover, ignorant of her marriage, comes to claim her companionship once more. Eric's uncle, Lord Avonmore, arrives with many proofs of the character of his nephew's wife, and the young husband resolves to seek oblivion from his troubles in a new country, under an assumed name. We next find Eric at a mining settlement in Mexico, where he has taken Dick Redmayne for a partner, and others seen earlier in the story are also there. Marcos Valles also shows up with the announcement that Lola, who, while on the way to rejoin her husband, died at New Orleans. This news sends Eric back to his home, where he marries Primrose Easterbrook, who had nursed Eric through a bad accident. The wedding feast is over, the guests have departed, and, for a short time, Eric is called away from his house. A heavy storm is raging. Some one comes to the door for shelter, and Primrose lets in Lola. Eric returns, and is horrified to find that his first wife is living. He pleads with the vindictive Lola to spare his innocent wife, who is heard calling him from another room. Marcos Valles reappears and settles matters by plunging a knife into Lola, who dies, and thus relieves Eric of his anticipated troubles.

"A Texas Steer."

Chas. H. Hoyt's new play, "A Texas Steer," received its initial presentation at New Bedford, Mass., April 28. "A Texas Steer" is a collection of saws and instances, supposed to bear more or less upon the extraordinary possibilities of American politics, and the development of statesmanship of the average type. The first act is laid at the doorway of Mr. Brander's house in Texas. Mr. Brander is a wealthy Texan, who lives a comfortable, yet homely, life upon his ranch, with his wife and daughter, the latter Miss Bossy. The latter explains that her father has been running for Congress, "and got there with both feet." He came by the position honestly, she says, because he paid all it was worth for it. Meanwhile, the Senator elect is taken off his wagon seat, and is brought home in triumph. The second act occurs in the private reception room at the Arlington. The Branders wear some dresses of marvelous hues, and yet their tastes are not vulgar. They have had their dresses made at San Antone, and got the best afforded by the modistes there, and now they begin to understand that they are not just the proper form. A number of light character sketches of a caricatural nature are introduced, notably a colored office seeker. Some of the dialogue of this act is clever. In the third act the colored office seeker turns up again in a most dilapidated condition, and his story of disappointed hopes at Washington is quietly and effectively told. To Brander's house comes an investigating committee from Texas, to investigate the reports of his conduct. The idea is cleverly worked out, and constitutes one of the successes of the piece. Miss Bossy and her mother have profited by their life at Washington, and the the former is now a society queen, and quite the fashion. The cast: Maverick Brander, Tim Murphy; Capt. Fairleigh Bright, W. S. Harkins; Yell, Otis Harlan; Bragg, J. C. Miron; Blow, M. J. Heckert; Brassy Gall, Esq., George A. Beane Jr.; Col. Pepper, James Horan; Christopher Columbus Jr. Fishback, George F. Marion; Knott Innitt, Julian Mitchell; Othello Moore, Barry Maxwell; Lieut. Greene, James Horan; Sergeant-at-arms, C. L. Warren; Anatole, a valet, George A. Beane Jr.; Crab, John Deady; Mink, Olney Griffin; Sam, Frank Baldwin; Inspector Slowboy, John Deady; Mrs. Brander, Mrs. Alice Walsh; Mrs. Major Campbell, May Stuart; Dixie Stile, Alice Evans; Bossy, Flora Walsh.

"The Midnight Call."

This three act comedy, by Wm. H. Rightmire, was originally acted at Proctor's Theatre, Bridgeport, Ct., April 26. The plot: Robert Lawrence finds by the roadside a young child, and, as she has in one hand a poppy torn from a woman's dress, she is called by that name and adopted by his mother. The school marm of the village is an adventuress, who is in love with Robert, while he is engaged to marry Lillian Payne the night we are introduced to the characters. Ricardo, a Mexican adventurer, is in love with Lillian, too, so he and Adele, the adventuress, pool issues and entice Lillian to the schoolhouse, where Ricardo declares his love, and, being repulsed, swears she shall either marry him or die, and stabs her. A knock is heard, and they conceal themselves, while Dick, Poppy's lover, comes in and looks for a note Poppy promised to leave. He goes out without discovering Lillian. Lillian comes to, and writes on the blackboard that she has been murdered by Ricardo. She faints, and the conspirators enter and prepare to remove Lillian, when Poppy's voice is heard outside. Ricardo gets behind the door with Lillian in his arms, and when Poppy enters Adele throws a shawl over her head, Ricardo escaping unseen. Robert enters, looking for Lillian. Adele accuses Poppy, and she discovers the writing on the blackboard, and the act ends. Act two discloses a ballroom corridor in New York. The conspirators are congratulating themselves on the success of their plots. Matthew Payne discovers in Poppy his lost daughter. Ricardo has the usual paper. Poppy pretends to drink with him, and substitutes a blank one. Adele enters, asks for the paper. She discovers the substitution and accuses Poppy, who sends out the midnight call, and the police arrest Ricardo. Act three discloses the house of the Paynes. Robert and Lillian are married. Ricardo is in prison. Adele appears, and announces she will go away and lead a better life. She appeals to Lillian to give her the money for a start, but Lillian refuses. Adele tears her diamonds from her, and threatens to shoot if she alarms the house. Everybody enters. Adele is discovered and forgiven, the money is given her to depart in peace, Poppy accepts Dick, and all is over. The cast: Adele Marion, Bessie Taylor; Lillian Payne, Fanny Temple; Sophie, a scholar, Jennie Whitbeck; Dick Garrett, Geo. W. Larsen; Ricardo Alvarez, I. W. McCready; Robert Lawrence, Lawrence Williams; Matthew Payne, Milton Halley; Captain Lawrence, Frank Liden.

"Ujiji."

This American comic opera, by Messrs. Frankel and Hartley, was sung for the first time on any stage, May 5, at Scranton, Pa. The story begins with the adventures of Austin Gordon, the owner of various coal mines, a millionaire widower, whose son, Ray, was stolen during his travels through Africa in his infancy. This son he mourns as dead, and has adopted a girl (May Gordon) in his place. The father laments the death of his son for nineteen years, as no tidings have been received from him. The son, ignorant of his origin, escapes from his abductors, and goes to America, assuming the name of Ned Fairfax. Act one shows a landscape of a mining town, and upon this scene trips a bevy of maidens, singing a pastoral song. May Gordon is of the party. The majority of the maidens elect to visit the steel mills, while May decides to remain at the breaker, where her lover is employed as an engineer. Ned, the engineer, meets his sweetheart. Then comes the advent of Mr. Gordon on the scene, who on discovering the attachment, firmly vows his daughter shall never marry Ned. He begins to oppose the lovers with a furious tirade, but his words are drowned by the clatter of the maidens, who return at this stage and take in the situation at a glance. Mr. Gordon declares that, rather than permit the union of Ned and May, he will send his daughter to Ujiji. This accords with the wishes of Ned, whose boyhood was passed in that town. He expresses his appreciation aside, and a grand ensemble closes the act. The second act shows New York Bay and the departure of an ocean steamer, bearing May and her father on their exile to Africa. In the first scene of act third we are introduced to a night view of Lake Tanganyika. Ujiji in the distance. Chimpanzee moonlight dances open the scene, followed by Bedouin drill and chorus. May Gordon and her companions, Alderman McGlone and servants, comprise a party of visitors. Friendly greetings with the worriers of Ujiji took place, after which overtures are made with King Muni Khari, and friendly relations are established with his people. Time passes, and May Gordon grows more and more disconsolate. The despairing father confides his trouble to the King, who in turn consoles him with the assurance that he will cause a new light to beam in the eyes of the pale maiden. The soft music of the Nirgandi (guitar), under the skillful playing of the King, awakens memories in the mind of the maiden. The music is familiar, and she feels her heart thrilled with new hope; her lips, that will now have been sealed, give their first utterance on the dark continent, and, to the amazement of all, she gives herself to the King. Gordon, frenzied at this unexpected turn, charges the King with duplicity by alienating his daughter's affections; this imputation the King mildly protests against, and, when Gordon threatens him with bodily harm, bares his breast to receive the uplifted spear. Gordon drops the spear on beholding a circlet around the King's neck, by which circlet he is recognized as the long lost son of Gordon. The happy union of May, his adopted daughter, to Ray, his son, forms a pleasing denouement. The cast: May Gordon, Jean Douglas; Dot, Jessie Bertman; Captain of bicycle gallants, First Maiden, Alice Poinsett; Ned Fairfax, Muni Khari, W. H. Emrich; Austin Gordon, Harry L. Knapp; Hirsute McGlone, Ted M. Ruppert; Marbruki, J. F. Zang; Bedouin, Arthur Coglizer; Jack Cinbs, J. J. Loftus; Arthur Scribbler, D. J. Moyles; First Mountebank, W. H. Loftus; Wing, H. U. Hopewell; Soko, I. Lewis; Telegraph Operator, Uncle Sam.

"The Blue Officer."

This three act drama, by "Ary Ecliaw," was acted for the first time in English April 28, at the Madison Square Theatre, this city. Its merit and lack of merit are elsewhere referred to. It is said to be the work of a titled Russian lady, and was once accepted for production at the Paris Gymnase; but it was interdicted by the French censor, and was later played at the Theatre de la Renaissance, Brussels. The plot implicates thirteen persons, who contrive by means of much soliloquy, but no action, to tell a thin and incredible story of alleged life in St. Petersburg. During two acts the Countess Delcroff is seen to be scheming for the ruin of the Countess Jassy, but her plot is clumsy and her scheme transparent. Herself a spy, she steals certain papers from the Minister of War, and causes them to be secretly placed in the Countess Jassy's writing desk, where they are found by the police. The Count and Countess Jassy are then arrested, and presently are vindicated. The Prince D'Oblansky, who loves the Countess Jassy, is appointed to conduct her examination, and it is then that he makes his cowardly and infamous proposal, that if she will give him her love, he will save her husband's life and her own, which otherwise stand in peril for alleged treason against the government of Russia. The means by which the accused persons are exculpated are quite as flimsy as those by which they are ensnared. At the last the Prince D'Oblansky, rather than marry the prettiest woman in the place, puts his brains to the best use they could serve, by blowing them out.

"The Maid of Seville."

This comic opera, by E. C. Black, was given by amateurs at the Euclid Avenue Opera House, Cleveland, O., April 28, for charitable purposes. The printed libretto describes "The Maid of Seville" as "an operatic medley," nearly all the solos, concerted pieces, choruses and instrumental music having been culled from popular operas. The story is of a Yankee sailor who fell in love with a Spanish maid. A decrepit duke had also been smitten with the maiden's charms, and exercised his authority to obtain her for his wife. In order to bridge over the disparity in age, the duke had recourse to the rejuvenating influence of the elixir of life. Tribulations ensue all around, but in the end the denouement is ingeniously made happy for all with whom the audience are in sympathy. The cast: Don Emmanuel Sebastian Alfonso, E. C. Beach; Don Ovan Rosa, H. W. Judd; Boobo, Charles H. Hopper; Ralph Ralston, Charles L. Jaster; Pedro de Bunco, J. B. Lang; Pauline (the Maid of Seville), S. C. Ford; Martha, Mrs. Heywood-Hoynes; Carlotta, Mrs. C. S. Day; Don Carlos, J. F. Isham; Alphonse, Adam Weil; Don Cameron, George Duckett.

"Lady Peggy."

On Sunday night, May 4, at the Haymarket Theatre, Chicago, Nellie McHenry produced for the first time on any stage "Lady Peggy," a comedy drama by R. F. Carroll and F. A. Tannehill Jr. The plot hinges on a girl (Peggy), who has been brought up by a French rogue, the keeper of a "fence," and general thief. She is palmed off upon a rich old man as his long lost daughter by the "Dook" (as they call the Frenchman) and the heavy man, who, years before the opening of the play, loves the girl who married the rich old man, and whom the latter had separated from, believing her guilty of accepting the devotion of her former lover. Of course, Peggy, who finally realizes what she has done in assuming the character of the long lost daughter, betrays the plot and goes back to her old life of misery and degredation. In the end it is proven that Lady Peggy really is the long lost daughter. The forsaken wife and mother is restored to the arms of her husband and daughter. The villains are killed and arrested for murder, respectively, and the folks go home. In the third act the audience are treated to a sensation, with a dog in it. Scene, a river front, docks, Bartholdi's Liberty, and Hoboken in the distance. The old man's head is smashed by the villain, and the body is thrown overboard. The soubrette can't swim, but she has a dog that can. The dog dives, and the old man is spared. Next!

VAUDEVILLES AND THE MINSTRELS.

THE following, signed by Mullaney and Daley, Fred Shattuck, Charles Lorraine and John J. Burns, explains itself: "In your last week's issue Manager Bunnell, of New Haven, Ct., claims he advanced the Gussie Bellewood Burlesque Co. $300 from his own pocket, and that he was a loser thereof. We wish to contradict this statement, as none of the company was advanced any money whatever. The $300 that Manager Bunnell claims he was out we can prove were the receipts of the house, which Manager W. R. Falls tried to withhold from the company. Manager Bunnell also states he advanced the company $100 to get out of town. This we also deny, as our salaries were all paid up to the Saturday night previous." Manager Wm. R. Falls writes from Chicago under date of May 1, giving his version as follows: "Regarding the closing of the Bellwood Burlesque Co., at New Haven April 23, I wish to have it understood that the company did not strike as a body, but only the malcontents, numbering six out of a total of seventeen. They did not strike for back pay, but simply for the three current days, Monday to Wednesday, as they had been paid in full to and including Saturday, 19. Furthermore, it was not a question of salary that prompted their action, but one of spite. The statements that Mr. Bunnell advanced any money to pay salaries, and that he gave the company $100 with which to leave town are erroneous."

CLARK G. BALL, who was a CLIPPER caller May 1, announced the closing of the Howard Burlesque Co. 3 at Brooklyn. He remains with the company next season, having been re engaged at a handsome and well deserved advance in salary.

EDWARD AND LOUISE LORRETT close their season May 10, at Miner's Bowery Theatre, this city. They will spend the Summer at their home at Oswego, N. Y.

JOHN VIDOCQ will again be the business manager of Gouvenator's Atlantic City, N. J., Pavilion for the Summer. The pavilion this year will be 425 by 75ft.

HARRY AND FLORA BLAKE seem to be much pleased over the recent presentation of a pug puppy.

MR. AND MRS. DUTCH DALY sailed for Europe May 3.

J. H. SMITH, of Smith, Ewald & Co.'s Minstrels, reports the closing of the show at Stevens' Point, Wis., April 25. Mr. Smith complains of unprofessional treatment from Mr. Ewald.

PROF. F. H. GELLENTIEN, lecturer at the Birmingham, Ala., Dime Museum, will join Johnson's World of Wonders as manager, May 8.

TREASURER M. E. LEATHE, of the Gaiety Musee, Taunton, Mass., complains that the Higgins Bros. closed abruptly at that house, after giving only one performance, April 28.

J. H. HEWITT has closed with Clifton's Wonder and Specialty Co., after a prosperous season as advance agent, and has joined Chas. Lee's Circus as treasurer.

NEW YORK CITY.

Review of the Week.—There was a single and a singular novelty for the theatrical week ended May 3. The MADISON SQUARE, vacated by its own company, put forth the new thing. It did not excite interest in any marked degree, though it had been well advertised, and possessed a foreign record besides. It was "The Blue Officer," an English translation or adaptation of "L'Officier Bleu," a drama that had been tried at the Theatre de la Renaissance, Brussels, after the Paris officials had interdicted it at the Gymnase. The programme at the Madison Square announced the author rather obscurely as "Ary Ecliaw." This was the cast: Prince D'Oblansky, Henry Lee; Count Henkendorff, Henry Holland; Count Jassy, Clarence Handyside; Dr. Periakoff, George Osbourne; General Wourapoff, Evelyn Evans; De Janson, Wm. Spencer; Tobeleff, Thomas Joyce; Wourashkine, A. L. Rankin; Ivan, William Hatter; Princess Sistoff, Donna Madixxa; Helene, Countess Jassy, Selina Fetter; Nadia, Genevieve Lytton; Countess Delcroff, Rose Eytinge. In another column we present a synopsis of the plot. The drama did not suffer from incompetent acting, but failed on its own weaknesses, which were structural in the main. The dialogues and arrangement of climaxes gave evidence of an unskilled hand at play making. Very little strength was developed in the sketches of the various characters, and even as a political sermon the piece cannot be said to have made an impression. Henry Lee, Genevieve Lytton, Selina Fetter and Rose Eytinge are to be commended for earnest and careful acting. The play ran through the week to unprofitable audiences.....At the AMBERG, a week of German drama and opera was interrupted April 29 by the production of a new four act farce by G. Von Moser and E. Thun, called "Die Amazone." It was done as a benefit to Herr Ottbert, who played the chief role. The piece itself is a long drawn out and not overwhelmingly amusing effort of the mock Labiche order so popular in Germany. The plot begins with a kiss in a railway car, and ends with several marriages. In the last act the authors extract some fun from the supposed suicide of the sham horsewoman of the title, and the discovery of her riding habit in the apartment of a worthy old gentleman, who has been paying her attentions. Herr Ottbert was warmly applauded, and had several bouquets presented to him. This was the full cast: Plumicke, Herr Rank; Grunlich, Herr Friese Sr.; Arthur Prinz, Herr Ottbert; Vorberg, Herr Horwitz; Julie, Frl. Kuhn; Rika, Frl. Burg; Marie, Frl. Bella; Frau Schnabel, Frl. Schmitz. The Amberg's second German novelty of the week was found in a comic operetta, "Morilla," by Julius Hopp, sung for the first time here night of 2, for the benefit of Carola Englaender, who sustained the title role. At the end of the first act the little lady had any number of floral trophies given her. The manifestation was repeated later in the evening. Morilla is a peasant girl, who has had a magic ring presented her by the fairies, thanks to which she wins the love of Prince Leo, outwits the Inquisition and works a revolution in a fantastic realm, for convenience called Andora. The favor with which the piece was received was largely due to the dainty and eccentric dancing of Mlle. Staccione, whose name did not adorn the bills. Mlle. Staccione was ably seconded by Arnold Kiralfy, the terpsichorean humorist, and a bevy of pretty skirt dancers. .....The Charity Ball" at the LYCEUM, "The County Fair" at the UNION SQUARE, "The Old Homestead" at the ACADEMY, "Money Mad" at the STANDARD, "The Senator" at the STAR, "The Grand Duchess" at the CASINO, Stuart Robson in "The Henrietta" at PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET, the London Gaiety Co. in "Faust Up to Date" at the BROADWAY, Daniel Sully in "The Millionaire" at the PARK, "The Stepping Stone" at PALMER'S and "The City Directory" at the BIJOU were the continued bills. The London Gaiety Co. closed their two weeks' return engagement at the Broadway May 3, to an average of fair houses. Daniel Sully's fortnight of "The Millionaire" at the Park, as well as the regular season of that house, also ended 3, as did the two weeks' transfer of "The Stepping Stone" to Palmer's. There was no performance at the last named house Monday night, April 28, owing mainly to the failure of John A. Lane to report for duty. But Mr. Lane doubtless had a substantial excuse, for on Tuesday night he and Sydney Rosenfeld had adjusted their differences, and the play was given throughout the remaining nights. The engagement was not successful, however. A professional matinee of "Money Mad," May 1, crowded the Standard to the doors. Georgie Drew Barrymore was ill night of 1, and her place in the cast of "The Senator" was filled by Lizzie Hudson, while Leonora Bradley played Miss Hudson's part. Mrs. Barrymore resumed her role afternoon of 3.....The unoccupied theatres were DOCKSTADER'S, the METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE and the FIFTH AVENUE.....These were the week stands finished May 3: "The Two Johns" at JACOBS' THIRD AVENUE, "Jim the Penman" at NIBLO'S, R. B. Mantell in "Monbars" at the PEOPLE'S, "Held by the Enemy" at the HARLEM OPERA HOUSE, James A. Herne's "Hearts of Oak" Co. at the WINDSOR, "Kajanka" at the GRAND OPERA HOUSE, Monroe & Rice's "My Aunt Bridget" Co. at the FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE and "Under the Gaslight" at the HARLEM COMIQUE. There was no performance at the Harlem Opera House night of 1. Manager Hammerstein neglected to renew his expired theatrical license, and Police Captain Hooker arrested him and Joseph Humphreys, of the cast, interrupted the performance and dismissed the audience. Mr. Hammerstein was at once bailed out by his treasurer. He vows that it is persecution. .....FILLING'S, the THALIA and the NEW LONDON continued to delight their Hebrew patrons..... The three weeks' season of the Barnum & Bailey Circus at the OLD POLO GROUNDS closed 3, to an average of very large business.....Rosina Vokes' third week at DALY'S was, perhaps, the most successful in her engagement so far. She revived "The Circus Rider" and "My Lord in Livery," and, in addition, her company played "Awakening," which is "Tears, Idle Tears," by a new title. This rather sombre but effective little drama was done in town not long ago by the Kendals, at a benefit performance. Miss Vokes' company presented it in a very praiseworthy manner, Courtenay Thorpe and Eleanor Lane doing the best work.....The last lecture to be delivered at STEINWAY HALL was that of May 2, by H. E. Krehbiel, on "The Precursors of the Pianoforte." With Mr. Krehbiel's lecture Steinway Hall closed its noble record of nearly a quarter of a century as a place of musical and literary entertainment. It begins now a humbler but still a very useful career as a place of storage for the pianos manufactured by its owners. It was built in 1866, at a cost of $250,000, behind the marble business building that the Messrs. Steinway had put up some five years before, and it jumped at once into popular favor, opening on the evening of Oct. 31 of that year with a concert at which Mme. Parepa and Sig. Brignoli sang, the pianist S. B. Mills played and Theodore Thomas conducted.....The Actors' Fund always has such attractive bills for its benefits that the houses are always crowded, and the one at Palmer's afternoon of 2 was no exception. Every seat was taken and many people stood through the long performance. The music was furnished by the united orchestras of the Madison Square and Palmer's Theatres, under the direction of Herman Brode and Frank Howson, and after the overture John Russell's Co. gave the first act of "The City Directory." Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Florence, Mrs. John Drew and company played the second act of "The Rivals," after which Carmencita pleased the spectators with some Spanish dances. Robert C. Hilliard recited "Lasca," and was followed by the Monroe-Rice Co. in the second act of "My Aunt Bridget." Marshall P. Wilder gave a monologue, and E. J. Lonnen sang "Killaloo." F. F. Mackay's comedy, in one act, "Out This Evening—Home Tomorrow," was played by himself and Mrs. Rachel McAuley, and, after a recitation by William G. Beach, the pas de quatre from "Faust up to Date" was danced by Lillian Price, Florence Levy, Maude Wilmot and Edith Rayner. The performance ended with the last act of "The Stepping Stone." The receipts amounted to about $2,100.....Dr. Hans Von Bulow's last piano recital at the Broadway occurred afternoon of 2, before a large audience. He will appear once more in this city, in conjunction with Herr D'Albert, at the Metropolitan, afternoon of 12, with a public rehearsal afternoon of 11. The Theodore Thomas' Orchestra will assist.

"NATURAL GAS" was seen again in town, MAY 8, at the Grand Opera House, with virtually the same cast that presented it at the Fifth Avenue recently. It was enjoyed by a large audience. Roland Reed comes to the Grand 19 and week. The English opera season opens 26, under J. W. Morrissey's management.

THOMAS HIGGINS, a member of the "Frog Hollow" gang, went to the Theatre Comique, Harlem, April 30, and threw banana peelings from the gallery at the people in the orchestra seats. He was fined $10 in the Harlem Police Court May 1.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD" is in its final week at the Academy. The Duff Opera Co. open there MAY 12, in "Pinafore." Digby Bell, Laura Joyce Bell and Chauncey Olcott will be in the cast.

STUART ROBSON'S third week at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre started May 5, with a large attendance. The revival of "The Henrietta" has scored an emphatic success. It will close 17.

AT the Casino, Monday evening, MAY 5, was celebrated the annual "floral night," and "The Grand Duchess" was then sung for the seventy-fifth consecutive time. The theatre was crowded, and the decorations of flowers were quite picturesque.

THE ADVERTISING AGENTS' SOCIETY will hold their next meeting Sunday, May 19, at the Bijou. Dave Lowinsky is not a member, nor will his vocation admit of his becoming a member, of this society. The meetings will be held at the Bijou for the present, and nowhere else, as previously announced. All advance agents in good standing are eligible for membership.

STANDARD THEATRE.—"Money Mad" was given at a professional matinee May 1, when the theatre was filled. The piece is evidently a popular success, and the audiences rule large at all performances. There is no announcement of the closing of the present run.

ROBERT A. DUNCAN'S BENEFIT at the Union Square Theatre Sunday evening, May 28, is working along in great shape. His many friends are coming nobly forward for tickets, and his list of volunteers is already very long. He will give a great entertainment, and the result should be very large.

LITTLE TUESDAY, the child actress and vocalist, is to be given a testimonial at the Star, Sunday evening, May 18. Many popular actors and actresses have volunteered, and an attractive programme will be presented.

JAMES BARTON KEY, of the Actors' Amateur Athletic Association, appeared in the Jefferson Market Court last week, and withdrew his charge against Henry B. Clark, the property man who was arrested a week ago, on a charge of stealing two umbrellas. Mr. Clark was discharged.

GEORGIA E. CAYVAN has purchased from A. A. Feets the building No. 351 West 122d Street, for $17,000. This is Miss Cayvan's second purchase of city realty.

THE HAYMARKET, a notorious dance hall at Sixth Avenue and Thirtieth Street, was closed forever night of April 30. There was a big celebration until 10 o'clock. The proprietor says he gave up because he couldn't make a living without a liquor license. Worth's New Museum will occupy the site in the Fall.

HUBER'S PALACE MUSEUM.—The curio hall list for the week of May 5 is particularly strong, being made up as follows: J. W. Coffey, the Indian Band, Colorado Charlie, Otto Topfer, Zamasa, Prof. Allen Bell, Marco Castagne, Mme. Berenice and daughter, Gomez and Leon, Annie Leak Thompson, George Williams and others. The auditorium contingency for this week is: John and Pauline Richards, John and Jennie Nesbitt, Girard and Earle, Geo. C. Marshall, May Wentworth, Ida Florence, Rosina, Edward Clarance and Master Thomas Carr.

KOSTER & BIAL'S.—There is no denying the fact that Carmencita has made a great success at this house. She is the one attraction that crowds the spacious hall at every performance, and the management have arranged to continue her engagement indefinitely. The specialties announced for the week of May 5 are as follow: A. O. Duncan, Wilton and Mora, Ella Wesner, Max Pettengill, Delhaur and Debrimont, and others.

BIJOU THEATRE.—"The City Directory" continues its long and successful run here, the audiences being extremely large at all performances. The amusing entertainment will finish the season at the Bijou with an unsurpassed record in this city. The one hundredth performance occurs May 7, and will not be celebrated with souvenirs. The piece and company hardly need this inducement to increase the attendance or success.

"THE GRAND DUCHESS" will close its run at the Casino very soon, and Chassaigne's "La Bresiliene," under some other title, will be done. Eva Johns will succeed Fanny Rice as Wanda, in "The Grand Duchess," May 12, Miss Rice retiring to take a well earned vacation. Miss Johns is an exceedingly bright girl, and has played Wanda quite successfully at one or more performances. Marie Halton is to have the principal part in the new opera. Lillian Russell and Isabelle Urquhart will rest this Summer, the latter taking a long proposed trip to Europe.

UNION SQUARE THEATRE.—"The County Fair" began its final month here this season May 5, the house, as usual, holding a fine audience. Neil Burgess, the star, and David Towers, the popular and capable manager of the company, are more than pleased with the great triumph they have had at the Union Square, and their well earned rest this Summer will be keenly enjoyed.

MERRY MARSHALL P. WILDER announces his annual entertainment for Monday afternoon, May 19, at the Broadway. De Wolf Hopper, Sig. Perugini, Blanche Stone Barton, Edward Kendall, Ollie Torbett, Lillian Russell, R. F. Carroll, Sig. Sapio, Agnes Stone and others will appear. It ought to be a jolly entertainment.

"EXPIATION," a drama by Mrs. Henry Graeve, will be tested at a special matinee at the Union Square May 7. Adelaide Fitzallen, Helen Leslie, Clarence Handysides, Miss Jack Allen and others will appear. H. J. Sargent is managing the venture.

THE GRAND MUSEUM, under the able management of Geo. W. Fursman, has proved a success beyond expectations, notwithstanding the warm weather. Business continues large, and it is Mr. Fursman's present intention to keep open all Summer. The attractions this week: Curio hall—Rustin, long haired Ceylon; McGelley's shadowgraphs, Carl Micheals (strong man), Guyascutis, or What is It? Cassie Cassonandra, the Four Julus and Mrs. Murray's triplets. In the theatorium on the first floor, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," by Peck & Fursman's Co. The other floors are filled with rare novelties. Altogether the bill at the Grand is a proof of Mr. Fursman's desire to please the people of the East Side.

RICHARD MANSFIELD'S Summer engagement at the Madison Square opened auspiciously night of May 5, with a careful and generally praiseworthy revival of "A Par

THIS is the last week of the long and prosperous run of "The Senator" at the Star. Next week, Lewis Morrison and M. B. Curtis give the first New York performance of "The Snatchen."

THE testimony in the case of James F. Hyde, the theatre ticket speculator who killed William Turnbull, a rival ticket speculator, was presented to Justice White in the Jefferson Market Police Court May 2, having been taken before a stenographer. Justice White said he would read the evidence carefully, and give his decision in a few days.

THE last week of Prof. Gleason's stay at the Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street building opened May 5 to continued good business.

THE Park is dark this week. It will probably not open before the Fall.

DALY'S THEATRE.—Rosina Vokes entered on her fourth week at this house May 5, retaining last week's programme ("Awakening," "The Circus Rider" and "My Lord in Livery"), and again amusing a large audience. Her engagement continues until 24.

THE Mistletoe Dramatic Society, under J. B. Hefter's management, presented the comedy, "Our Domestics," at the Central Opera House, April 29. The performance was comparatively smooth, and between the acts John B. Hefter gave some enjoyable banjo selections. Essie Burke, eight years of age, rendered the overture to "Lohengrin" on the piano very artistically, and Harry Brooks gave imitations. A reception followed the performance.

MRS. RACHEL MCAULEY, who produces "Clarisse, or a Wife's Wit," at the Madison Square Theatre May 15, has engaged Eben Plympton for the leading role. Ian Robertson, Howell Hansel, Jerome F. Stevens, May Dowling and Ida Waterman will also be in the cast.

SUNDAY NIGHT DIVERSIONS.—Manager Frank M. Reynolds' testimonial at the Star Theatre, evening of May 4, was well attended. The following entertainers appeared: Harry Braham and his orchestra, James Fagan, F. F. Mackay, Annie Hart, Lester and Allen, S. J. Monroe, Masters F. and E. Witmark, I. Witmark, Jennie Yeamans, Master Harri, Little Johnny McKever, Isabelle Urquhart, Kate Davis, R. F. Carroll, Little Alice Pierce, Master Quinn, T. J. Cronin, Frederic Solomon, Ed. Rosner, accompanist, and others. P. S. Gilmore's Band appeared in a popular programme at the Grand Opera House on the same evening, the attendance being large. Edward J. O'Mahony, Henry Koche, Blanche Stone Barton, Ida Klein, Herman Bellstedt, Herr Matus and E. A. Lefebre appeared in solos. Prof. Cromwell's illustrated lecture at the People's Theatre on the evening of 4 was well attended.

DORIS' MUSEUM.—A decided novelty in museum exhibits is offered here as one of the principal attractions during the present week, in the form of an aquatic contest between four women, clad in regulation costume, and under the tutelage of J. W. Kennedy, the carsman. They appear at every performance. John J. Darlington (living skeleton), R. T. James (fat boy), Mlle. Lazzette, with her troupe of trained birds, Barney O'Toole (chimpanzee), Gus and the occasion promises to be a brilliant society event. White's Punch and Judy, and an interesting collection of queer things make the curio hall unusually attractive at this time. "De Jolnville's New Orleans Comedy Co." are the entertainers in the theatre hall.

MINER'S EIGHTH AVENUE THEATRE.—One of the strongest house companies this season is on for this week. Monday's opening performance filled the house, and the old time favorites were cordially received. Harry and John Kernell head the bill, which contains also the following clever people: Maggie Cline, Charles Carle, the Fremonts, Baldwin and Daly, the Sheerans, Clem C. Magee and Nellie Parker, Lottie Elliot, Charles G. Seymour, John Marion and Herman. Next week, another house company.

THE 5 A'S BENEFIT has been postponed until Tuesday afternoon, May 27. The affair will take place at the Metropolitan Opera House, and the biggest kind of a bill will be offered. The annual election of officers of the ocurrs place 11, and two tickets are in the field. De Wolf Hopper heads one and Charles W. Thomas the other. Both are good men and true, the latter being the present president of the club and a most efficient officer. Under his term the club has prospered wonderfully, and it owes much of its sound standing to his clear headed management. Besides being efficient, he is very popular, and will give the able comedian in opposition a hard rub in the election. Both have the club's good at heart, and whoever wins the organization will not take a step backward. Managers and actors meet there on an equal footing, and the association is one of material advantage to both. Out of town managers are always made welcome, and at the handsome club house, at 43 West Twenty-eighth Street, fine gatherings of members are seen at all times, this being especially so after the theatre performances. It is not an expensive club, by any means, though the members enjoy a choice cuisine, and the lodging rooms of the club house are nearly always rented. The Summer club house at Whitestone, L. I., is being put in fine order, and the Sunday excursions thither have already commenced. Many of the fine rooms at Whitestone have been engaged for the Summer, and a gala outing is assured the members and their fortunate invited guests.

H. R. JACOBS' THIRD AVENUE THEATRE—"The Red Spider" received a successful metropolitan premier Monday, May 5, and met the expectations of the two audiences on that day. The play was first seen in the West. The full cast at the Third Avenue is: Dakota, Joseph J. Dowling; Dr. Walter Vale, Frank R. Mills; Carrol Dent, Burt G. Clark; Judge Broadhead, Edwin G. Bean; Bill Hickman, John F. Corrigan; Joshua Hunter, Gilbert Fairclaws; Jasper Brown, Harry Allen; Mississippi Dave, Lew Bloom; Wong Lee, Otlis Shattuc; Dora Broadhead, Blanche Plunkett; Penelope Scudder, Addie Eaton; Beatrice Murtha, Sadie Hasson. The executive staff is as follows: Jos. J. Dowling, proprietor; Frank E. Tracy, agent; John C. Fox, manager, and Otis Shattuc, stage manager. The bill will be changed 8 to "Nobody's Claim." Smith & Lord's World of Novelties 12 and week.

TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE.—A strong minstrel party commenced a fortnight's stay Monday, May 5, to good and well pleased attendance. A. C. Moreland and Frank Dumont are the interlocutors, and Billy Birch, Frank Moran, Bob Slavin and Hughey Dougherty look after the ends in great shape; in fact, the sextet are all that could be desired. C. C. Babcock, L. W. Raymond and Arthur Cook, the balladists, were most heartily indorsed. Francis Leon, Hughey Dougherty, Frank Dumont and Frank Moran in "Free Trade vs. Protection," the Metropolitan Quartet, Frank Moran, Murphy and Turner, and Bob Slavin are seen in the olio to marked advantage, and Frank Dumont, Billy Birch, Charles Turner, A. C. Moreland, Frank Moran, J. E. Murphy and the Metropolitan Quartet shine brilliantly in "Our Society Amateur Actors." It is a great bill, and the week should easily be a substantial winner. Edwin French and the Weston Bros. are announced for next week, in addition to the above.

MINER'S BOWERY.—The sultry weather of Monday night, May 5, materially affected business here, but the following coterie of specialty people gave a fine entertainment: Hogan and Howard, Ella Fay, Elmer Ransom, Harry E. Pike, Edward and Louise Lorrett, Minnie Lee, Pickert and Mayon, the Four Emperors of Music, Chas. Diamond, Harry Le Clair and Edward Leslie, Cain and Lorenio, and Barnell. Harry and John Kernell, Maggie Cline, Larry and Lizzie Smith, Estrella Sylvia and others are announced for week of 12.

PROF. GLEASON, the horse trainer, has received the following request from Neil Burgess: "In appreciation of the services you have rendered my performance of 'The County Fair' by the successful manner in which you have trained my race horses, I feel as though credit should be done where credit is due. I request you, in behalf of the entire profession, to honor us with a special matinee before you leave New York. Trusting you will comply with my request in behalf of the profession, etc." To which Prof. Gleason replied as follows: "I answer your letter requesting a professional matinee. I never have any matinee performance, but, the request coming from one whom I esteem as a friend and appreciate as an artist, and for the benefit of the profession who have horses, and for those who cannot attend my exhibition in the evening, I tender a professional matinee on Friday afternoon, May 9, when I shall have a grand programme for the occasion." Manager Nat Behrens asks us to announce that requests for seats should reach him by Thursday at the latest.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.—Joseph Murphy opened here Monday night, May 5, to a full house, reviving his popular "Shaun Rhue." The generous welcome accorded the star and the close attention and liberal applause bestowed upon the many bright bits of Irish wit and humor with which the play abounds, should convince this popular comedian that his visits to the metropolis are too infrequent. Possessed of naturalness of manner, combined with a good dialect and the power to simulate either pathos or gaiety equally well, it is not difficult to account for the success attained by this genial comedian. Belle Melville is a careful actress, and her portrayal of the loyal sister and loving sweetheart was easily the best work of the female cast, though all did well. Of the male cast, it is only necessary to say that, as a whole, no better support has been given to this actor in our recollection. The play was finely staged, and went very smoothly. Following is the cast: Larry Donovan, Joseph Murphy; Gerald Cavanagh, W. T. Doyle; Lawyer Waddy, W. T. Sheehan; Patrick Cavanagh, Maurice Pike; Bryan Calligan, Edwin Bethel; Peter Calligan, J. H. Ferris; Morris Donovan, Sheridan Tupper; Teddy Phatts, D. Thompson; Wm. Summerfield, D. Kelly; Kate Donovan, Belle Melville; Dora Cavanagh, Ada Shattuck; Tim, Ella Baker. Executive staff: Manager, Jud B. Corey; stage manager, W. T. Sheehan; advance agent, J. J. Showles. Next week, "Kerry Gow." On 19, for the first time in this city, "The Silent Partner."

LUCIA B. GRIFFIN'S entertainment at Hardman Hall, afternoon of April 29, drew an audience that was limited only by the four walls of the building. Nothing but praise has been heard regarding the programme. Miss Griffin began her Western tour May 5, at Chicago. She plays in all the larger cities of Illinois and Iowa, and then goes direct to San Francisco, returning to this city next Fall, to resume her engagement with "The County Fair."

P. H. O'CONNOR is shortly to have a Sunday benefit at the Bijou Theatre. There will be a good list of volunteers. Mr. O'Connor is interested in this week's trial of "A Domestic Cyclone" at the Lee Avenue Academy, Williamsburg, this week.

MANAGER J. F. CORDRAY, of Portland, Ore, is in the city, and for a couple of weeks he will be kept busy booking for his well appointed and exceptionally prosperous playhouse. He has in mind the engagement of a comic opera troupe as a Summer attraction

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—"Around the World in Eighty Days" was revived here May 5, Imre and Bolossy Kiralfy being the producers. The full cast is as follows: Aouda, Dorothy Rossmore; Nemea, Marguerite St. John; Bessie, Ella Salisbury; Nakahira, Bella Wilson; Phileas Fogg, W. F. Clifton; Miles O'Fake, Maurice Drew; Fix, J. J. Wallace; Passepartout, W. H. Lytell; Mr. Blunt, W. H. Bartholomew; Sir Roger Shewdryn, Wm. Howard; Arthur Mayburn, L. Morton; Foster Jones, J. Wakefield; Governor of Suez, William Renous; An Aged Parsee, M. S. Johns; Brahmin Chief, William Stewart; Phil Tracy, W. Wallace; Jack Rivers, J. Montagu; Conductor, L. Rubel; Chief Scout, Fred Cole; Dazum Ahan, Jas. Van Pelt; Barkeeper, John Manning; Capt. Collins, Wm. S. Hurd. Mlle. Paris led the ballets in fine style, and the scenery warrants commendation. There is nothing particularly novel in the ballets, which are for the most part revivals. The executive staff is as follows: Imre Kiralfy, proprietor; Kiralfy Brothers, managers; Joseph Slayton, stage manager; Wm. Graham, treasurer; E. J. Abraham, business representative. A fair sized audience witnessed the initial performance. The attraction is on for a run.

LONDON THEATRE.—Lester & Allen's Co. opened the week of May 5 to good attendance. The company is made up as follows: Chas. Heywood, the Two Highleys, Lester and Allen, Albertina, Annie Hart, Daly and Devere, Hilton, the Clarks, Thomas O'Brien and Adolph and Marie Seeman. The week should easily turn out highly profitable. The two stars who head the show are out with new suits for their act. R. H. Brock is the company's manager, and John Daly stage manager. Rose Hill's Co. week of 12.

HARRY KENNEDY'S THEATRE.—This week saw a large audience present on the opening night, May 5. Taken all in all, the bill is the best yet presented, although some of the people were seen farther down town last week. The performers opening 5 were: Bud and Annie Granger, Fayette Welch, the American Four, Lottie Gilson, Harry Kennedy, J. C. Medway, Tim Cronin, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Williams, John A. Coleman, Gus Bruno and the Austin Sisters.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—Kate Claxton's "Bootles' Baby" Co. opened May 5, to fair business. Annette Leland and Inger Barson as Mignon were applauded. The cast is weak. Due 12, Mattie Vickers.

GAIETY MUSEUM.—The female barbers proved a potent attraction last week, and are retained. Other features appear in the curio hall, while a good show is in the theatorium.

BROADWAY THEATRE.—The Summer season of comic opera at this house was inaugurated with a vociferously noisy boom Monday night, May 5, when, in presence of a crowded and notable audience, the De Wolf Hopper Opera Bouffe Co. made its debut as an organization, singing for the first time on any stage the three act comedy opera, "Castles in the Air." This was the cast: Filacoudre, De Wolf Hopper; Repetito, Alfred Klein; Cabolastro, Thomas Q. Seabrooke; Jocrisso, Edmund Stanley; Chief of Police, Lindsay Morison; Pierre, George Wade; Bul-Bul, Marion Manola; Blanche, Della Fox; Angelique, Rose Leighton; Louise, Elvia Crox; Victorine, Anna O'Keefe. The libretto is the work of C. A. Byrne, who acknowledges his partial indebtedness to an old Spanish intermezzo by Cervantes—a source, by the way, freely availed of by M. Mettier, who wrote the book for Jacques Offenbach's "Les Bavards." The music, however, by G. A. Kerker, is wholly original. We have only space enough at this writing to record that Mr. Hopper was uproariously greeted, forced to make a speech and most generously encouraged throughout the performance. His new company is equal to all the requirements of modern comic opera, being weak only in its leading tenor. Marion Manola acted with her usual intelligence, and Della Fox also made a very favorable impression. T. Q. Seabrooke did all in his power to extract humor from a rather dull part, and Alfred Klein was an excellent foil to Mr. Hopper. The opera is handsomely dressed and staged, and the large chorus sing with abundant vim and good judgment. It must be confessed that neither Mr. Byrne's book nor Mr. Kerker's music realized the expectations of Mr. Hopper's friends. With this we leave the production for more detailed reference in our next issue. The company intend to to stay at the Broadway fifteen weeks, and then go on the road, under the management of Charles E. Locke and J. Charles Davis. Max Freeman supervised the production, H. A. Cripps managed the stage, B. D. Stevens is the general director and Edwin A. Pratt the treasurer.

PALMER'S THEATRE—A large, handsome and extremely cordial audience saw the first New York performance of "The Editor" Monday night, May 5. The verdict was a quick one, gratifying alike to Louis Aldrich, the star; Charles T. Vincent, the author, and Klaw & Erlanger, the managers of the new piece. It was a verdict of honest and substantial success, and it will be hailed with pleasure by the host of friends of the popular star. "The Editor" has already been treated somewhat in extenso in THE CLIPPER'S columns since its original performances in New England and this State, a fortnight ago. We then gave a detailed synopsis of the plot, and our correspondents in several cities visited have expressed their belief that the comedy is bound to add to Mr. Aldrich's laurels. The splendid audience at Palmer's afforded excellent indorsement of the out of town judgment, for the night was one of frequent applause. The production had been very carefully prepared for, the company having spent last week in this city rehearsing constantly under the direction of clever William Seymour, a stage manager of rare skill and discretion. The result was a brisk, smooth and thoroughly agreeable performance, in which good acting helped a bright play to achieve a decided hit. The triumph is an important one for Mr. Vincent, whose industry, patience and courage as a dramatist have at last found a worthy reward; no less is it a marked victory for Mr. Aldrich, who had not before this impersonated a distinctly comedy role in this city. The support was evenly good, Charles W. Garthorne, John E. Kellard and Dora Goldthwaite doing conspicuously good work. The comedy has been prettily staged and dressed. It is booked for a month at Palmer's, and during that time it is likely to draw large and delighted audiences. Next season "The Editor" and Mr. Aldrich, it is easy to predict, will be found among the gilt edged American touring attractions. We append the full cast at Palmer's: Col. John Hawkins, Louis Aldrich; Sir Montague Moon, Charles W. Garthorne; Stephen Morton, J. E. Kellard; William Barrington, J. L. Edwards; Clinton Barrington, Robert Edeson; Ruby, Frank B. Hatch; Tim, Frank Lamb; Josephine Jeffries, Dora Goldthwaite; Ellen Barrington, Virginia Harned; Laura Hawkins, Jessie Storey; Pattie, Flla Gardner. Managers, Klaw & Erlanger; representative, W. H. Rowles. It is fair to note that the author acknowledges his indebtedness to MM. Meilhac and Halevy's "La Veuve" ("The Widow") for the comedy incident in the second act, wherein is satirized the grief of a widow for her recently departed spouse, who had been a "rounder" in his day, though that fact did not develop itself until he had passed away. This is brightly handled in the adaptation, and is a most effective piece of comicality.

HENRY C. RAYMOND, formerly stage carpenter at the Union Square Theatre, this city, shot himself at his residence, 5 Maple Place, Sing Sing, N. Y., May 1. Marital complications were the cause. Afternoon of April 30, a woman representing herself to be Mrs. Anna Raymond called on Justice R. C. Feeney, and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Henry C. Raymond, on a charge of bigamy. She produced her marriage certificate, which showed that she and Raymond were married at Keyport, Kings County, July 4, 1880. Her name was Anna Mitchell. She said they lived together about six months, when he abandoned her, and she had recently learned that he had married a second wife about seven years ago, and had gone to Sing Sing to live. They took up their residence there last December. The warrant was served by Constable William Green. Mr. Raymond was eating his breakfast at the time, and he was allowed to finish. He then asked permission to go up stairs and get his hat and coat, which the officer granted. About one minute afterward, the report of a pistol was heard in the room in which he had disappeared, and the officer and Raymond's wife at once rushed up there, and found him lying on the floor, with the smoking pistol in his hand. Dr. P. Collard was called in, and a superficial examination showed that the bullet had entered the left side, in the region of the heart. Dr. W. H. Helen was sent for, and the two physicians were of the opinion that the wound was a fatal one, and that the man could live but a short time. Mr. Raymond was about forty-five years old, a native of Appomattox, Va., and had served in the Confederate Army during the Rebellion. He was several times wounded and taken prisoner. He belonged to the Black Horse Cavalry. After he was taken prisoner, he was transferred from one prison to another, until he was finally discharged at Elmira, N. Y., upon taking the oath of allegiance. Later, he was a resident of Baltimore. He was for seventeen years stage carpenter of the Union Square, and did similar work at the Standard, this city. His principal work was in the construction of the scenery for "The Henrietta," Helen Barry's "Love and Liberty," "The Pembertons," "Pepita" and "The County Fair." He did most of the work in preparing the scenery for "Money Mad" at the Standard. He had some dispute with Manager J. M. Hill, which resulted in his being discharged three weeks ago. Since then he had been doing nothing. There is said to be a third wife in the case, she having turned up since the shooting.

Harlem.—The performance at Hammerstein's Opera House was interrupted May 1 by the police captain of the Thirtieth Precinct, on account, as he claims of the license expiring. Manager Hammerstein and Joseph Humphreys, of the "Held by the Enemy" Co., which was playing at the house, were arrested, and immediately furnished bail. Manager Hammerstein has entered a complaint against the police captain, and some interesting developments are expected. Good business ruled last week with "Held by the Enemy." Conreid's Opera Co. opened the Summer season 5, in "The King's Fool," to a large house. "The Gypsy Baron" next week.

OLYMPIC.—Business at this house has resumed its old time proportions, and Assistant Manager Curtin is doing everything in his power to attract and please the patrons. Lester & Allen's Co. met with a well deserved reception last week. The Henry Burlesque Co. opened to a good house 5. The company: F. J. Dyer, W. F. Kaye and Ada Henry, Emerson and Cook, Inman Sisters, Sam Dearing and Prince Satsuna. John A. Stevens in "Unknown" next week.

HARLEM MUSEUM.—A. E. Wilson's Comic Opera Co. having made such a success, Manager Toovey has concluded to retain the company until the close of this house. This week, "Pinafore." Curio Hall—The Austins, Prof. L. Fox (bird imitator), Fiji Jim and wife, Charles Howard, Fred and Gussie Bacon, Mazie (gypsy wonder) and Prof. Lyons' Punch and Judy.

DORIS'.—Assistant Manager Hunter reports satisfactory business, and he hopes for a continuation of the same until the end of the season. When this house closes Mr. Doris will entirely overhaul the place, making several improvements. Curio Hall—Maj. Mike Lyle, son, Ada Briggs (fat woman), Zan Zerretta, Cook, George Lippert (three legged wonder), Annie Kirby (midget), Naida (Albino). Stage—Master Sohlke, the Ellsworth Family, Alice Sharplay, Kennedy and Larkell, and Harry Morrison.

THE Comique has "The Ticket of Leave Man" this week. "Under the Gaslight" was last week's bill.

NEW YORK STATE.

Brooklyn.—The close of the present week will witness the final performances of the season at three of our local houses—a fact not the result of poor business, but necessitated, in two instances, by the intention to immediately commence the construction of new play houses on the sites. The general result of last week was very satisfactory, business at some of the theatres being large. The current week, while somewhat strong in attractions, is handicapped by the presence in our midst of Barnum & Bailey's aggregation. With this as a counter attraction, and the opening of the baseball season as a pull back to matinee attendances, it will not be surprising if the financial result of the week is not larger than can be conveniently cared for. Notwithstanding opposition, the opening houses May 5 sized up fairly good.

PARK THEATRE.—Rose Coghlan has the honor of playing the last engagement to be filled in the theatre controlled by Managers Sinn. Her opening, 5, was as Peg Woffington in "Masks and Faces," and her audience was appreciative, if not large. During the week "Forget Me Not" will be seen, and on 10 "Jocelyn" will ring down the last curtain at this well known house. The event will be a memorable one, and Miss Coghlan goes down for a speech on the occasion. When the balance sheet of the season is made up, the week of "Mr. Barnes of New York" will loom up among the big ones.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—This week sees another play new to Brooklyn upon the boards at this house, in "McCarthy's Mishaps," a vehicle for the introduction of the specialties of Barney Ferguson and John S. Marr and the dancing of Lizzie Daly and little Vinie Daly. There is also some good singing by Carrie Behr and the Garden City Quartet. The opening house 5 was a good one, and the play was mirthfully provocative of laughter. C. A. Gardner, closed to fair results. Next week, Kate Claxton.

H. R. JACOBS' BROOKLYN THEATRE.—Manager Hild has secured for the current week a good attraction in "The Paymaster." The play was seen last season at another house, but Duncan B. Harrison and his company introduced themselves to a respectable gathering of the patrons of this theatre 5. The play was well received. "Passion's Slave" closed to moderate business 3. Corinne 12.

HYDE & BEHMAN'S THEATRE.—While the proprietors of this house realize that the last flag of the season must soon drop, and that the baseball rage acts as a "capper" to matinees, they know they are sure of their rake in the floating wealth, and will, therefore, stay in the game a couple of weeks longer before quitting. A strong house company is the card this week, but the light waisted audiences greeting it 5 showed that Barnum had the "bulge." The material of the bill is: Sam Dacre, the American Four, Weber and Fields, Conroy and Fox, Baker, Jones, Manning and Davis, Leonzo, La Rose Bros., John Carroll, Hines and Remington, and Marie Mc Neil. The Howard Burlesque Co. was a drag net last week, and landed a big catch.

GAIETY.—Manager Millbank is sure to see this week wind up his season in the red fire of good business. His attraction is the Rose Hill English Folly Co., whose coming has been heralded by a lavish display of pictures and use of adjectives. The audience that filled the house 5 gave assurance that even Barnum was not to be feared. Forrester's Burlesque Co. closed a week of somewhat light business 3.

ZIPP'S CASINO.—Manager Gebhardt complacently contemplates the closing of the theatres, knowing that it means increased harvest for him. The people this week: Matthews and Harrison, Smith and Fuller, Walter Hyde, J. L. Simon, May Wentworth and Minnie Schutt.

AMPHION.—R. B. Mantell, in "The Corsican Brothers," opened here 5, to a big house. The outlook is for crowded houses. Jefferson and Florence carried away barrels of money. C. A. Gardner comes 12.

LEE AVENUE ACADEMY.—Laurent Howard, popular manager of this house, and Harry Champlin, a Brooklyn newspaper man, have concocted a pleasing farce comedy, which was presented here for the first time last night. The comedy is called "A Domestic Cyclone," and the story evolves on an incorrigible wife who, as the title of the piece states, is a lively dose of cyclone. In the new production, the authors have tried to expose the desire of society ladies to outdo their neighbors, and have also satirized the drop-a-nickel-in-the slot machine. The comedy contains three acts, and is plentifully interspersed with catchy music, laughable situations and grotesque acting. The initial performance was accompanied by the necessary shortcomings which a little experience will undoubtedly overcome. It was greeted by a crowded house, and met with an enthusiastic reception. In composing the skit, the authors have shown evidence of some ability. The comedy contains many good points, and will, no doubt, meet with the success it deserves. At the conclusion of the performance, the authors were called before the curtain and acknowledged their thanks. Agnes Hallock, the dome-tic cyclone, looked and acted her part to perfection. Marguerite Fish scored a hit as Evangeline, the Cyclone's youngest daughter. George Kyle, as Ebenezer Newritch, the Cyclone's meek but suffering other half, did not get out of his lines all there was in them. Thomas W. Ryley, as Billy Rustle, made a fairly good newspaper reporter, with a great leaning towards dancing and singing, in which pastime he received the plaudits of a delighted audience. The cast: Ebenezer Newritch, George Kyle; Billy Rustle, Thomas W. Ryley; Tommy Drummer, George W. Larsen; Michael, Charles Warren; Swipes, J. L. Guilmette; Sam, Warren Jones; a ticket agent, R. W. Holbrook; Mrs. Newritch, Agnes Hallock; Evangeline, Marguerite Fish; Emily, Josie Henderson; Miss St. George, Lyde Clark; Miss St. Martin, Ray Walton; Miss St. Thomas, Addie Gilbert; Miss St. Vincent, Bertha Wilson; Miss St. Nicholas, Estella Hoyt.

PROCTOR'S.—"Devil's Mine" was produced here 5. The scenery has been painted specially for this production and is very good, particularly the cataract of real water in the third act. Last week's business was good. "The Paymaster" comes 12.

LYCEUM.—Schnitz Edwards' Night Larks Co. have possession this week. It includes Schnitz Edwards, Weber and Fields, Fannie Beane, Philson and Kareria.

CONGRESS HALL.—This week's bill: Sophie Thorne, the Brahams, Louise Montrose, Lotis Luzzani, Fred Russell, Carrie Brauneck and Rosani.

BARNUM'S.—Barnum has again taken possession of the town, and the small boy rejoices mightily. Owing to the threatening weather, the gaily caparisoned horses and their gaudily dressed riders were eliminated from the street parade. The wagons containing the animals were shut, and the parade was far from being a success, with the exception of Kirsly's "Nero."

NOTES.—Charles Seymour, H. R. Jacobs' former representative in this city, is now the general manager of an organization known as the American Amusement Co., whose object is the leasing of suitable halls at the different seaside resorts, for concerts and other entertainments. A number of theatre parties witnessed Mr. Barnes of New York" last week. The largest were those of the Amaranth and Gilbert Dramatic Societies and Montauk Lodge, F. and A. M. Friday's Pavilion Theatre will open 24, with Wilson's Opera Co., a Western organization numbering forty people. Mr. Friday has secured for his staff Laurent Howard, business manager; George Hunter, advertising agent; John Collins, scenic artist; John Elfers, stage carpenter; Benjamin Honnor, boss canvasman; W. H. Friday Jr., treasurer. Hinchliffe's orchestra of the Lee Avenue Academy, will furnish the music. Work is being pushed on the excavation for Holmes' Star Theatre, night gangs working by calcium light. Chas. Diamond, an attache of the Brooklyn, and Andy Barr, his former partner, have been tendered a benefit at Tivoli Hall 12. Some good talent has volunteered. Joe Hild is busily preparing for his benefit June 2. Brooklyn Lodge, No. 22, B. P. O. E., have paid $30 for a single seat at Laurent Howard's benefit, at the Lee Avenue Academy May 13, to be known as the Elks' chair. A like liberal course has been adopted for the benefit to Thos. T. Hayden at the Criterion 22. A large delegation from the lodge will attend both affairs. Managers Sinn preface the programme this week with a very pretty address to their patrons, full of promises of great things when the new theatre is completed. A good sized audience attended the benefit tendered Manager Gouge at the Criterion Theatre 3. One of the features of the affair was a flower booth presided over by the Misses Bartlett, Flora Stephana and Jessie Gardner. The theatrical talent was headed by Marie Hubert Froham, who was seen to good advantage in "King Rene's Daughter," "Snow Bound" and "False Charms." At the conclusion of the performance, Mr. Gouge was called before the curtain and, in a few well chosen words, acknowledged his thanks. The benefit to Manager "Larry" Howard, at the Lee Avenue, 13, promises to be a great success. On that evening a new one act play, entitled "A Reporter," will make its first appearance. The amateur dramatic societies of this city have pooled issues, and will tender a benefit to Manager Knudson at the Criterion, on May 27. They will produce the four act comedy, "Champagne and Oysters." Mr. Knudson is a great favorite among the amateurs of this city, and the house will be hardly large enough to accommodate the crowd that is sure to attend his benefit. The ninth season of the Lee Avenue Academy will close 10. During the past season the house has played first class attractions, and has been rewarded with large and appreciative audiences.

Buffalo.—Nothing particularly novel was offered last week, though the attendance on the whole was satisfactory. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and Barry and Fay at the Academy made money, and Kate Castleton held her own at the Star. The Sarasate D'Albert Co. should have had a larger audience at Music Hall, considering its merit. Mr. Jacobs' houses were well filled with "The Night Owls" and "The Ivy Leaf." Wonderland and the Gaiety came out all right.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—This house is dark this week. May 12, 13, 14, Mr. and Mrs. Kendall

STAR THEATRE.—The house will be closed till the Booth-Modjeska engagement 9, 10. Mary Shaw 19 and week.

GAIETY THEATRE.—This week: Murphy and Cross, the Sisters Coulson, Thorn, the Sanders, Walter Hyde, Estelle Cayton, C. D. De Lorimer, Jennie Dorene, Baker and Daly, and Faulkner and Schumacher. He has been succeeded by Assistant Manager Bingham, who also attends to the booking, and S. S Young is now house manager.....Hugh Fay was prevented by illness from appearing in "McKenna's Flirtation" 3.

Kingston.—At the Kingston Opera House, "Shadows of a Great City" came May 2 to a fair house, followed by Marie Hubert-Frohman in a benefit to the attaches. The bill was "King Rene's Daughter," "Snow Bound" and "False Charms," and drew a packed house.

LISCOMB'S OPERA HOUSE.—"The Oath" was presented 2, 3, to poor houses by members of "Our German Ward" Co., which came April 26, and "The World Against Her," which came 29. Nothing could be learned from the members of the company as to their delay in this city, but it is rumored that both troupes are financially embarrassed, and a number of the members from each company consolidated and formed "The Oath" Co. in order to raise funds to get out of town. Fleming's "Around the World" comes 9.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The Kingston Philharmonic Society gave a week of concerts commencing 5, under the direction of Carl Zerrahn, assisted by a number of New York, Boston and Albany singers, and Mrs. Martha Dana Shepard, accompanist. Blaisdell's Orchestra, of Boston, furnished the music. Five hundred voices were in the chorus.

NOTES.—Prof. Batcheller, with his trained dogs, joined Atkins' Railroad Show at Port Jervis 1.....C. A. Winter, the ticket agent at the Kingston Opera House, is on a vacation in the South.....It is rumored that a new opera house will be erected in the lower part of the city this Summer. Such a move would be a good one, as that part of the city is sadly in need of a first class house.

Troy.—At Rand's Opera House: Annie Pixley May 6, 7, Roland Reed 8, 9, Herrmann 12. Gorman's Minstrels had large house April 28. "Fantasma" had three immense houses 29, 30. Fleming's "Around the World" did fairly May 1, 2, 3.

The house was leased to Proctor & Soulier May 5.

GAIETY THEATRE.—A house company, week of 5, includes J. F. Murray, Allie Alden, Ed. Gallagher, Kennette and Matthews, Mabel Arnold, Brown Bros., Hattie Venetta, Frank Adams, and Heider and Bowers. Next week, Forreste's Burlesque Co. Prof. Wallace gave a stereopticon entertainment in Troy on Monday night. It caught on finely.

DOBING'S BAND, of this city, is engaged for Congress Park, Saratoga, for the Summer.

Rochester.—As the warm weather is about setting in and the theatrical season about drawing to a close, the interest in indoor amusements is beginning to wane. One house has already closed for the season, and a second will close at the end of the week.

LYCEUM.—The Boston Ideal Opera Co. will give two performances May 5, 6. On 7 a local affair will take place and the last three nights of the week Barry and Fay have possession. This will close the regular season at the Lyceum. Last week, the first half, Sol Smith Russell attracted large audiences, and the last half "Little Lord Fauntleroy" tried the experiment of a return engagement, which proved a failure.

JACOBS' ACADEMY.—"The Night Owls" will have possession this week. Week of 12, Bennet & Moulton Opera Co. C. T. Ellis left 3, after playing to large business.

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE presented Miami's Novelty Co. the first night of last week, composed mostly of local talent, and business was so poor it was decided not to finish the week and close the house.

After undergoing some repairs, it will reopen late in July under the same management.....The Opera House is still dark.....The Comique reports excellent business. New faces 5: Hattie Barrett, Bertha May, Jennie Brady, Nellie Erne, Madge Markley, Maude Mason, the Purcell Bros and the Fiorini-Pronier musical duettists.....The Irwin Bros.' Show was here 2 but, owing to their late arrival, were unable to get in readiness for an afternoon performance. The result was they turned people away in the evening.....Forepaugh's Show visits us early in June.....Manager Taylor, of the Academy, was the recipient last week of a beautiful diamond and ruby studded locke watch charm from the house attaches in commemoration of the benefit recently tendered them. Hartley, both of this city. The opera was presented by home talent, assisted by Jean Douglass and Jessie Bertman, of Philadelphia. Miss Douglass and H. L. Knapp deserve special mention. The comedy parts, by Messrs. Rupert and Hopewell, were well sustained and applauded. The production proved a success, and was received with much favar by a large audience. The music is catchy and sparkling; the libretto is creditable. Mr. Frankel has been untiring in his efforts, and, with proper managerial encouragement, the opera cannot but prove successful. ILLINOIS.

Chicago.—The past week brought all that was expected of it—good shows and fine patronage, in spite of May day movings. The current week is destined to be even better, for the various visitors offer their best performances, and there are a number of novelties among them. It was a turbulent week among professionals. As the curtain fell on Dixey's "Seven Ages," May 3, at the Chicago Opera House, Deputy Sheriff Graves attempted to pass Watchman William Antink at the door, but was prevented in spite of his brandishing a revolver. Mr. Graves was more fortunate at a gallery entrance, but, immediately on announcing himself, the gas went out, and he could neither read his execution nor find Mr. Dixey. Finally Barclay Warburton deposited $300 as surety, and Mr. Graves departed in triumph. The execution was against E. E. Rice in favor of Thomas McGowan, and amounted, with interest, to $275. Mr. Dixey and Mr. Warburton explained that the property did not belong to Mr. Rice, but to Mr. Duff, but Mr. Graves insisted on making the levy. Pat Rooney is under bail in this city for an assault upon John Harding, his musical director, April 27. Mr. Harding served an attachment on Mr. Rooney for his salary during the company's engagement at the People's Theatre, and Mr. Rooney belabored him for it in his dressing room with a blackthorn shillelah. According to Mr. Harding's story, Mr. Rooney's anger was aroused by the discovery that his daughter Katie was engaged to marry Mr. Harding.

HOOLEY'S.—The Kendals played to crowded houses throughout their two weeks' farewell engagement, although only one new play was presented—"A White Lie"—and that for a single performance only. Aug. Daly's Co. began a two weeks' engagement May 5 with "The Great Unknown" for the first half of the week and "7 20" for the latter half. For the first time in the dramatic history of Chicago, a Danish performance is given Sunday night, 5. The play is "Barn i Kirke"—literally, "Child in Church"—which is also known in an English version, "The Little Rascal," adapted by J. R. Hald, of this city.

AUDITORIUM.—The Metropolitan Opera Co. has been winning better patronage for its second week, and promises to do even better on its third and last. Monday, Thursday and Saturday matinee "The Barber of Bagdad" and "The Doll's Fairy," pantomime ballet, will be given for the first time in this city. Tuesday "Don Giovanni," Wednesday "Lohengrin" and Friday "Die Walkure." For the week just passed "The Masked Ball," "Fidelio," "Norma" and "The Queen of Sheba" were the attractions. "The Flying Dutchman" proved the poorest and least attractive performance of the week.

MCVICKER'S.—Marie Wainwright drew good houses last week. "Faust Up to Date," by the London Gaiety Co., opened 5.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—Manager Henderson's "Gondoliers" Co. begins a return engagement 4. Since last seen here the cast has been very materially changed, and now includes Louise Montague, W. H. Fitzgerald, Charles Drew, W. S. Daboll, Louise Paullin, Joseph Frankau, Fanny Edwards, Jeannette St. Henry and Willett Seaman. It has been "gingered" up, too, with some points in the way of Americanisms. H. E. Dixey's fourth and last week in "The Seven Ages" showed little or no falling off in patronage. The Bostonians come 19.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Rhea had good houses last week. Sedley Brown in "A Long Lane" opened 5 to good prospects. Manager Hamlin has concluded negotiations with C. D. Hess for a revival of "Olivette, "The Mascot" and, possibly, one or two other operas. The season will begin about the middle of this month.

COLUMBIA.—R. L. Downing presented "The Gladiator" to fairly good houses. For the second week, "Ingomar," "Virginius" and "The Gladiator." At the close of this engagement the theatre will be closed for three or four weeks, during which time some cleaning and structural changes in the balcony circle will be made. H. E. Dixey will then come for a Summer season.

HAYMARKET.—Nellie McHenry, in "Lady Peggy," a new four act comedy by Richard Carroll and Frank Tannehill Jr. opens 4, and is sure of good houses. [This is the first performance on any stage.—ED. CLIPPER.] "A Pair of Jacks" 11. "The Twelve Temptations" closed 3 to good business.

CLARK STREET THEATRE.—"Master and Man," with J. H. Gilmour and Dominick Murray in the lead, opened 6. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" played to big business.

STANDARD.—Ross Snow and Eloise Willard, in "Town Lots," opened 4. Bartholomew's Equine Paradox is underlined.

PEOPLE'S.—John S. Murphy makes his appearance in Chicago this week in "Kerry Gow" 5, 6, 7, and "Shaun Rhue" the rest of the week. Hettie Bernard Chase comes 12. J. C. Stewart's "Fat Men's Club" had one of the best weeks of the season.

WINDSOR.—"Three Wives to One Husband" opened 4. Patti Rosa, in "Margery Daw," repeated the success she recently made at the Haymarket. "Kidnapped" comes 11. [Our correspondent will send particulars and plot for next week.—ED. CLIPPER.]

The programme will consist of three parts—orchestral and instrumental, thea rical novelties and selections by the Second Regiment Band. Mr. Bowron has occupied his present position since the opening of the house, in 1881, by J. H. Haverly, and his orchestra has always enjoyed the reputation of being the finest theatre orchestra west of New York..... The McGibeny Family give entertainments at Central Music Hall May 6, 8 and 10, under the management of Edmund W. Balleutine.

Stewart, and the change is a surprise.

Scott Thornton took the part of Icilius, in "Virginius," 3, on short notice, on account of sickness of one of the company. He did himself credit.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston.—The end of the season is close upon us, but it appears to make little difference in the patronage accorded the various places of amusement, audiences that, in the main, are satisfactory to the managers being the rule. In a recent letter I commented on the matter of low prices in furnishing popular and first class attractions. Experience has proven that the price of an article may be lessened without any impairment of its intrinsic value. Especially is this true of the price of theatre tickets, which may be "cut" without involving the necessity of foisting upon theatregoers attractions corresponding in tone with the reduced prices. This fact appears to have struck the management of the Grand Opera House, who, a short time ago, announced that on May 5 they would give their patrons a grand surprise. That "surprise" developed this week, in the shape of a radical reduction in prices, all the choice orchestra and first balcony seats being now obtainable at fifty cents—one half the former price—while the other seats in the house can be had for thirty cents. This is a judicious move, and cannot fail to find favor with the excellent class of playgoers who have made the Grand one of the most popular and profitable theatres in this city. Its popularity will no doubt be still further increased under the regime of reduced rates. The establishment is capacious enough to accommodate business of the most profitable nature, even at "cut rates," and its record in the past conclusively demonstrates that there is a wide margin for the reduction inaugurated, without decreasing its prosperity in the slightest degree. Who will be the next to follow in the lead of the Grand in this matter?

BOSTON THEATRE.—We have had a genuine treat presented us by Manager Eugene Tompkins at Boston's grand old Thespian temple. Monday evening, May 5, witnessed the first American production of Geo. R. Sims and Henry Pettitt's drama, "Silver Falls," which Mr. Tompkins has secured the exclusive right to present in this country. The magnificent productions at the Boston in past years, under the personal management of Mr. Tompkins, are sufficient assurance that he will stage "Silver Falls" in a manner fully in keeping with his past reputation in such matters. The cast includes Wm. Redmund, Frank Losee, Chas. Coote, D. Gilfether, D. P. Steele, Sydney Armstrong, Alice Fisher, Marion Elmore, Mary Bennett, Kate Kyle and Jennie Campbell. The action of the piece begins in England, thence is transferred to Santa Rosa, Mex., and the principal scenes are laid in that country, among the mining camps, the result being the presentation of many beautiful and picturesque effects. The direction of the stage is under the supervision of L. J. McCarthy. Richard Mansfield—who, by the way, recently vented his ire on the dramatic critics, and who is now being severely castigated by some of them—closed his engagement at the Boston Saturday evening, 3. My dispatch tells of the reception accorded "The Silver Falls" first performance, 5. [A synopsis of the plot appears elsewhere.—ED. CLIPPER.]

BOSTON MUSEUM.—This is the last week of "All the Comforts of Home," a fact which evidently impressed itself upon lovers of one of the best plays of its class ever produced in this city. As it is, the entire week will not be given to Mr. Gillette's masterpiece, Saturday evening part of the week being allotted to George Wilson, who will present "Married Life" and "Solon Shingle," and who deserves, for his genuine merit as an actor, the warmest recognition at the hands of his host of friends. The advance sales for the closing performances of "All the Comforts" have been very large, and the week will doubtless bring out audiences that will place standing room at a premium. Next week, "The Passing Regiment," with Messrs. Mason, Pitt, Davenport, Wilson, Coleman, Boniface and Burrows, Annie Clarke, Miriam O'Leary, Emma Sheridan, and Misses Campbell and Addison. This piece has never been presented at the Museum.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—For one week we are to have a Boston girl—Mary Shaw—with us, in "A Drop of Poison" ("Ein Tro fen Gift"), which she brings from the West, where she presented it with marked success. H. B. Conway, Chas. Kent, S. E. Springer, Chas. A. Smiley, W. S. Ingersoll, Richard Hovey, Edwin Royle, H. B. Chase, Jessie Shaw, Leslie Tillson and others are in the company. Miss Shaw will surely feel gratified at the reception accorded her in her native city, and that she has fulfilled the prediction of Dion Boucicault—made some years ago, to the late William Warren—in these words, "That girl will make her mark," is an assured fact. Certain it is that her many friends in this city are more than gratified at the flattering prospects in store for her. J. B. Polk is underlined for week of 12, in "The Silent Partner." "The Prince and the Pauper" and "Under the Lash" le lie migrated 3, after a month of excellent business.

GLOBE THEATRE.—The final week of "The Gondoliers" is announced by Manager Stetson, who has presented the piece in a manner never excelled by any similar production. It has become a firm favorite with lovers of light opera in this city and vicinity, and its withdrawal is a source of regret. Next week we are to have a revival of "Iolanthe," which will be given with a very strong cast and staged in superb style.

TREMONT THEATRE.—The first of "Aunt Jack's" four weeks' sojourn has passed, and that she has become a favorite in this town is a fixed fact. As interpreted by Agnes Booth-Schoeffel, Aunt Jack is "a jolly good fellow," surrounded by a goodly company, and never fails to win plaudits and praise from crowded houses. "A Man of the World" precedes "Aunt Jack." In the leading role Maurice Barrymore far outstrips any former effort of his, and demonstrates the justness of awarding him the rank of one of the best comedians of the day. "Aunt Jack" is booked until 24.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—That Managers Proctor & Mansfield are determined to present first class attractions at reduced rates of admission is evident by their presentation of Alex. Salvini, who appeared on Monday evening, 5, in "A Child of Naples." The supporting company, to which Belle Archer and John A. Lane have been added, is an excellent one. Due 12, Vernona Jarbeau. "The Paymaster" closed a good week 3.

HOWARD ATHENÆUM.—The attraction at Manager Harris' house this week is "The Shadows of a Great City," produced under the direction of C. B. and Thos. Jefferson, with the original scenery, effects and properties. The cast includes Annie Ward Tiffany, Rose Tiffany, John Marshall, Chas. Kidder, Geo. R. Edeson, Wm. Cullington and others. Due 12. "The Devil's Mine." "Spider and Fly" closed an excellent week 3.

GRAND MUSEUM.—Manager Lothrop's big house is none too large to accommodate the throngs that fill it at every performance of "A Dark Life, or, In the Trenches," which is finely staged and presented by a strong company. In addition, there are in the variety line the musical McCarthys, John Walsh, Herb and Daisy Zublin, Leonard and Watson, the Washburn Sisters, Eliza Percival, the Fitzgibbon Trio, Chas. Burnham and John Phillips.

GAIETY AND BIJOU.—The entertainment presented by Manager B. F. Keith this week is really unique in character. The attraction consists of the Japanese Village, arranged in booths, occupying both the main house and the Annex. Among the specialty stars are Ward and Vokes, Morris Cronin, Cole Norton, Juggler Roma, Walker and Forrest, Lewis J. Gillett, Sully and Equine Rackie and Walker, and Roseland and Morton. May 12, revival of "La Mascotte."

AUSTIN'S NICKELODEON.—The attendance was never larger at the Nickelodeon than at present. The attractions have been of a superior quality, and many evenings during the past week the three large floors were found insufficient to accommodate the crowds. Col. Austin contemplates adding a fourth floor, which will be filled with wax figures. He has under contract an Eden Musee artist, whose figures have been pronounced by experts to be of a superior quality. New groups are added weekly. The wrestling matches between Ring and Russella have been the feature of the Spring season. The head of Gen. Jackson has created no end of talk. It was sawed from the figurehead of the frigate Constitution in 1854, and was lately discovered in its hiding by Col. Austin. It is so valuable that Mr. Austin had to insure it for $12,000 and give a bond of $10,000 for its safe keeping before he could secure it. Other features include the European tissue paper workers, Loftus (an innocent man tarred and feathered by the moonshiners for a crime he did not commit"), Ik-Ik (who walks on redhot iron) and many permanent features. On the stage are Wesley B. Norris, F. W. Stillman, James A. Mack, Whitney and Marks, Frank Grainger, McDowell and Stevens, Charles Frey, Frank Woodson, Julia Redmond and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Howard and the stock.

STONE & SHAW'S MUSEUM.—The attendance at this house demonstrates beyond doubt that it is one of the most popular low priced amusement resorts in Boston. The enterprising proprietors are always on the alert to present the most novel attractions that can be engaged. This week they present in the lecture hall a young Mexican woman who is in perfect health, but so thin that you can almost read THE CLIPPER through her. She is perfectly developed, yet she weighs only forty-eight pounds and has an excellent appetite, at that. Then there are Prof. Greenleaf's troupe of trained canaries, the Venetian Troubadours, Matta Talo (glass dancer), Martha Chacomb, glass eater, and the big card of all, a number of handsome young women engaged in a rifle contest for prizes. In the auditorium is given an entirely new bill, in which the talent are Howe and Doyle, the Brunelles, Campbell and Smith, Webster Bros., Ellsworth Children, Master Fenton, W. E. Hathaway, Frank Kennedy, Lottie Sinclair, Dan and Annie Nash, and Susie Fulton.

PILLING'S WORLD'S MUSEUM.—Manager Frank J. Pilling is giving a great show this week. In fact, it is really three shows, so large being the aggregation of talent, that he is compelled to divide it up. One third of this entertainment is taken up with the musical comedy, "Mrs. Brady's Boarding House," with Harry Hamilton, Addie Phillips, W. F. Denny, and other members of the Pilling Comedy Co. in the cast. After an absence of four years, Harry Fielding and Maggie Walker have returned, and appear in "Going Traveling." The olio is given by Christie & Pearl's Coterie of Specialists, among whom are Nellie Franklin, Fred Mulloy, Frank Fleming, Myrtle Saunders, John S. Stewart and Christie and Pearl. The stage show is an excellent one, concluding with the roaring farce, "After the Opera," with J. H. W. Byrne, Frank Chace and Frankie Gray in the leading roles. In the novelty hall is shown a very curious and interesting collection of relics, made by hand from over 300 different kinds of wood, and exhibited by Wm. S. Hollis, a veteran of the late war.

GENERAL GOSSIP.—A very elegant and valuable gold chain, with charm attached, was recently presented to Business Manager H. A. Morkill, of the Globe. The donors were the attaches of the house, with whom Mr. Morkill has become extremely popular, as, in fact, he is with all who come in contact with him..... Fanny Davenport is still doing "La Tosca" at the little theatre opposite the Globe. F. B. Warde goes there 12-24..... "All the Comforts of Home" is to be produced in London..... Wilson Barrett's drama, "Good Old Times" will be presented at the Boston Theatre next August..... Supt. Samuel Hodgdon, of the variety, is at Philadelphia looking over Manager Keith's new Bijou in that city..... Annie Clarke, of the Museum, is recovering from what threatened last week would prove a very serious illness..... Managers Harris & Rock, who are associated with Manager Isaac B. Rich in the new enterprise, opened their new house at Worcester 5. The attraction was "Shenandoah"..... Agnes Booth-Schoeffel, who has been suffering from a severe cold since her arrival in Boston, is rapidly recovering..... Manager Henry E. Abbey arrived in town last Friday, and with him came Manager J. C. Williamson, of Australia. Mr. W. looks as young as he did a decade ago, and has prospered in his enterprises at the Antipodes. An inspection of the beautiful Tremont was made on Friday in company with Manager Schoeffel, and the visitor was delighted with the house. Mr. Williamson was also warmly greeted by Business Manager Nat Childs, who gained his earliest practical experience from Mr. Williamson..... Having introduced electric lights throughout the Boston Theatre, Manager Tompkins will have removed next season the magnificent chandelier which has graced the house for years. It is one of the largest and most beautiful articles of its kind in this country, having 250 burners and 15,000 glass prisms, and cost originally $6,500..... It is said that J. P. Mason and F. B. Warde will do a scene from "Othello" at the B. Pitman benefit..... Stage Manager J. P. Johnson, of the Howard, will benefit at an early date..... "Lip" Keene, advertising agent at the little uptown house, will have a benefit there next Sunday night..... Olive Homans is playing to full houses on the New England circuit, under the engagement of Charles Atkinson..... Miriam O'Leary will soon take her first benefit at the Museum..... Manager Isaac B. Rich has tendered the use of the Hollis to John C. Mullaly, leader of the orchestra, and that gentleman will take a benefit there Sunday evening, 25..... John S. Stewart, the veteran comedian, had a rousing benefit at Pilling's World's Museum last Sunday evening..... The benefit to Dr. J. E. Collins, which was announced for last Sunday night, has been postponed for a week..... The recent revised regulations of the Board of Aldermen contain a provision that "no license shall be issued for a theatrical season until the licensee delivers to the City Clerk for each member of the Board of Aldermen a season ticket of admission to his place of amusement." This is simply legalized extortion, against which managers of theatres have no redress, except in the veto of Mayor Hart, who now has the ordinance under consideration. The managers say they are and always have been perfectly willing to give the city officials season tickets, but they object to being compelled to do so by law.

Lynn.—At Proctor's Theatre, the Lynn Red Men give a mock trial May 6. "The Still Alarm" comes 8-10. A large audience greeted Julia Marlowe April 28. "Upside Down" drew fairly 2, 3. Owing to the physical condition of Dan Daly, the matinee was abandoned 3. Kellar next week.

MUSIC HALL.—Zeffie Tilbury opens for a week 5. The cantata of "Ruth," by local talent, April 30 was successful, and delighted a good sized audience. McKee Rankin booked for May 2, 3 canceled. "Struck Gas" comes 12.

LYNN MUSEE.—Week of 5: Stage—Wenzel and Morris, John L. Manning, Annie Raymond, Charles J. Gorman, Collins and Welch, May Bryan and Billy Burke. Curio Hall—Johannah Wohltarth (female hercules), Samuel (medium), Prof. Fredericks and Emile Chevriel. Will N. Drown is at work on a mammoth painting, "Christ Before Pilate," which attracts a good deal of attention. Business is fair.

FRAGMENTS.—The event of the week occurred May 1, at Proctor's Theatre, when Lynn Lodge, No. 117, B. P. O. E., observed their first anniversary with a monster entertainment. It was a success, and was probably the finest entertainment of its kind ever held in this city. The exterior and interior of the theatre were profusely decorated with flags, streamers and banners of all descriptions. Over the main entrance a pair of antlers were prominent, and on a velvet drapery, bound with gold the words "Welcome, Brothers," in gold letters, were conspicuous. In the foyer were tropical plants and flowers, tastefully arranged. At the rear of the foyer, on a pedestal, half hidden by potted plants, stood a full sized deer. All around the balcony hung baskets of cut flowers. An elk's head flanked the proscenium arch on either side. The curtain rose at 6.45, and it was long after midnight before the final act was concluded. Following is the programme: Lynn Brass Band, medley, dedicated to the Lynn Lodge, and composed for this occasion by W. H. Thomas; Grand orchestra, led by Brother H. B. Haldeman; Mason and Earle, Boston Ideal Banjo Mandolin and Guitar Club; Edmund F. Chelan, Mons. J. A. Lee Barge, "The Silent System," a comedy in one act, by E. K. Hood and Nella Mae Robinson, Maude Banks (Miss Banks came on from your city especially for this occasion); Senor Luis T. Romero, Ardine Sisters, military prize drill by officers of Lynn High School, overture by orchestra. On this occasion Brother A. H. Dexter consented to act as director, and was given a hearty reception. At this point the event which every one had been looking for came, The performance of "A Texas Steer," which scored a big success. The characters were well taken, and all shared the laure's. At the close of the prologue the persistent calls for Mr. Hoyt obliged him to appear before the curtain and make a speech. Between the acts the Bostonian Male Quartet sang, Dudley H. Prescott Frank Ashcroft exhibited Edison's phonograph, Harry Wright, Maurice Barrymore, Duncan B. Harrison. Here the audience were given a surprise in which the Razzle Dazzle Trio appeared. In this selection they were obliged to respond repeatedly. John H. W. Bryne, Luke Schoolcraft, and Barry Maxwell and James R. Adams. The entertainment closed with a sketch by Petrie and Elise, "Passing the Toll Gate." It was 1.15 A. M. before the curtain fell for the last time, and every one voted the first annual a success. Credit is due the committee for their untiring efforts to bring the affair for such a successful end. District Deputy John H. Dee and John H. Murphy, of the Boston Lodge, were present. Brothers were present from Boston, Lawrence, Lowell, Worcester and Portsmouth. Among the audience were seen all the prominent city officials. The Lodge ran a special train to Boston after the performance, for the accommodation of their guests. During the performance refreshments were served in the greenroom of the theatre. The souvenir programme, a book of thirty two pages, was from the press of John F. McCarty & Co. Mr. McCarty is the Exalted Ruler of the lodge..... Nellie Miles, of this city, will be tendered a benefit May 6..... Ralph Blaisdell joins Gilmore's Band 14, to do advance work..... Walter Bedell succeeds Thomas Tivisden as gasman at Proctor's Theatre..... "Upside Down" closed its season here 3.

Worcester.—The new Worcester Theatre was formally opened May 5, with everything complete, although it was a case of hustle to restore order from the chaos that invariably precedes the opening of a new house. "Shenandoah" was the attraction, and runs through the first week. The entire house, for the opening night, was sold two weeks in advance, and the "take" for the rest of the week is large. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes 12 and week.

FROST STREET OPERA HOUSE.—The Gaiety Opera Co. sing "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief" this week, it being the ninth and last of the opera season. Business has not been what it should, hence the change. "Peck's Bad Boy" comes 12 and week.

BIJOU MUSEUM.—After a precarious existence of six months, during which several managers have gone into their pockets to meet deficiencies, the house finally closed 3.

Lawrence.—The Opera House practically closed the season May 3, with the exception of a few local attractions during the month. Manager Grant is well pleased with the past season, and has every reason to feel so, considering the patronage the house has received. April 29 and May 1, "The Still Alarm" drew big houses. The Lawrence Canoe Club gave a concert 2 to a large audience, assisted by the Tufts College Glee and Banjo Clubs. "One of the Old Stock" pleased a good house 3..... The Bijou Palace has undergone a change in management, John F. Leonard retiring and W. J. Whittey assuming charge. Opening 5. Pete McCloud, Millie Melville, Aldine Sisters, Master Bateman and Geo. B. Leslie, the latter engaged for an indefinite time. The Parlor Theatre is running a stock company, and will produce "The Danites" with the following people 5: Frank Howe, Jos. F. Campbell, Harcourt Clark, Frank Donnell, Will Vaughan, Frank Smith, B. F. McClannan, D. F. Wright, Eva Williams, Maggie Evans and Kate Howe.

Holyoke.—At the Opera House, April 29, "The Dear Irish Boy" drew a light house. Frank Mayo, 30, had a small house. May 1, 2, 3, Ollie Akerstrom had crowded houses. Miss Akerstrom will close her season 10, owing to continued ill health.

Lowell.—At Music Hall, "Struck Gas" comes May 8. No attractions last week..... At Huntington Hall, Geo. Kennan lectures 7..... At the Opera House, "The Still Alarm" comes 5-7. The Rinehart Sisters closed a week's engagement 3 to fair houses.

MAINE.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

No Replies by Mail or Telegraph.

Addresses or whereabouts not given. All in quest of such should write to those whom they seek, in care of THE CLIPPER Post Office. All letters will be advertised one week, gratis. If the route of any theatrical company is sought, refer to our list or routes on another page. We cannot send routes by mail or telegraph.

THEATRICAL.

M. E. M.—The salary ranges from $20 to $40 a week, according to the man's worth. The duties are so numerous and so exacting that we hesitate to enumerate them in the brief space at our disposal here. You had better consult one already in the business.

J. D. D., Providence.—See the notice at the head of this column. That rule is imperative.

T. W. C., Paterson.—Yes, it could be copyrighted—not only by the first person, but also by as many others as cared to pay the fee, after having appropriated it from the same foreign source. In other words, the theft of it, even if copyrighted, would not protect the first offender.

J. C. R., Washington.—1. Write to French & Son, West Twenty-third Street, and H. S. Taylor, 1,193 Broadway, this city. 2. There is no reliable guide or directory now in existence. The theatrical columns of THE CLIPPER afford the only accurate information. See the notice at the head of this column.

BETTER.—The Buffalo Bill Show never exhibited on those grounds.

R. E. L., Richmond.—1. We do not wish to recommend books. Actual experience is the best teacher. 2. Yes, if he is clever, original and patient. 3. No, not at all. 4. Yes; but he must be cautious at every step.

"ES ROUTE."—Confirming our reply to you of several weeks ago, we have now, from Miss M. herself, the statement that she was born on Fulton Street, this city.

A. C. S., Toledo.—We do not know. Why not write to Mr. Hart, of that firm, as per the route of the company, in this week's CLIPPER?

C. I. V., Leominster.—For an official list of his houses, write to his general manager, Col. D. A. Keys, at the Twenty-third Street Theatre, this city.

J. W. H. JR., Dixmont.—1, 2 and 3. All the information we are at liberty to give will be found from week to week in our circus routes and in the column headed "Under the White Tents." We cannot reveal the movements of circuses more than two weeks ahead. 4. Yes, some attache of each show generally attends to the sale.

E. J. W., New Hampton.—See the notice at the head of this column. We publish their routes whenever we receive them in due season.

C. I., Buffalo.—See the notice at the head of this column.

C. I., Tulare City.—Write to Cordray's Theatre, Portland, Ore.

O. P. F., Baltimore.—See the notice at the head of this column.

C. W. P., Pueblo.—Yes, they were all together for a time some years ago.

F. V. D., Boston.—L. W. Washburn is the manager of the company playing under that title, and you can address him as per the notice at the head of this column.

F. B., Philadelphia.—1. They would be of no special value to us. 2. From $25 to $75 a week, according to the originality, cleverness and reputation of the performer. 3. Thanks for your compliment.

E. S. R.—You will have to write to the manager of that theatre.

"MORA."—1. They have closed their season. 2. Yes. 3. We do not wish to vouch for any person's responsibility. That is clearly not a part of our duty to our readers. 4. $2.80 for each insertion.

C. H. D., Cheyenne.—See the notice at the head of this column.

P. B., Brooklyn.—There is no book on that subject. Advertise your quartet in THE CLIPPER.

H. P., Manistee.—Your town is not represented by a CLIPPER correspondent simply because we find it inexpedient to appoint one there. It is out of the question to expect us to place a correspondent in every city where there is an opera house. We haven't space enough to contain the reports. Therefore, we must do the next best thing, which is to allow only the more important places representation. Our tendency is to decrease, instead of increase, our list of correspondents.

CONSTANT READER, San Diego.—She was born in a small village near New Orleans, La., June 15, 1835, and died Aug. 11, 1868, in the Rue Cramartine, Paris.

W. L., Detroit.—He did sing in this country during the season of 1871-2, and sailed for Germany May 2, 1872.

J. E. B., Altoona.—Yes. She accompanied the troupe, and appeared several times before leaving them abruptly to be wedded.

"MORTUARY."—1. Mr. Murdoch's remains were interred at Woodlawn Cemetery, West Philadelphia. 2. We find no record beyond the mention of the temporary interment; but you can ascertain by writing to his brother, Wm. F. Burroughs.

T. B. P., Muncy.—If we have their route you will find it on the second page of this issue, under the head "Dramatic." See the notice at the head of this column.

ARGUMENT.—1. We depart from our custom (which we have never before heard questioned) so far as to inform you that a perfect copyright secures the exclusive right of publishing the book or article copyrighted for twenty eight years, and six months before the end of that time a renewal for the further term of fourteen years may be secured. 2. In ordering CLIPPER ANNUALS always mention the year wanted; otherwise we will send the latest issue. Return that for 1890, and we will send the issue of 1889 in place of it.

T. W. B., London.—The applicant from Valparaiso, Ind., will probably do what he agrees to. But we cannot undertake to give advice as to making contracts, terms, etc. You must use your own judgment in such matters.

MISS A. E. C., Chicago.—You must be governed by the rule at the head of this column. If the case is extremely urgent, you might write to the secretary of the Musicians' Mutual Protective Union, this city.

H. C. D., Marietta.—Write to Superintendent Wilson, at the Home, Holmesburg, Pa. He will give you the details.

MISS J. G., Brooke.—See the notice at the head of this column, and write to him as there directed.

MC., Jackson.—We cannot go into the history of that show. Write for the information you require to the Sells Bros., as per route ahead, or in care of THE CLIPPER.

ROBERT, Detroit.—1 and 2. Not that we can recall. 3. From $25 upwards, according to the merit of the act. 4. The only list to be relied upon is that contained in THE CLIPPER'S theatrical columns.

TRAPEZE, Brooklyn.—There is no regular school teaching that business in all its points, but most gymnasiums will give preparatory instruction. Apply at Wood's Gymnasium, East Twenty-eighth Street, near Madison Avenue.

O. C., Batavia.—1. There is no average system. The pay ranges from $15 to $60 a week, according to the singer's ability and repute. They are most valuable in minstrel and concert companies. 2. All advertisements are twenty cents per line for each insertion. See the rates at the head of this page.

H. R., West Ashville.—See the notice at the head of this column.

CARDS.

J. R. A., Covington.—D wins with his aces, if C only showed a "bobtail" on the call. The aces beat the "bobtail," surely. We fail to see the cause of any dispute when, as you state, it had been specially agreed by your coterie for the opener to be declared a loser, upon his failure to show his discard—a needless argument, by the way. By simply placing his discarded card in its proper position in the discard pile, the opener would conform to all true poker principles. The discard pile, if correctly made, would then tell its own tale, if his hand should afterward be questioned. The disagreement in your circle was due entirely to the fault of not keeping a systematic discard pile. It is, therefore, impossible to prove that C did not have openers, and his word must, of necessity, be accepted as conclusive evidence.

A. L. M., Pittsburg.—1. C was wrong in his assertion. He could not take the build in the manner described. 2. No answers by mail or telegraph.

CLUB ROOM, St. Paul.—1. It was a false opening, the penalty for which your circle must mutually agree upon. B was right in his claim. He can take down his money, as also must C. The original pot, with A's penalty added, then stands ready to be played for again. This disposition of that particular pot gives due justice to every player, besides making A pay for his error, the amount of the penalty for which, as above stated, must be agreed upon by the parties interested. 2. A is certainly not entitled to the pot, nor is B for that matter, as neither might probably not have profited by their play, if A had not falsely opened. The method suggested in the first case may be applied with fairness to this. A should be made to pay a good sum for his error in this instance, as he continued on his way when he knew he was in the wrong path. If he had given voice to his mistake on the draw, it is obvious that no occasion for a dispute would have occurred.

F. BROS., Chicago.—Fred wins. His low counted before Mack's jack, game, pedro.

T. H., Montreal.—You were right in your claim, according to your statement. The discarding was merely a matter of form, and, in the case cited, would have been a needless waste of time. The word was equal to the deed, under the circumstances.

G. B. S., Columbia.—1. No. 2. The player having but one to go and holding low wins. The points count out in their regular order, the bidder having two to go. 3. No answers by mail or telegraph.

R. W., Seaforth.—1. It depends entirely upon a previous agreement or the custom of your coterie. When you agree to play straights, you should also agree upon their relative ranking value. The bet, as stated, cannot be decided. 2. A loses. The age never passes. The straddle only gives the player straddling the right to be the last one in before the draw.

S. S., Spokane Falls.—B was right in his claim, according to your statement.

HOYLE.—C must make the first bet after the draw. The age never passes.

E. J., Pittston.—If A got but three tricks, he could count one only; if B got three tricks, he could count two—for the euchre. At euchre, properly played, B could not legally go alone and gain anything by it. Only the player who assumes the responsibility of the trump, either by picking it up, making it, or ordering it up, possesses the right to go alone in the true, non-assisting game.

C. F. JR., Carbondale.—F wins. He was right in his claim. The cards you sent are of the first quality of that make. The difference between "seconds" and the first quality is easily distinguished in all decks of cards, manufactured by reputable houses, by the ace of club. In a pack of "seconds" the words "second quality" are plainly printed in the circle surrounding the suit mark in the centre of the ace of clubs; while in first quality cards the ace of clubs stands alone and is without any extra marking. Enclosed with the pack we have returned to you by mail, you will find an ace of clubs taken from a deck of "seconds" manufactured by the same house as the pack received. The wrappers, you will see, also tell the tale very distinctly.

BASEBALL.

B. C.—1. The bet as to innings is a draw. 2. All bets on the result go in accordance with the umpire's decision. Usually these combination bets are made in the pool rooms, where the rules are arbitrary, differing in different places. We do not pretend to regulate them or make them uniform. 3. You do not state how the bet on the tie was made, and we therefore cannot make a decision on it.

A. N., Brooklyn.—The decision was contrary to the spirit and letter of the rules. But Umpire Gaffney says their instructions were: "Any fly ball that they considered an easy catch." As long as they have been instructed in that way, there is no limit to such plays. The rule as it stands is a poor one, and should be abolished.

A. S.—1. Ewing has entire charge of the men. 2. Farrington is business manager for the club.

A. C. R., Brooklyn.—1. Write to William McMahon, of this city, and he may be able to give you the information you desire. 2. We have not the time to look it up.

A. S., Chicago.—1. J. A. Williams is in business at Columbus, O. 2. O. H. Shomberg is in business at Indianapolis, we believe. 3. Alex. McKimmon is dead. 4. The other men are either not playing ball or are in some one of the minor leagues.

J. H., St. Louis.—You are right. The bet is a draw, in so far as both games bet on were not played.

T. E., Jersey City.—The old Metropolitan Club of this city was organized in September, 1860, and twenty one players took part in its thirty-one games that season.

W. O., Duluth.—1. A loses if we are to decide the bet. 2. It is of course a fair hit. 3. No answers by mail.

B. I. E., Brooklyn.—We have not seen it, but if you quote him correctly then it is only another one of his many "breaks."

ATHLETIC.

CONSTANT READER, Montreal.—The present amateur champion high jumper of America is R. K. Pritchard, of the Staten Island A. C., but the holder of the best record for the game is W. B. Page; height cleared, 6ft. 4in.

T. C. H., Middleport.—The rules are contained in The Sporting Life Companion, published at the office of The Sporting Life, London, Eng.

J. G., New Bedford.—At the time Harry Hutchens ran three hundred yards in 38s., at Edinburgh, Scotland, he ran from scratch in a handicap. Cannot tell you how many starters there were in the race.

W. AND H., Waterbury.—In the game of polo played by the New Haven and New Britain teams at New Haven, Ct., Feb. 28 last, the New Britains were defeated by a score of 8 to 1.

T. H. B., Athens.—1. From Peck & Snyder, 126 Nassau Street, this city. 2. See Ring answers.

W. O. L., Buffalo.—If the agreement was that Faulkner was to throw Gallagher (a fair fall, of course) in twenty minutes, or forfeit fifty dollars, and he failed to do so, then he loses his money.

E. B., Danbury.—We do not know the present whereabouts of the lady. A letter addressed in care of this office will reach her, however.

RING.

T. H. B., Athens.—Jack Dempsey has a brother named Martin, who is a wrestler, as Jack was before he developed into a boxer.

J. P., Montreal.—Alfred Greenfield, the English pugilist, was never knocked out by John L. Sullivan. They met twice in glove contests.

H., Washington.—They sparred in several places together.

C. H. H., St. Paul.—We presume you mean James Corbett. The meeting between him and Jake Kilrain at New Orleans resulted in favor of Corbett, although there was no "whipping" about it. Kilrain undertook to knock out Corbett in a certain number of rounds, and had the worst of the setto.

J. K., Cleveland.—There is no champion female pugilist, and no prize fight between females for the championship ever occurred.

J. S., Brooklyn.—If you mean the champion, John L. Sullivan, he was never knocked out by Ryan or anyone else.

READER, Newark.—A swinging blow, if it "gets there," for the reason that it can be delivered with more force than one sent straight from the shoulder. There is, however, always danger of the striker injuring himself when he delivers round armed blows.

TURF.

J. F., Washington.—1. If the wager was made on the basis of the circular issued by the managers, and which was supposed to contain the names of all the horses that were to start, then you win, as your horse finished second to the animal that was afterwards entered and won the race. 2. The other horses are allowed to start, unless the conditions of the race expressly state that they shall not be entitled to, owing to not having won one of the first three heats.

M. L. C., Pittsburg.—1. The stallion Axtell was bought last October, after making his record of 2:12, by a syndicate represented by Colonel Conley, and of which W. P. Iiams and Budd Doble are members. 2. Address Mr. Doble at Terre Haute, Ind.

E. W., Helena.—James Keene's horse Foxhall never won the English Derby, but Iroquois did, being the only American horse that ever captured the stake.

WAGER, Montreal.—There have been thoroughbred trotters. The draft horse is not a thoroughbred. The term thoroughbred, as applied to horses, means, technically and in turf usage, one whose ancestry can be traced directly to the Arab, Barb or Turkish horses introduced into England about two centuries ago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

C. A., South Boston.—Nearly nine miles.

T. J., St. Joseph.—It was after his retirement from the Senate in 1842. Further details next week, probably.

WHITFIELD, Providence.—Answer in a later issue. Your query has been referred to the U. S. Navy Department.

J. W. H., Meriden.—We will decide almost anything save bets or queries as to the "largest circulation" of newspapers. Spare us that, please.

T. D. VAN O., Cleveland.—THE CLIPPER leaves here on Wednesday morning for each of the cities named.

W. A. J., Columbia.—Address Harbach & Co., 809 Filbert Street, Philadelphia.

PROF. E. R. H., Memphis.—The Unexcelled Fireworks Co., Park Place, this city.

H. A. C., Allegheny.—Write to A. S. Clark, 34 Park Row, this city.

We this week present a striking likeness of a man who is as widely known, as capable and as popular as any member of his profession on either side of the Atlantic. Jack McMaster was born in the parish of Kirkmaiden, Wigtownshire, Scotland, on Aug. 18, 1851. From his youth he was fond of outdoor sports, and when still in his teens commenced the business of a trainer of athletes, being initiated into the mysteries of the profession by the noted runner Bill Lang, alias "Crowcatcher," at the Royal Oak Park grounds, Manchester, in 1870. The first man he trained was James Nuttall, of Manchester, for a race for the six hundred yards champion gold cup, which he won from H. Whitehead, of Hyde. McMaster next trained Nuttall for his race with S. Ridley, of Gateshead, to run one thousand yards for the championship and $1,000. Nuttall was again successful, winning by a yard. These successive victories of his trainee had the effect of bringing Jack before the sporting world, and his services were in demand. He next took charge of the preparation of Charley Wright, a runner of Sheffield, for a match race of one hundred and forty yards with H. Stimpson, at Hyde Park, Sheffield, Wright winning by one foot. He then prepared James McLeavey for Tom Sehn's four mile handicap at London, McLeavey winning by fifty yards. Jack next trained Nuttall to run Dick Buttery six hundred yards. Butterby won by a yard. The next customer was S. Yates, of Birmingham, when he won the three hundred yards handicap given by John Cooper, at Royal Oak Park, Manchester. He then took hold of E. Roberts, of Birmingham, when he won Albison's two hundred and four yards handicap, at the Royal Oak. His next subject was Bob Hindle, of Paisley, for his match with G. Walsh, of Royton, to run five hundred and seventy yards, at the Royal Oak. Hindle won by eight yards. McMaster then prepared George Parry (well known in the States) to walk a match of four miles with J. Hurley, of London, at the Royal Oak Park. Parry was the victor by four yards, thus adding to the reputation gained by Jack as a careful and competent trainer. In the year 1879 McMaster left England in quest of a wider and more profitable field for his talents in the United States, landing in this city on Sept. 3 of that year. Shortly afterwards he paid a visit to his old friend Arthur Chambers, proprietor of "The Champion's Rest," in the Quaker City, and while there was engaged to prepare W. Barnes, of Manayunk, for a match with Tomlinson, of Frankford. The distance was one hundred and twenty-five yards, and the race was won by Barnes, by three yards. This was a good commencement for Mac in the land of his adoption, and not long afterwards he was engaged as trainer for Horace H. Lee, then the fastest sprinter among the athletes of the University of Pennsylvania, and who has a record of one hundred yards in even time. He had charge of Lee's preparation for a dozen races, of which he won ten. Subsequently Lee obtained a position for McMaster with the Brooklyn Athletic Club, of the City of Churches, with grounds at Ninth Street and Ninth Avenue. He remained with that organization one season, when he left to accept a similar position (trainer and trackmaster) with the old Williamsburg Athletic Club, of the Eastern District. This was Jack's favorite club, and while with them he had the best of good luck, bringing out some of the best amateur runners, etc., ever seen in America, among the number being W. H. Robertson, Frank P. Murray, C. E. Rodgers, Frank Trunkett, W. Parry, W. Smith, J. Tivey, T. F. Delaney, J. Hatfield, B. Tobey, A. C. Cooper, G. R. Smith, J. Saunders and a great many more. He went with the organization when they removed to Dekalb Avenue, built the track for them, and remained with the club till four years ago, when he resigned rather than work under a certain party. Jack then went to Washington Park, being engaged by C. A. Byrne to look after the interests of the members of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, and he still occupies the same position, which is a sufficient commentary on his ability, and attests the satisfaction which he has given his employers. Besides preparing athletes for contests of speed, skill and endurance, McMaster has generally had one or two running dogs, to which he has devoted much attention, and, as a result of his care and training, some of them have shown remarkably fast trials.

To Run It Over.

A special meeting of the Executive Committee of the National 'Cross Country Association was held in this city on the evening of May 1, at which the report of the judges at the finish of the junior 'cross country championship run at Morris Park was received and considered. These officials became confused and were unable to properly score the competitors as they passed, which led to their first declaring the Pastime team the winners, and afterwards reversing their decision and giving the honor to the Acorn A. C. team. After giving the matter careful consideration, the committee, in order that there should be no injustice done to anyone, ordered that the race be run over at the same place on Sunday afternoon, May 11. No admission fee will be charged. The Acorns protest against the decision, and will probably not appear for the run over.

English Boxing Championships.

The annual competitions for the amateur boxing championships of England came off at the Central Hall, Holborn, London, April 14. As a rule, the displays were characterized by hard hitting rather than a due regard to the science of self defence—a fact which the sporting journals comment upon unfavorably. The winners of the different classes were as follow: Bantam weight—J. J. Rowe, R. V. A. A. C., beat J. Clarke, Northampton A. C., in the final bout. Feather weight—G. F. Belsey, Polytechnic B. C., beat D. Murphy, Spitalfields, in the final. Light weight—A. J. Newton, Isledon B. C., beat H. A. Fawcett, Cestus B. C., in the final. Middle weight—J. Hoare, Orion Gymnasium, beat G. West, Birmingham, in the final, the latter having had a bye and Hoare previously beating W. H. Heath, of New Mexico, in a heavy slogging bout. Heavy weight—J. Steers, London, beat W. C. Castle, Newmarket, in the final.

THE POTOMAC BOAT CLUB, of Washington, D. C., following the example set them by their neighbors, the Columbias, have now become an athletic club as well. They have secured about fifteen acres of land on the Virginia side of the Potomac River, upon which they will erect suitable buildings, build a quarter mile cinder path, lay out tennis courts, and prepare a field for lacrosse, football and similar sports.

A MATCH at lacrosse was played at Princeton, N. J., on Saturday afternoon, May 3, between the team of University reserves and the representatives of the Lawrenceville Preparatory School, the former winning by a score of four goals to none.

THE Lehigh and Stevens Institute teams opened the series of lacrosse games for the inter-collegiate championship at Bethlehem, Pa., May 3, the game resulting in the success of the local team by nine goals to one.

National Guard Athletes.

The reorganized First Regiment Athletic Association held a series of games at their armory in Philadelphia on the evening of May 3, and so successful were they that the association now propose to hold an open air meeting some time in June. Tug of war, open—The first pull was between the teams of Princeton College and Swarthmore College, and resulted in a draw, and the pull-off was won by Princeton. The latter team then met the team from the Berkeley Athletic Club, and the advantage which the latter possessed over their antagonists gave them the victory by three inches of rope. Fencing—W. J. Firemen's Tournament.

The seventh annual convention and tournament of the North Dakota Volunteer Firemen's Association opens at Fargo on Tuesday, June 17, and continues four days. The cash prizes will be an extra inducement, something over $5,000 having already been subscribed. The committee having the tournament in charge promise the grandest affair of the kind ever held in the Northwest. The features will include hose and hook and ladder races, coupling and ladder climbing contests, bicycle and foot races. In connection with the tournament will be a grand band contest by at least twenty-five bands from North Dakota and Northern Minnesota, from towns within a radius of two hundred miles. Con Walker is also getting up a baseball tournament, open to all amateurs in the Northwest, for cash prizes aggregating $400. The track around Island Park is being put in the best condition possible, which means one of the fastest in the world, taking last year's records as a criterion. Several manufacturers have signified their intention of exhibiting the latest improved fire apparatus, giving workings as in actual service. Competent judges have been provided, and every promise made is to be fulfilled to the letter.

Harvard Athletes Compete.

A goodly crowd witnessed some very good contests at the Spring meeting of the Harvard Athletic Association, held on Holmes' field, Cambridge, Mass., on Saturday afternoon, May 3. The weather was clear and cool, with a stiff wind, which materially assisted the runners in the sprints and hurdle races. Excellent work was accomplished in several of the events. pion checker player of the world, is out with a challenge to play any player in the world a match of seventy games, wins and draws to count, for $1,000 to $5,000 a side, and will give one game to start." "Mr. Wyllie plainly ignores our offer to play him, as published in The Review of Nov. 15, and allow him $100 expenses, to play in Chicago." "When Mr. Wyllie returns to either Scotland, or to America, he will be accommodated to a match for at least as large a stake as he ever played for, and he need give no odds." As the editor of this magazine is the champion checker player of America we may consider this official..... A dark, smooth faced stranger walked into the "Headquarters" the other night, and inquired if there were any checker players about, as he desired to see how the New York players did it. Oh, yes! There was; one in particular, a would be champion, formerly of 96 Barrow Street. Result at end of sitting: Stark, 3; Jackson, 0; drawn, 3. Mr. Stark returned to Penn Yan fully convinced that some of the New York champions were not quite so formidable across the board as they were on paper..... H. Z. Wright is making things hum in the checker line. He has just concluded a very successful week's engagement at Pittsburg, Pa. CHESS.

To Correspondents.

GEO. HASKINS, Rochester, N. Y.—Thank you for calling our attention to the discrepancies; see "Errata."

WALTER BENNETT, El Paso, Ill.—A true bill; we hope you will come oftener.

R. H. RICE.—Mr. B. solves 1,739 in two moves!

A. DORSENBACH, Rochester, N. Y.—Thank you for the contribution; but long experience has taught us the necessity of requiring problems on diagrams, and with solutions.

BRO. STUBBS, St. John, N. B.—Thanks for the attention; we anticipate much pleasure in noticing the book on its appearance.

BRO. PETERSON.—We fire on you, "point blank."

BRO. MORGAN.—Of course we cannot notice, or especially recommend, a book we have never seen. Meanwhile, see below.

BRO. HUNTINGTON.—You may as well be rustling up some more positions for us; we have but one left, a part of No. 18 being blurred.

BRO. SCHUBERT.—So, you see, the staunch, old CLIPPER cannot long be forgotten with impunity.

CAD DEVIDE.—Can you tell us what has become of our favorite psychologician?

ERRATA.—A correspondent kindly points out that, in Enig. 1,735, Part I, the White Rook should stand on K B 3; and in Enig. 1,736, Part II, the White Pawn should stand on K B 5—instead of 6. Also, alas! that Problem No. 1,739 can be solved in two moves! Whew! Basta! it sufficeth!

THE highly original composition, Part II, of our Enig. below, was dedicated by the d stinguished first prize winner in Nuenschner Nachrichten's recent tourney, to his judges, Herren Kohtz and Kockelkorn.

WE RARELY have so great pleasure in announcing anything to the American chess world, as what has just been brought to our attention by our friend, W. W. Morgan Jr., of London. It is rare, indeed, that the adage—"Chess players (and, for that matter, chess editors) may come and go, but chess goes on forever"—receives so prompt and satisfactory an illustration as we have now to record. Our regrets at the loss of Columbia C. C. are unexpectedly turned into rejoicings. True, we should have preferred that the new revelation had come from an American source; but, failing that, our no less hearty support is given to our English cousin. Bro. Morgan says: "In answer to the suggestion of several friends, and with a view of keeping pace with the times, we have decided to issue The Chess Players' Chronicle during the off season of 1890 at one penny per copy, and we hope to make the paper of such interest to chess players as will secure for us sufficient support to enable it to be continued at that price. The present age is essentially one of cheap literature, and our recent experience in other quarters has convinced us that there is ample scope for a chess magazine at a popular price. We shall endeavor to prove ourselves capable of supplying the want, and we trust that the chess playing public will appreciate the efforts we make in this direction." There! that merits a generous response. Excellent chess, handsomely printed, and frequent moderate accounts, at two cents a copy! To be had at Brentano's, Union Square, this city, from April 12 ult. W. W. Morgan Jr., 17 Medina Road, Holloway, London, N., England.

THE FINAL last, or last final, decision of the managers, United States vs. Canada, seems to be: Drawn, 15; Canada, 16; U. S., 29. Totals—Canada, 23½; U. S., 36½.

MAJOR O. E. MICHAELIS, who died May 1, at Augusta, Me., of spinal meningitis, was born in this State, and was graduated from the old free academy in this city. From the position of Assistant Actuary in the New York Mutual Life Insurance Co., he entered the Signal Service Corps during the war. Later he went into the regular army, and was with Gen. Sherman on his march to the sea. Major Michaelis was an expert and an authority on whist and chess, and was a member of the Manhattan Chess Club and the Engineers' 2 Club, of this city. In 1857, when only fifteen years of age, he played a series of games at chess with Paul Morphy at the St. Nicholas Hotel. Michaelis had the odds of one Rook, and won two games.

(a) [Herr G. is said to have accepted the gambit with some hesitation, and nervously awaited the continuation; but on receiving the text move, instead of the more dangerous 3...P to Q B 3, or K B to B 4, he knew at once that he would win or draw, as he was thoroughly conversant with this comparatively weak variation.]

(b) K B to K 2 is stronger; P to K 5, inferior.—P.

(c) First introduced by me vs. Minckwitz, in Hamburg, '83.—G.

(d) It may be doubted whether this is the most vigorous continuation. 14...P to Q Kt 4 has much in its favor. Another likely line of play is B to Kt 3, to be followed by advancing Q B P.—G.

(d) White's game is too strong to tempt B × Kt, on account of a dangerous end game.—P.

(e) Now P to Kt 5 is distinctly preferable.—P.

(f) [As a corollary to Black's inferior text 23...Mr. S. proceeds]: "For now White could have obtained the superiority by:

24...Q B to B 2	K R to Q (1)	26...Q to K 4, and ought to win. (1) If Black 24...Q R to Q 2:

(2) If 25...Kt to R sq; 26...Q to K 4, with a fine attack."

(f) Feeble; correct was 25...P to K 5, for if 25...Kt to Kt 3; 26...B to B 2, R to Q sq, or Q R to Q 2; 27...Q to K 4, winning a P with an excellent game.—S.

(g) To prevent an exchange of pieces by B to Q 6.—G.

(h) An important move thrown away; B to B 2, at once, was clearly better.—S.

(i) Far better was 35...P to K Kt 3.—S.

(??) A fatal mistake; Kt to K 3 was better.—S. Gunsberg finishes the game with consummate skill, though this move assists him considerably.—P.

STRAY SPARKS FROM THE DIAMOND.

Gossip About Ball Tossers from Here, There and Everywhere.

"Every game played by my team in St. Louis," said Manager Buckenberger, of the Columbus Club, of the American Association, "will be protested by me, as they are not legal. The rules have been changed to read as follows in regard to the rubber that is to be used in the pitcher's box: 'Rule 5 (of the National Playing Rules) * * * Each corner of this space must be marked by a round rubber plate six inches in diameter, fixed in the ground even with the surface.' The rule says very explicitly that the corners must be of rubber. I discovered last Sunday that stone was still being used by Mr. Von der Ahe, instead of rubber, as called for by the changes made, and I immediately notified Mr. Von der Ahe that all the games played by my team in St. Louis would be played under protest. The box at home, as well as the one in Louisville, have been changed so as to comply with the recent change, and I feel positive that the American Association will uphold me in my protests. I could have refused to play any of the games there on account of the box being illegal."

The future of the Worcester Club, of the Atlantic Association, is decidedly uncertain. J. J. Kennedy, who has been considered the financial backer of the nine, announces that he has done with the whole business. He claims that Treasurer Seeley, of the street railway company, promised him $800 if he would assume the responsibility of running the team through the season. He, on his part, agreed to arrange matters with the Atlantic Association syndicate, paying back to them the $2,000 they had advanced to purchase the franchise from the old stockholders last Winter. Mr. Seeley, according to Mr. Kennedy's statement, failed, after repeated solicitation on Mr. Kennedy's part, to come to time. The ownership and management of the Worcester team thus reverts to the Atlantic Association syndicate.

In speaking of long distance throwing, Denny Lyons says: "I don't believe in the long distance throwing. Jim Peeples was one of the boys with an iron arm. He used to needlessly throw the ball all around. Look at him today. Harry Stovey was very much worried after he made his long throw in Cincinnati. His arm pained him for over a week, and he advised everybody to stay out of such contests in the future." It was long distance throwing that used up Sam Thompson's arm in 1888.

John I. Rogers, counsel for the Kansas City Club, of the Western Association, filed a bill in equity April 29, in the Court of Common Pleas, in Philadelphia, against John Pickett and the Philadelphia Club, of the Players' League. The object of the bill is to restrain Pickett from giving his services as a player for the present season to any other organization than the plaintiff, and to restrain the defendant from employing Pickett for this season.

At Washington, the Jersey Citys were vanquished by the home team, by a score of 9 to 6.

Al. Spink says: "There is no denying the fact that there is bad blood between the old players of the National and Players' leagues, and that the feeling is so intense and bitter that it may lead to more than one encounter during the season." We hope it will not come to that. Nothing is to be gained by any such encounters. Fight it out on the ball field, and let the result at the end of the season speak for itself.

Only one inning of the Brooklyn-Boston National League game was played May 1, at Brooklyn, but during its progress McGarr, of the visiting team, accidentally spiked Pinkney, of the Brooklyns, while sliding to third base.

It is reported that the Baltimore Club, of the Atlantic Association, is after the Pittsburg National League Club's franchise. Manager Barnie is anxious to get in the major league.

The game between the Eastons and Lancasters of the Inter-State League (East), played May 3, at Easton, was won by the latter by a score of 11 to 9.

The offer of the Louisville Club to meet St. Louis for a moneyed consideration, coming, as it does, right after the Baltimore Club's offer to play Rochester for the entire gate receipts and a wager besides, does not speak well for the National Agreement clubs that have been claiming that in them depends the future honesty and uprightness of the national game. If those clubs are allowed to make such offers and go unpunished, it will not be long before the public will set up the cry of hippodrome. The offers may have been made under very trying circumstances, but no justifiable excuse can be given for them, and the parties who have been guilty of so violating the constitution of their organization should be punished in a manner that the offence will not soon be repeated. Had any of the clubs of the Players' League been guilty of such a thing, what a text there would have been for a sermon on the depravity and downfall of the game since the players took hold for themselves.

The Philadelphia reporters have a novel way of amusing themselves, which, for originality, should be given a prominent place. The Philadelphia Ledger of May 3 says: "A very pretty game was spoiled at Forepaugh Park yesterday afternoon by the umpiring of Messrs. Ferguson and Holbert. In the absence of the few misplays, made by the players of the two teams, the scorers amused themselves by utilizing the error column on the score card to record the bad decisions by the two umpires, and, when the game was over, the score stood: Ferguson, 12; Holbert, 3. Of Ferguson's 12 errors 9 were against the Philadelphias and 3 against the Bostons. Holbert's 'breaks' were the other way, 2 to 1 against the Bostons. Ferguson, fortunately for Boston, bunched most of his errors in the second inning, and the result was five runs—and the game—for the visitors."

The California League games resulted as follow: At San Francisco, April 24, after two men were out in the ninth inning, the Stocktons made seven runs and defeated the Oaklands by a score of 10 to 8. Perrott, the new pitcher for the Stocktons, made his debut April 25 at Oakland. He has speed and excellent delivery, but was nervous and irregular, and, coupled with the Stockton's numerous errors, allowed the San Franciscos to win by a score of 10 to 2. At Sacramento, April 25, the home team only got one hit off Cobb's delivery, and were shut out by the Oaklands, score 7 to 0. The home team defeated the visitors, 26, by a score of 5 to 4. They also defeated the Stocktons at Stockton and at Sacramento in both morning and afternoon games on 27. First game was a ten inning contest; score, 3 to 2. In the second Perrott was hit hard; score, 21 to 7.

It is reported that Director Schmidt, of the Pittsburg Club, of the National League, is arranging for the transfer of the club of that city to Indianapolis, notwithstanding President Young's denial that Pittsburg is to go out. When Brush agreed to transfer his players to New York there was a proviso in the agreement that, should Indianapolis go into the season, Glasscock and one other player, probably Boyle or Rusie, were to return, provided the amount of advance money paid them by New York was refunded. Brush has all along desired a club, but his fellow directors were not in favor of it. This Brush has overcome, and his recent admission that he would not interfere with Pittsburg's coming here is now shown up in its true light. When the Pittsburg Club completes its trip it will not return to its old abode, but will land in Hoosierdom.

Word comes from Columbus to the effect that the owners of the Columbus Club, of the American Association, have admitted that Fred B. Newburg, late secretary and treasurer of the Club, was an embezzler of funds of the Club to the amount of thousands of dollars. His stealings have been covered by a shrewd system of false entries. Newburg was Clerk of the State Board of Public Works some time ago, and embezzled public funds then. He was convicted on three counts out of fifty cases, and sent to the State prison for fifteen years. Lazarus Bros., the Columbus Club owners, took him into their employ on his release, thinking he had been reformed. He is supposed now to be in Chicago. His personal property has been seized, and will be sold at auction.

The National League of Great Britain has just completed its organization, with a view to the introduction of the American National game into England. Instructors will be located at the principal football centres, and the League proposes to offer engagements to celebrated American players to come across the water and teach the game. The first match of the season was played at Preston, Lancashire, on April 30, the sides being the Western League and the North End Clubs, and there was a large crowd of enthusiastic spectators. Further matches have been arranged at Birmingham, Derby, Glasgow and Edinburgh. The Surrey League is considering the step of guaranteeing a certain sum to an American team if they can induce one to come to England during the coming season.

Pitcher Clarkson, of the Boston Club, of the National League, is rapidly recovering from his accident. His foot has not pained him for several days, and within a week he will probably be in condition to join the Bostons. The accident was a peculiar one, and was not a sprain of the ankle as announced, but was a strain of the ligaments and muscles of the toes of the right foot.

The Atlantic Association games played May 3 resulted as follow: At Wilmington, the home team was beaten by the Washingtons by a score of 11 to 2. At Newark, the Baltimores were defeated by a score of 10 to 6. At Jersey City, the Worcesters sustained a defeat by the home team by a score of 10 to 6. At New Haven, the Hartfords lost to the home team by a score of 7 to 5.

President Phelps, of the American Association, is proving himself to be the right man in the right place. Had he been at the head of that organization from its inception it undoubtedly would be the leading organization to-day. He will have considerable to contend with, but he seems to have the courage to face it.

The Atlantic Association games played May 2, resulted as follow: At Washington, the Worcesters were defeated by a score of 10 to 5. At Wilmington, the New Haven won by a score of 13 to 2. At Baltimore, the home team was defeated by the Jersey Citys by a score of 4 to 3. At Newark, the Hartfords were beaten by Newark by a score of 8 to 5.

The result of the International League game played May 2 is as follows: At Buffalo, the home team was beaten by the London by a score of 17 to 4. At Toronto, the Detroits won by a score of 7 to 2. At Hamilton, the home team defeated the Saginaw-Bay Citys by a score of 6 to 1.

The games played in the Inter-State League (East) May 2, resulted as follow: At Altoona, the Harrisburgs were defeated by a score of 12 to 7. At Easton, the home team won from the Lancasters, by a score of 6 to 3. At Lebanon, the Yorks won by a score of 13 to 8.

The Inter-State League (West) games played May 2 resulted as follow: At Evansville, the Terre Hautes won by a score of 5 to 4. At Burlington, the Quincys were defeated by a score of 6 to 5. At Galesburg, the home team knocked out the Peorias by a score of 31 to 5.

The Texas League games played May 2, resulted as follow: At Fort Worth, the Galvestons won by a score of 4 to 3. At Waco, the Austins and Wacos played a fourteen innings game, which was called on account of darkness, with the score standing 2 to 2.

Two of the old Metropolitan players are proving that they are not back numbers by any means, judging from the way they are playing this year. They are Esterbrook, of the New Yorks, of the National League, and Roseman, of the St. Louis team, of the American Association.

Mickey Welch's three by five smile was straightened out considerably by the Brooklyns, of the National League, in the game played, May 3, at Washington Park, Brooklyn. Foutz was particularly hard on him.

George Gore must put a little more speed in his gait when returning to a base after Ward catches a fly ball, as Johnnie takes advantages of all such little "funnyisms."

Conner and Slattery seemed to have their weather eye on the ball in the game played May 3, at Eastern Park, Brooklyn. The Jamaica Bay air appeared to brace them up wonderfully.

Steve Brady resigned a manager of the Jersey City Club, of the Atlantic Association, May 3, and the veteran second baseman, John J. Burdock, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The Boston Club of the Players' League, may have the greatest trio of outfielders in the profession, but it will be hard to find a better quarto of infielders than those of the Brooklyn team, of the same league.

As De Wolf Hopper would say, "That was a la la" stop Whitney made of the line ball from Orr's bat in the eighth inning of the Brooklyn-New York game played May 3, at Eastern Park, Brooklyn.

Dave Foutz made Mickey Welch's acquaintance May 3, at Washington Park, Brooklyn, to the extent of a homer and three singles.

The Cleveland Club, of the National League, has released Joe Sommer.

The Rochester Club, of the American Association, has a trio of fine pitchers in Barr, Callihan and Fitzgerald. It would be just as well to keep an eye on Rochester this year.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Philadelphia vs. New York.

Jerry Denny's wild throw in the ninth inning enabled the Philadelphias to score a victory over the New Yorks, April 29, at Philadelphia, in the presence of 6,952 people. His anxiety to make a double play caused him to make a wild throw to second base and gave the home team two runs when they should have been blanked. Rusie was put in against the Philadelphias, and, as in all former games he pitched against them, he proved a puzzler, they making only five safe hits off him. Gleason occupied the box for the home team, and, although he did well, he was baited hard at the right time, and the visitors earned three of the four runs they obtained. No runs were made until the third inning, when two bases on balls and a base hit gave the home team its first tally. In the fourth the New Yorks scored on a base on balls, a steal, a sacrifice and a base hit. The home team scored an earned run in the seventh inning on Clement's two bagger and Mayer's single. In the eighth the New Yorks tied the score on two singles and a two base hit. In the ninth Rusie made a base hit and scored when Tiernan made a home run. In the Philadelphias' half of the ninth Clements struck out. Mayer was given his base on balls, and took third on McCauley's single to right field. The latter went to second on the throw in. Allen was given his base on balls. Then Gleason hit to Denny, and he threw wildly to second in his effort to make a double play. Mayer and McCauley scored and Allen took third. Burke sent a fly to Tiernan, and, before the latter could return the ball home, Allen scored the winning run.

The above result was reversed on April 30, when the New Yorks won by clean, hard batting and faultless fielding. The home team also played well in the field, but could do nothing with Welch's pitching, backed up as it was. In only one inning—the fifth—were the Philadelphias able to get in more than one safe hit off Welch's delivery. Anderson pitched the first five innings for the home team, and was hit safely ten times. He was succeeded by Day, who, after he got over his apparent nervousness, pitched out the game in good style. The only fielding error made by the Philadelphias was Hamilton's excusable muff of a fly ball from Glasscock's bat. Clarke led the batting for the visitors with three singles and a triplet.

The Philadelphias defeated the New Yorks, May 2, by bunching five of their seven hits in two innings—the sixth and seventh—in which Rusie, who was pitching for the visitors, gave four of his six bases on balls. The home team played a sharp fielding game, while the New Yorks were unsteady at times. For five innings Rusie proved an enigma for the Philadelphias, who, in that time, only made two safe hits; after that they managed to get the range of his delivery, and turned the game in their favor. Mayer played a very steady game at third base, and accepted all of the seven chances offered him. He and McCauley made five of the seven hits obtained by the Philadelphias. Tiernan led at the bat for the visitors, with a double and a three baser. The New Yorks rallied in the ninth inning, and came near winning. Vickery pitched a very steady game for the home team. Five of the seven hits obtained by the New Yorks were made in the first and ninth innings.

Brooklyn vs. Boston.

Nichols pitched for the Bostons in their opening game, April 29, at Brooklyn, and was fairly effective. He gave six men their bases on balls, and this, with timely hitting, enabled the home team to score a victory over the visitors. Hughes, although hit oftener than Nichols was, gave fewer bases on balls. Hughes received better support in the field than Nichols did. The Bostons took the lead, but held it only for one inning, when the Brooklyns took it away from them, and retained it throughout the game. In the seventh inning Burns ran into Charley Smith, in trying to reach second base, and upset him, but did not seriously injure him. Corkhill played a brilliant game at centre field, and accepted all of the seven chances offered him. Some of the catches were very difficult ones, and were made only after a long run.

Philadelphia vs. Boston.

The home team succeeded in shutting out the visitors without a run May 3, at Philadelphia. Gleason pitched a great game for the Phillies, and was most effective when men were on the bases and a hit would have given the Bostons a run. Getzein was also effective up to the last two innings, when the Philadelphias bunched five of their seven hits and earned three runs.

The Philadelphias scored another victory over the Bostons, May 5, by their heavy batting. Had they run the bases with any vim, they would have won by a much larger score than they did. A one handed catch by Brodie was the fielding feature of the game. The Bostons could do little with Vickery's delivery until the eighth inning, when they batted out three runs, and he was then replaced by Gleason.

Brooklyn vs. New York.

The first championship game between the above named teams was played May 3 at Brooklyn, and resulted in an apparently easy victory for the home team. Clever fielding was done by both teams, but Denny and Collins particularly distinguished themselves. Welch was batted hard and at the right time.

Chicago vs. Cincinnati.

The Chicago and Cincinnati teams played May 5 at Chicago in the presence of 125 spectators. The game was well contested throughout, and was called at the end of the ninth inning on account of the cold weather, the score being a tie. Both pitchers did good work, and both were equally effective when a hit was needed which would have yielded a run.

THE PLAYERS' LEAGUE.

Brooklyn vs. New York.

The formal opening ceremonies at Eastern Park, Brooklyn, were held April 30, and were a grand success in every way. The day was perfect, and many of the ladies present were attired in bright Spring costumes, lending an additional charm to the already attractive picture. The mammoth grand stand was tastefully decorated with flags and banners of all nations. The Twenty-third Regiment Band played many choice selections. Shortly before 4 o'clock the Brooklyn and New York teams, headed by the band, marched for several minutes over the field, and were given a rousing welcome by the 6,240 spectators present. The teams finally brought up around the home plate, where a temporary stand had been placed, from which the opening address was made. Ex-Judge Henry E. Howland delivered the dedicatory remarks, and he spoke words of cheer and congratulation to the players. His final words were "Play ball." The advice was taken, and the players, without further delay, began the game. Umpire Barnes officiated behind the bat and Gaffney on the bases. The former had a hard time of it, and gave a great deal of dissatisfaction to both the teams, as well as the spectators. No doubt the incessant kicking had a bad effect on him, for he became somewhat rattled. The Brooklyns scored a victory by superior batting, clever base running and fine fielding. Bauer and Andrews, of the Brooklyns, certainly deserve great credit for the masterly work they did. Van Haltren pitched a very clever game, and, with the exception of the ninth inning, prevented the New Yorks from bunching their hits. John Ewing pitched for the visitors, and, with the exception of the fourth inning, did fairly well. In that inning the Brooklyns made five earned runs on three singles, a double and two three baggers. Richardson and Connor carried off the fielding honors for the New Yorks.

The Brooklyns added another victory to their credit, May 2, by defeating the New Yorks with apparent ease. The weather was very disagreeable, and a strong wind, which was raw and cold, fairly chilled the spectators and made heavy wraps comfortable. For seven innings the game was close and interesting, but in the eighth the Brooklyns forged ahead and got a lead that the visitors could not overcome. Keefe pitched for the New Yorks, and he was batted quite lively, the hits being made at the right time, and, with clever base running, the home team easily scored a victory. Murphy, who occupied the box for the Brooklyns, proved a puzzler to the heavy hitting visitors. Only five safe hits were made off him. Only for his wildness in the second inning, when he gave five men their base on balls, the New Yorks would have been shut out without a run. Joyce made a wonderful one handed stop in the second inning, and then recovered the ball in time to throw out the runner at first.

The New Yorks turned the tide in their favor May 3 by clean, hard hitting and faultless fielding. Slattery and Connor were particularly effective at the bat, they making eight of the seventeen hits obtained by their team. The game was marked by pretty fielding on both sides.

Philadelphia vs. Boston.

The Philadelphia team had the Bostons as opponents when it formally opened its championship season, April 30, at Philadelphia, and in the presence of 17,119 people the visitors scored a victory. The home players were either visibly affected by the cordiality of their reception, or from the superior strength of their opponents, as a certain degree of nervousness marred their work. This, with a soft diamond, which made errors easy, placed them at the mercy of the visitors, who also made errors, but of a less costly nature. The Bostons hit the ball hard, and bunched their hits to good advantage. Richardson did the best batting. Stovey was accorded a hearty reception. Buffinton, who was batted hard, retired at the end of the fifth inning, and was replaced by Knell, who was very effective against the visitors from that to the end.

The Bostons outbatted and outfielded the home team in the game played May 1, and easily scored their second victory of the series. Radbourn was in fine form, and pitched one of his masterly games, and the Philadelphias only made four hits off him, but with sacrifices they managed to earn the two runs they made. Husted pitched two innings, and was then replaced by Cunningham. Between bases on balls and several long hits, the Bostons obtained five runs in the second inning, which virtually settled the game. The Bostons only made one more run after Cunningham went into the box for the home team. Milligan and Kelly each caught a perfect game. Shindle, Pickett, Nash, Quinn and Irwin also played in fine style.

It required twelve innings before a result was reached in the game played, May 3, when the Philadelphias scored a victory. Knell was very wild in his delivery, giving no less than eleven men their bases on balls. Griffin made a phenomenal running catch, which saved the game for the home team.

Boston vs. New York.

By tremendous batting and rather loose fielding on the part of the visitors, the Bostons scored their third victory over the New Yorks, April 29, at Boston. It was a slugging match from beginning to end, and Boston got the better of it. Daley held the visitors down to two safe hits until the sixth inning, when they sized him up for a single, three doubles and a home run. After that Madden was substituted for Daley. The change proved a good one for the Bostons, as the New Yorks only made two hits off him, one being a home run. Hatfield did the best batting, with a single, a double and a home run. O'Rourke, Connor and Daley each made a home run. O'Rourke's was made when the bases were full, and the New Yorks scored four runs. Nash and Brouthers did the best batting for the home team. O'Day was hit freely from the start to the end of the game. He seemed to lack speed, and had poor command of the ball, and, every time it came near the plate, was hit hard. A close decision in the ninth inning prevented the New Yorks from tieing the score, if not winning the game.

Pittsburg vs. Cleveland.

The veteran Jimmy Galvin pitched for the Pittsburgs against the Clevelands, April 29, at Pittsburg, and, although batted quite hard, the home team, by careful fielding, might have won. Most of the hits off Galvin's pitching were made after chances had been offered to put out the side. The visitors only earned two of their seven runs. The Pittsburgs batted Bakely hard and often, but the splendid support he received prevented the home team from getting more runs than it did. It rained throughout the game, and the field was very slippery and soggy. On account of the bad weather, only 751 persons witnessed the game under the 25 cent admission. Buckley and Fields did the best batting for the home team, and Delehanty and Browning for the visitors. Stricker, Delehanty and Kuehne made some brilliant stops of hot hit balls.

Handicap Managers Warring.

The following letter from our correspondent, M. J. Finn, regarding pedestrian matters at the hotbed of sprinting, Sheffield, Eng., contains much that will prove interesting to the readers of this department:

SHEFFIELD, April 26, 1893.

EDITOR CLIPPER—Dear Sir: At present writing there is every indication of a recurrence of that opposition between handicap promoters and companies which existed some half a dozen years since, and which had such a disastrous effect on the Sheffield pedestrian fixtures. For some time past it has been an open secret that the lease of the famous Queen's Grounds had expired, and that the enclosure would shortly pass into the hands of the builders. This was true, and with the decision of the Easter Handicap the Queen's Grounds were closed as a pedestrian enclosure. For some time previously the lessees had been looking about for a suitable piece of land for the purpose of constructing a sporting enclosure, and it is now said that they have been successful, but the locale has not been made public. Previous to the decision of the late Easter Handicap G. H. Morte, the proprietor of the Sheaf House Grounds, advertised a £100 handicap, to be run on the same date as Mr. Ford's Easter Handicap at Queen's Grounds, but he withdrew his proposed venture, with the understanding that he was to promote the Whitsuntide Handicap without any opposition. There has been a company formed, however, who, in conjunction with Ford, propose to promote a £100 Whitsuntide Handicap, and if the Queen's Grounds are not available the venture will be decided at Old Forge Grounds, which are at present presided over by George Pegmore, late manager of the now defunct New-hall Grounds. With the formation of a company to assist Ford, a similar organization has been formed to back up Morte with his undertaking, and the present indications are that, unless some amicable arrangement can be arrived at, there will be two handicaps decided on the same date. This will simply mean ruin to both, in my estimation, and will also cause the public to lose interest in each. On the conclusion of the Easter Handicap the general impression was that the Whitsuntide Handicap would be decided at Sheaf House, and a great many bookmakers commenced operations, and have laid against a lot of different men. The announcement that there will be two handicaps has caused great dissatisfaction amongst these "bookies," a great many of whom are so disgusted that they have shut up their books and declined to bet. When we consider that in Sheffield alone there are some two hundred small bookmakers, who lay the long odds, and are the real backbone of the Sheffield handicaps, and that there are to close proceedings till this rivalry is stopped, then some idea can be obtained of what an injury this will inflict on Sheffield handicaps, at least from a betting point of view. Every one here is hoping that something will yet be done, even at the eleventh hour. Mr. Morte and company have made a slight concession, inasmuch as he has changed his date from May 26, 27 to May 24, 26, on account of the Australian cricket team playing at Sheffield 27, it is stated, but I would not be surprised to see Ford also change his fixture to May 24, 26.

AT THE Spring meeting of the London Athletic Club, April 19, the race for the quarter mile challenge cup was won by T. T. Pitman, who defeated Pollock-Hill by five yards, in 52⅝s. The latter won the one thousand yards handicap from scratch in 2m. 17⅛s., and, going on, covered three-quarters of a mile in the capital time of 3m. 11⅛s.

ED. NEKIRK and Abe Smith ran a match race of a quarter of a mile, for $200 a side, at Recreation Park, Pittsburg, Pa., on Saturday afternoon, May 3, the former winning easily by ten yards, in 53⅝s. The attendance was small and the betting light.

M. J. FINN, the well known pedestrian manager and backer, of Natick, Mass., was to have sailed from Liverpool, Eng., for home on April 30. He intends bringing with him Peter Cannon, who may be termed the champion runner of the world at from three to twenty miles, and the famous sprinter, George Grant, who, under his management, will compete at all the leading open professional sports. Both are Scotchmen, of undoubted ability, and their appearance at the Caledonian fixtures throughout the States and Canada will be hailed with satisfaction by those who annually attend those games, and who are desirous of seeing fresh blood infused into the programme. Mr. Finn's address is Natick, Mass.

THE THIRTY HOURS RACE for female pedestrians at Bancroft's Rink, Springfield, Mass., closed on April 27, the stated scores being as follow: Bettie Lawrence, 160 miles 1 lap; Clara Belle, 150.11; Aggie Harvey, 138.14; Nora Evans, 131.6; Frankie Fleming, 121; Mme. Tobias, 116.5; Nellie Brooks, 112.12. These scores are so far ahead of previous performances by female pedestrians that the management must expect the correctness of measurement and scoring to be called in question.

THE annual fencing and boxing competition between the naval apprentices at Newport, R. I., for the championship medals, took place May 1. In fencing, P. C. Hart took the prize for broadswords and O. T. Hurd for foils. In boxing, the victors were: Heavyweights, M. J. Flaherty; lightweights, L. Loneman; featherweights, C. E. Goetz.

THE RING.

The Carroll-Smith Fight.

Our San Francisco correspondent sends us the following account of the recent contest between these boxers, which will be read with interest: Australia's colors were lowered a trifle at the California Athletic Club, San Francisco, April 22, when Jimmy Carroll, the Brooklyn middleweight, defeated its heavyweight representative, Billy Smith. The contest was for a purse of $1,500. Smith stripped at 161lb, while Carroll, who had not trained very faithfully for the fight, weighed 171lb. The contest was a hurricane one from the start, and resulted in a victory for the Brooklyn boy in fourteen rounds. In the first round Carroll forced the fighting and had much the better of the round, fighting Smith all around the ring. In the second round Smith did considerable fighting, getting in some telling blows on Carroll's body and having a little the best of the round. From this on the fight was of the give and take order. Neither man displayed much science, although Carroll was the quicker of the two. It was one of the hardest hitting contests ever seen in the club. Like the majority of the Australian fighters, Smith showed that he could stand lots of punishment. In the twelfth round he began to show the effects of the rushing fight they had made. Carroll slogged him hard with left and right, the call of time finding Smith weak and bleeding badly at the mouth and nose. In the thirteenth Smith was very groggy, and his blows lacked steam. Carroll kept right at him and punished him severely. In the fourteenth round Smith was very weak, and, after a couple of exchanges, Carroll caught him with a heavy lefthander on the jaw, which knocked him down and out. His seconds picked him up and carried him to his corner as limp as a rag, and it was several minutes before he came to. Smith was badly cut up around the face, while both of Carroll's hands were swollen and badly bruised. He had hurt them in the early part of the fight. Smith was seconded by Martin Murphy and Mike McCarthy, and Carroll was looked after by Reddy Gallagher and Joe Ellingsworth. Hiram B. Cook refereed the contest.

BILLY MYER AND JACK HOPPER engaged in a glove contest, the winner to take seventy-five and the loser twenty-five per cent. of the net receipts, at Lannon's Opera House, Alexandria, Va., on the evening of April 30. They wore medium sized gloves, and the agreement was to fight ten rounds, under the Queensberry rules, but in the sixth round the Westerner landed a corker on the jaw, which laid Jack out stiff until after the expiration of the time limit. The New Yorker had the best of the fighting during the earlier part of the contest, and displayed the most skill.

JACK GALLAGHER, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Frank Moore, of New Brunswick, N. J., met at a road house near Newark on the morning of May 1 for the purpose of fighting to a finish for a purse of $200. The combatants are light weights, scaling 130lb each. The fight was a good one, and very evenly contested till the tenth round, in which Gallagher got in his right on the point of the jaw, and Moore's name was Dennis.

FRANK SLAVIN is stated to have been attacked by roughs while in attendance at a race meeting recently. He had handicapped himself by taking on too heavy a load of fluid extract, and in resisting robbery he was pretty badly used up, having one eye gouged out and being belabored with hands and feet till he was unable to walk.

The McAuliffes in Brooklyn.

The combination consisting of the pugilistic stars Joe and Jack McAuliffe, with Billy Madden, the long headed and experienced, as manager, arrived in the metropolis last week, and on Monday evening, May 5, made their bow in company to thousands at the Fifth Avenue Casino, Brooklyn, which had been engaged for the purpose of introducing the big Californian to the Eastern public, as well as to enable the numerous friends of the smaller, but equally good, Jack to extend him a rousing public welcome on the occasion of his return from the conquest of Jimmy Carroll. The big house was well filled with lovers of the game of fisticuffs, and they accorded a cordial greeting to the lights of the pistic firmament. Of course the loadstone that attracted the majority to the place was the appearance of the heavyweight, Joe, who now aims at the highest game in the field, with his former conqueror, Pete Jackson, for choice, and when he appeared on the stage his size, despite all that had been heard regarding it previously, rather surprised the majority of the spectators. Standing over six feet three inches, alongside of his opponent for the occasion, Jack Fallon, he appeared a perfect giant in stature, and it was felt that if he could sustain the reputation he made on the Pacific Coast previously to his unfortunate meeting with the Antipodian black, the setto between him and the Brooklyn Strong Boy would be simply a farce. Thus it turned out, Mac oversizing his adversary so much that the latter simply was unable to get to him, at least with the slightest effect, while Joe jabbed him when and where and as often as he pleased. Owing to the one sided character of the setto, as well as in consequence of the fact that McAuliffe was not feeling very well, the manager concluded to shorten the bout, and no one of the three rounds lasted much more than a minute and a half. The ability of the Californian could not be correctly judged from the display made, and for this reason the setto was disappointing. However, little better could have been expected at a benefit entertainment, and the public, who are anxious for an opportunity to size up the stalwart Golden Gater, will have to wait until some boxer who is a better match for him engages in a passage at arms with Joe. If any of the heavyweights of the East are willing to put his powers to the test, either for a stated number of rounds or to a finish, with medium or thin gloves, for a stake, purse or gate receipts, we will not have to wait long for the opportunity all are looking for, for Joe has declared his intentions in no uncertain words, naming all the leading exponents of the art in the country as men he is prepared to try conclusions with. He is especially desirous of again meeting Jackson, whom he is satisfied that he can "do" should they come together again, but, owing to the latter's engagements and contracts with the California Athletic Club, as well as to the fact that he will most likely meet John L. Sullivan in the Fall, it is not at all probable that they will face each other for many months, if at all. And, under the circumstances, no one can reasonably blame the colored big 'um for not accommodating Sir Joseph at the present time. However, Jack Ashton, Joe Lannon, Dominick McCaffrey, Frank Slavin or George Godfrey form a quintet from which a suitable antagonist ought to come. Jack McAuliffe sparred with Mike Cushing, and there were several other settos during the evening. The impression created by the star of the show was favorable, notwithstanding that the circumstances surrounding his debut did not admit of his true quality being judged.

The Gloves in England.

Several fights came off in the "tight little isle" during the week closing April 26. A. Halsey and H. North met at the Social Club, Kennington, London, on the evening of the 22d, to fight to a finish for a purse offered by the organization named. They fought well up to the twenty-third round, in which, after a hot rally, Halsey rushed North against the ropes and pushed him down, whereupon the referee disqualified Halsey. ..... On the evening of the 24th J. Welland and Charley Regan came together at Bob Habbijam's School of Arms in Oxford Street, London, and fought with four ounce gloves, the winner to take $20 and the loser $5. It was not much of a fight, as Regan was no sort of a match for his adversary, and in the sixth round he was floored soon after facing the blow proving a settler. ..... On the same evening, at the rooms of the Ormonde Club, in London, Bob Fiorrie and Charley Bartley milled with gloves of medium size for a purse of $250. The first few rounds were quite evenly contested, but finally Bartley, who is a man of color, grew weak from his exertions and punishment combined, and, after being knocked off his pins thrice in the sixteenth Queensberry round, he gave in.

NOTES FROM THE ROBINSON SHOW.—At last the grand event has taken place, as we opened the season at Cincinnati April 26, to one of the largest audiences that ever gathered under a canvas in that city. The vast tent was packed, and the opening was in every way a grand success and a brilliant starter for the Robinsons. The show had been well rehearsed before the opening day, and everything worked like clockwork. This speaks well for our clever equestrian director, John Lowlow. The show has a long list of performers, among the most noted is the Demott Family. Miss Josie never rode finer, and was the recipient of many handsome floral tributes from her many friends in Cincinnati. William Demott received well deserved praise for his fine horsemanship. The Zemoro Family of French aerialists also made a hit. Frank Cook, athlete, also came in for his share of praise. The hippodrome races are a feature this year, and many new and novel races have been added under the careful eye of the hippodrome manager, John Wilson. Forty ponies will be ready in a few days, and will be handled by John Robinson Jr., who will remain with the show this season. Dan Dale has his usual place in the ticket wagon, and views the parade with pride, as he has worked hard to put the wagons in such elegant shape. Gill Robinson's face wore a well contented smile as he viewed the grand opening. The concert is under the management of James Gentry. Taken all in all, the show never went out more brilliantly, and should create a sensation wherever it appears. Our route will be for a few weeks South, through Kentucky.

HEALY & BIGELOW'S MEDICINE CAMP, No. 10, is made up as follows: Sam Archer, comedian; Prof. Andy Johns, ventriloquist; H. B. Mack, juggler; Little Walter Millington, Red Jacket, Mountain Panther, Red Fox, Silver Sky, Red Cloud and Texas Frank, cowboy. Cowboy Wild Horse Jack left the company April 26, and Dr. G. P. Wood, manager, writes to us that he took away other people's property with his own.

THE roster of the Umatilla Indian Medicine Camp, No. 7, is as follows: Dr. Charlie, lecturer; Geo. Siches, business manager; Geo. Barney, contortionist; Geo. Barker, black face comedian; Frank and Harry Williams, musical artists, and the following Indians: Chief Red Cloud, Running Deer, Bright Eyes, Princess Dove Wing, Little Big Thunder and Laughing Eyes.

NOTES FROM CHAS. W. LANGSTAFF'S PAVILION "U. T. C." CO.—We opened the season at the show's headquarters, Ridgeville, Ind., April 26. In spite of a heavy rain, the attendance was good, and, everything considered, all passed off nicely. We are now having fine weather. Everything is in shipshape around the show. Mr. Langstaff's recent "ad" in THE CLIPPER for a cornet player brought over thirty answers. Otis Hasty secured the vacancy. The Mortimer Family are with us, and Little Mabel (our Eva) is an especial favorite. Charles Brickwood is a recent acquisition to our roster, both in the piece and in the concert. Fred Greene, our popular mail agent of last season, has been re-elected, and does his duty finely. Chas. and Lulu Hasty have just put on a new sketch in the concert, and it's a success. Prof. Geo. W. Tipton's band and orchestra are doing good work. Billy Griffin is the stage manager this season. Both Mr. and Mrs. Langstaff do everything to make their people comfortable, and are well liked by all.

W. L. COLE'S CIRCUS opened its season, April 24, at Topeka, Kas., and reports good business. The Summer tour lies through the North and Northwest. The roster: S. Skett's band of eight pieces, Lee Bros., Morhing Bros., Sam Grasburger, Jim Carrier, E. C. Murphy, Mrs. Frankie Ford, Jim Seiber, Godfrey and Piamondon, Al. Seiber, boss canvasman; Ed. Freeman, chandelier man; Frank Wienan, boss propertyman; Cal Wagner, boss animal man; J. M. Barey, manager, and George Seiber, treasurer.

THE Park Commissioners of this city decided, May 1, to take no further steps looking to the removal of the menagerie to the west side of Central Park until some definite action has been taken by the Legislature on the amendment to the law providing for its removal.

PROF. CRAIG is now making balloon ascensions and parachute jumps with Ezra Kendall's "A Pair of Kids" Co. The jumps are made in front of the theatre prior to the beginning of the performance.

JACOBS BROS.' TEXAS RANCH EXHIBITION will open at Schackel's Park, South Beach, Staten Island, May 15, for an indefinite period. The roster: Jacobs Bros., proprietors; Henry Jacobs, business manager; Capt. Harry Horn, director; Abe Johnson, Prairie May, Oklahoma Bill, Gypsy Annie, Texas John, Dashing Minnie, Negro Tom and others. The people are all from the Lone Star State, and give a true picture of life on a Texas ranch.

THE PEYNAUD LEAP is to be an attraction at the watering places this Summer. Achille Philion, who managed Prof. Peynaud last Summer, has associated with him Barney Link and Wm. P. Fay, two energetic and well known young men. The leap will be done by Prof. Roberto, a foreign athlete and diver, who is said to stand at the top of his class of muscular and athletic men. The leap has been fully described, and last Summer proved a great drawing attraction. Dates for the daring athlete are being rapidly filled.

NO EXHIBITION was given by Forepaugh's Circus at Camden, N. J., evening of May 1, on account of an accident which happened during the afternoon performance, when the main tent pole was broken during the heavy windstorm which passed over that city shortly after 4 o'clock. The parade drew thousands to Camden, and when the performance began it was estimated that fully 12,000 persons occupied seats under the great circus tent. The performance had nearly finished, when some one outside saw the masses of black clouds coming from the west, and the managers were notified of coming danger. They at once apprised the audience that the performance would close, and asked them to leave. Immediately there was great confusion, but the tent was soon cleared, and all who had been under it were forced into the clouds of dust and drenching rain which followed. Just after they had left, the wind, which was blowing a gale, struck the tent. The main pole, which supported the centre, snapped off, and the big canvas fell in a heap. Women screamed, children got astray from their parents, and, amid the confusion, the roaring of the lions and trumpeting of the elephants startled the people until they became almost frantic, and a grand rush was made for shelter from the rain in the City Hall, nearly opposite. The freaks in the sideshow were also demoralized for a time.

GEORGE T. FISHER and George W. Aiken, for a quarter of a century the able lieutenants of "Uncle" John Robinson, opened their season under favorable auspices, at Madisonville, O., May 1. Our Cincinnati correspondent says: This is the roster of the new show: George T. Fisher, general manager; George W. Aiken, advance agent; Walter Fisher, general agent, in charge of advertising car, with ten men; George A. Gohen, treasurer and press representative; C. W. Odell, hippodrome manager; Chas. Howitt, equestrian director; John Lewis, sideshow manager; George Coupe, leader of band and concert manager; The. Goldstein and Peter Lyons, privilege managers; Robert McCormack, boss canvasman; Jas. Wilson, boss hostler; Jas. McGuire, director of show train. All privileges are owned by the proprietors of the show. The main tent is a 120ft. round top, with two 50ft. middle pieces. The train consists of four flat cars, four stock cars, one dining coach, one advertising car and one Pullman sleeper. There are fifty head of stock, twenty of which are bronchos and thoroughbred race horses. Two separate and distinct acts will be on at all times. The features are sixteen hippodrome races, including Roman standing races, flat races, donkey races, pony express and stage coach robbery, barrel and obstacle, sack and chariot races, ending with C. W. Odell riding and driving twenty-two horses. The features are Howitt, barrel, tranker and slack wire act; McCoy and Develde, flying bars; Denny Bros., lachelle bars and singe trapeze; the three Hill Brothers, Roman ladders; Cassilly, juggler and slack wire; Develde and Zola, double trapeze, flying rings and single trapeze; Profs. Marks and Schmidt, heavy weight lifters, wrestlers, sparrers and Roman statues; the Minot Family, bicyclists and skaters; Chas. Watson, pyramid of tables; Anzo, contortionist; Watson and Devine, high wire bicycle and ceiling walkers, and Prof. Ed. Long's troupe of trained dogs, goats and monkeys. In the concert are the Coupes, George and Nellie, Dick Rainer and wife, Murray and Kane, Blanche Fisher and Nellie Coupe menage riders and rolling globes, and George Sanders. In the sideshow are Wm. Krebbs, Mme. Phillips (bearded lady), Major Littlefinger and wife (midgets), Miss Hart (long haired lady), Prof. Scott (fire king), Prof. Mack (Punch and Judy), Zenobia (Circassian lady), Felicia (Albino) and Coldrane (living skeleton).

OUR Cincinnati correspondent sends us the following description of the Robinson Circus: The rain fell in torrents April 26, when Robinson's Circus opened at Pendleton, Ky., a suburb of Cincinnati, but the second stand, 28, at Covington, Ky., was blessed with sunshine, and two of the greatest crowds ever seen in that city packed the huge canvas at both performances. The programme was A No. 1, and the races were of a highly exciting character. It is not exaggeration to say that the Robinson Show of 1890 eclipses any of the projects carried out successfully in former years under the same management. The roster is long. John Robinson is general manager, and associated with him are Gil Robinson and Chas. M. Robinson. On the business staff are: General advance agent, Samuels; assistant manager, Ed. Cullen; press agent, Frank Cook, and treasurer, D. W. Dale; Charles Irwin, chief ticket seller; James Buck, master of transportation; John Lowlow, equestrian manager; John Wilson, manager of hippodrome, and William Winfield, master of canvas. Oliver Scott and Ben Cook are in charge of the first car in advance. The roll of performers is headed by the De Mott Family—James, Josie, Louise, Camille, Will and Bruce—the Marks Family, Josie and Hiram, the Forepaugh Family, Horace Mohn, Charles Morrison, Harry Le Roy, George Holland and wife, Harry and Will Black, Sig. Alvardo, Dan and Jessie Leon, Benton and Sallie Hughes, James G. West, George and May Lundgreen, Harry and Florence Wheeler, Mabel Reed, Yellowstone Vic, John Riley, Clarence Boyd and John Robinson Jr. The band is led by Charles Gebert. The main canvas is 510ft. in length, by 200ft. wide. The menagerie is under a 120ft. round top, with four middle pieces. Col. James Hutchings beams on the multitude as manager of the sideshow, and his freaks and wonders include Shade Shields and his giant bride, nee Anna O'Brien; the Clare Sisters, Lillie Bray (long haired girl), Maj. JOHN MURPHY, of Philadelphia, aged twenty-two, an elephant keeper for Forepaugh's Circus, was viciously attacked and seriously injured night of May 2 at New Brunswick, N. J., by one of a herd of elephants which he was driving from the circus ground to the Suydam Street railroad station. During the afternoon he had occasion to discipline the elephant while guiding him to the ring from the menagerie tent. While he was riding beside on the way to the station the elephant suddenly reached out for him with his trunk, and, winding it about the man, jerked him from his horse and dashed him upon the ground. The infuriated beast attempted to crush the keeper under his feet. He stepped on one of Murphy's ankles, crushed the bone, and would have mashed his body had not the man's cries attracted the other keepers, who drove the animal in with the herd. Murphy is now in the Wells Hospital with a crushed ankle and three broken ribs.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

HARRY T. WILSON, a well and favorably known manager and ex-journalist, died at Mason, N. H., May 4. Mr. Wilson was of an extremely nervous temperament, and had not been well for over a year. He was about thirty-seven years old, and had been in the theatrical business a number of years. He was the manager of Atkinson's "Peck's Bad Boy" Co. for three seasons, and last Fall started out ahead of Victoria Vokes. During the Summer he managed Paine's "Last Days of Pompeii" for Thearle & Cooper, and was to have looked after the same attraction this Summer. He was an energetic, hard-working and conscientious man, a fast friend and an agreeable companion. From time to time he had contributed bright sketches to THE CLIPPER. His wife was professionally known as Lottie Harmoyne, but they had not lived together for some months. He leaves a mother in destitute circumstances. The Actors' Fund will defray the funeral expenses.

HATTIE GRINNELL died in this city May 2, from the effects of a surgical operation. Miss Grinnell went on the stage when she was about nine years old, staying away from school Wednesday afternoons to attend the matinees with her brother, Benjamin F. They were well and favorably known on the vaudeville stage for a dozen years or more, when Hattie went into burlesque, making her first appearance in that line in "The Black Crook." She next appeared with "Fun in a Photograph Gallery," with which company she went to California. In 1885-6 she returned to "The Black Crook," next appearing with "Mazulm" and afterwards with "The Water Queen." This was her last engagement. About three months ago, Miss Grinnell married Chas. Moller, a non professional gentleman of means. Miss Grinnell had been suffering with a tumor for over six years, but had only been seriously ill for a week. The funeral services were private, and were held 5, from her late residence, 222 West Fourth Street, this city. She was about twenty six years old. The interment was in Greenwood Cemetery. Miss Grinnell was a beautiful girl, and possessed a host of friends and admirers. Her work on the variety stage with her brother was uncommonly clever.

TED HUIN, property man, died at Portland, Ore., Jan. 13 of consumption.

MRS. LILLIE ROWE (Lillie Bradley), wife of George H. Rowe, and a soubrette of some repute, died very suddenly early on the morning of May 5, at St. James Hospital, Syracuse, N. Y., whither she had been removed from the residence of her sister, "Nell" Bradley, on East Washington Street. Deceased was about eighteen years old, and had been married only a short time. She had traveled with the Foster Theatre Co., "The Galley Slave," "Peck's Bad Boy," "The Night Owls" and other troupes.

GET THE NEW SONG,

Hurrah for the Brotherhood Boys!

BASEBALL SONG.

Hurrah for the gallant lads
Who boldly struck for right!
The dauntless souls, like knights of old,
Who fought and won the fight!
Mammon's greed, Oppression's power,
They boldly now defy.
So cheer them to the echo lads,
And fling your hats on high!
CHORUS:
Cheer them to the echo, lads,
Make a ringing noise,
Hurrah, hurrah, hurrah, hurrah
For the gallant brotherhood boys.

The finest baseball song ever written. The whole brotherhood should have a copy. Sold at music stores, price 40 cts. We mail copies to the "boys" and profession on receipt of 20cts.

The card offered on Monday afternoon, 5, proved sufficiently attractive to bring a big crowd to the course, and they invested their money heavily on the different events, the winners of all of which were well supported, while the majority of successful horses were the actual favorites. RACING IN THE SOUTH.

Owing to unfavorable weather the assemblage present on the opening day of the Nashville (Tenn.) Blood Horse Association, at West Side Park, Saturday, April 26, was rather small, while the heaviness of the track caused a reduction in the number of horses that would have started had the going been good. Thirty bookmakers were in the betting ring, and those who preferred to invest in the old auction pools were accommodated. A Horseman's Suit.

Frank C. Noble, the owner of the stallion Alcryon, has sued the National Trotting Association and Philip P. Johnson for $25,000 and the Standard Stock Farm for the same amount. The suits grew out of the race at Boston last Fall between Alcryon and Nelson, in which Nelson won in 2:13. It was asserted that Nelson threw the race, and pools were called off, and Noble and his driver, Robbins, were suspended at Buffalo. Noble asserts that he did not sell the race, and that his suspension was without notice to him, and he had no chance to defend himself. His suspension and the charges against him, he says, have greatly injured his reputation.

THE OPENING TROTS of the season at the track of the New York Driving Club, old Fleetwood Park, took place on Saturday afternoon, May 3, and although the weather was quite chilly, the gathering of club members was large and comprised many well known road drivers. The events resulted as follow: Class 3:00, members' horses, to top road wagons—J. D. Barry's Capt. A. Watt first, in 2:45, 2:47; Jack second, the other entries being drawn after the first heat. Class 2:30, purse $100—H. G. Smith's Jewell first, Young Vermonter (won the second and fourth heats) second, General Mac third and Sister Barefoot fourth. Time, 2:31, 2:31, 2:31, 2:30, 2:34½. Class 2:40, members' horses, to road wagons—J. C. De La Vergne's Clayton first, in 2:40½, 2:34½; Capt. A. Watt second, Maud G. third and Bessie Benton fourth.

THE ONE THOUSAND GUINEAS STAKES, for three year old fillies, by subscription of 100 sovs. each, a mile and eleven yards, was decided at Newmarket, Eng., May 2, the race resulting in the success of the Duke of Portland's Semolina, by St. Simon-Mowerina, with the same owner's Memoir second and Fatuite third. The last betting was 1 to 2 on Semolina.

LONG RACE.—Ed. Swift and Jimmy Davis engaged in a running race to light road wagons, for $100 a side, from the club house at Glens Falls to the upper hotel at Warrensburg, N. Y., and return, on May 2. They started at nine o'clock in the morning, and Davis won in two hours and ten minutes, Swift being two minutes behind him. The stated distance is thirty miles, over a plank road.

THE RING.

McCoy Vanquishes Reagan.

Over a thousand persons witnessed the glove contest between Pete McCoy and Johnny Reagan which constituted the first sporting event decided at the new building of the Puritan Club at Long Island City, on the evening of May 1. It was a contest with small sized gloves, limited to ten rounds, under the Queensberry rules, and was for a stake of $500 a side, in addition to a purse. The price of tickets ranged from two to five dollars, according to location. There was no attempt on the part of the authorities to interfere with the lads' fun, but a strong force of "bobbies" was on hand to see that matters did not go too far. The combat was an earnest, determined one from the commencement. Both principals are clever, and while the fighting was severe, it was also scientific. During the earlier portion Reagan performed to the best advantage, but after the fourth round McCoy began to take the lead, which he held to the finish, and he was given the verdict. Pete was seconded by Arthur Mullen and Joe Pendegrast, while Reagan had the services of the experienced Dooney Harris and Bob Smith. Warren Lewis kept the time for McCoy and John Yunkers for Reagan, while the choice for referee fell upon Billy Kelly.

BILLY MAHAN and Billy Shannon decided their match for a purse of $1,250 at the rooms of the Occidental Athletic Club, San Francisco, Cal., on Monday evening, April 28, the latter being knocked out of time in the fifteenth round.

THE Cardiff-Godfrey glove contest has been again postponed, and it is now stated that it will take place at Providence, R. I., owing to Cardiff expressing fears that he would not receive fair play in Boston.

AN ABSOLUTE NOVELTY! ORGANIZED FOR CITIES!

E. D. Stair's Scenic and Realistic Production of the American Character Comedy,

"A BARREL OF MONEY."

Written in Four Acts of Intense Interest by Herbert Hall Winslow.

FACTS! The play is one of the most original yet written by an American author and the production will in every way be worthy of the play. It introduces eleven distinct types of character, besides the specialties, which will be of the highest order of excellence. The original comedy complications follow one another in rapid succession, being interspersed with intense human interest, sparkling music and thrilling situations. Competent recognized people only will be retained, and every effort expended to make it a veritable "barrel of money" for all concerned.

FEATURES! A car load of special scenery and mechanical effects, including the Great Iron Works Scene, introducing an Engine and Machinery Room in full operation, with ponderous shafts, revolving wheels, whirring bands, and a young girl being borne to almost certain death on one of the large belts; presenting at the climax of the third act an unusually thrilling effect. A Gorgeous Prismatic Fountain. Elaborate Stage Settings, an all round strong Company without "sticks" or stars, and the best Lithographic Paper to be had.

In presenting this attraction to the attention of managers, I desire to simply state that I want a "barrel of money;" will spend a "barrel of money" to get it, and solicit time only in houses good for a "barrel of money." Now booking for seasons 1890-91 and 1891-2. Address E. D. STAIR, 45 West 30th St., New York, care of Klaw & Erlanger.

NOTE—A few Good Parts Still Open. Apply after May 12.
